The 5th Wave

By Rich Tennant

"Honey, please! Be patient! How's anyone going to know what's wrong unless I find the Russian word for 'alligator'?"

Introduction

Speaking more than one language is like living more than one life, one of the ancient philosophers said. And it's true — traveling in a foreign country such as Russia suddenly becomes a lot more exciting when you can engage in elegant small talk with a hotel receptionist, compliment your tour guide's dress, or actually read the menu and order the food that you really want. Being able to ask for things instead of pointing at them, and being able to get directions from the locals instead of staring at a map, are some of the little things that make you feel at home.

You don't even need to cross the ocean to immerse yourself in Russian culture; you can find little Russian neighborhoods (or even pretty big ones!) in many American cities. Whether your colleagues, your neighbors, or your friends speak Russian, the best way to win their hearts is to speak their language to them.

Now, Russian Phrases For Dummies won't make you a fluent reader of Dostoevsky in the original (most Russians themselves need somewhat of a preparation for that). It will, however, equip you with phrases necessary to function in many real-life situations, from shopping to visiting the theater. So, buckle up, and good luck on your journey! Or, as the Russians like to say, Zhelayem vam udachi! (zhih-lah-eem vahm oodah-chee; We wish you good luck!)

About This Book

The best thing about Russian Phrases For Dummies is that you don't have to read all the way through it to get the information you need. You can open the table of contents, find the section that interests you at the moment, and start talking! You don't have to read the previous chapters to understand any of the sections of this book.

Another thing you don't need to do is memorize long vocabulary lists or grammar rules. We give you ready-made phrases; you just need to read them and start using them right away to impress your Russian friends!

Conventions Used in This Book

Here are some conventions that allow you to navigate through this book with maximum ease:

- ✓ We present Russian phrases in transliteration (Russian sounds represented with English characters). You can see the Cyrillic alphabet in Chapter 1. Russian terms are easily found in the text because they're set in boldface.
- ✓ Each Russian word is followed by its pronunciation and English translation in parentheses. In each pronunciation, the stressed syllable is in italics.

A little example to give you an idea of what we mean: The phrase for "I love you" in Russian is Ya tebya lyublyu. (ya tee-b'ah l'oo-bl'oo; I love you).

Foolish Assumptions

When we started writing this book, we tried to imagine what our future reader was going to be like. In the end, we came up with a list of foolish assumptions about who we think wants to read this book. Do you recognize yourself in these descriptions?

- ✓ You know no Russian — or if you took Russian in high school or college, you don't remember a word of it.

- ✓ You're not looking for a book that will make you fluent in Russian; you just want to know some words, phrases, and sentence constructions so that you can communicate basic information in Russian.
- ✓ You don't want to have to memorize long lists of vocabulary words or a bunch of boring grammar rules.
- ✓ You want to have fun and learn a little bit of Russian at the same time.

Icons Used in This Book

For your convenience, we marked some information in this book with special icons. Check out this guide to the icons, and the next time you see one of them, you'll know what to expect!

From famous Russian writers to a polite way to decline an invitation, this icon marks a wide variety of curious and useful facts about Russian culture.

If you're curious about how the Russian language works, and if you want to expand your command of Russian to the extent of making up your own phrases, these bits of grammatical information may be of interest to you.

This icon points out some important information about Russian that's worth remembering.

This icon signals a useful bit of information that can make life easier for you, whether it's a handy way to remember a useful word or an insider's advice on how to better handle a certain situation.

This icon draws your attention to something you need to know to avoid a common mistake.

Where to Go from Here

Go ahead and start anywhere. You don't have to read in a specific order. Just choose a topic that seems appealing, find the corresponding chapter in the table of contents, and start speaking Russian!

If you've never taken Russian before, you may want to read Chapters 1 and 2 before tackling the later chapters. They give you some basics, such as how to pronounce the sounds.

Chapter 1

I Say It How? Speaking Russian

In This Chapter

- ▶ Understanding the Russian alphabet
 - ▶ Pronouncing words properly
 - ▶ Discovering popular expressions

Welcome to Russian! Whether you want to read a Russian menu, enjoy Russian music, or just chat it up with your Russian friends, this is the beginning of your journey. In this chapter, you get all the letters of the Russian alphabet, discover the basic rules of Russian pronunciation, and say some popular Russian expressions and idioms.

Looking at the Russian Alphabet

If you're like most English speakers, you probably think that the Russian alphabet is the most challenging aspect of picking up the language. But not to worry. The Russian alphabet isn't as hard as you think.

From A to Ya: Making sense of Cyrillic

The Russian alphabet is based on the Cyrillic alphabet, which was named after the ninth-century Byzantine monk, Cyril. But throughout this book, we convert all the letters into familiar Latin symbols, which are the same symbols we use in the English alphabet. This process of converting from Cyrillic to Latin letters is known as transliteration. We list the Cyrillic alphabet here in case you're adventurous and brave enough to prefer reading real Russian instead of being fed with the ready-to-digest Latin version of it. And even if you don't want to read the real Russian, check out Table 1-1 to find out what the whole fuss is about regarding the notorious "Russian alphabet."

Notice that, in most cases, a transliterated letter corresponds to the way it's actually pronounced. As a rule, you may assume that the transliteration fairly well represents the actual pronunciation. The biggest exceptions to this are the letter Йй, which is transcribed as j but pronounced like an English y, and the soft sign Ьь, which is transcribed as ' but only softens the preceding consonant.

Scholars do not agree on the letter j. Some believe that it's a consonant; others think that it's a vowel. We don't want to take sides in this matter and are listing it both as a consonant and a vowel.

Consonants are pronounced softly if they are followed by ye, yo, ya, or yu (е, ё, я, ю). These letters (ye, yo, ya, and yu) preserve the y sound if they are at the beginning of the word (as in yes, your, yard, and youth).

I know you! Familiar-looking, same-sounding letters

You may notice that some of the Russian letters in the previous section look a lot like English letters. The letters that look like English and are pronounced like English letters are

- ✓ Aa
- ✓ Kк
- ✓ Mм
- ✓ Oo
- ✓ Tт

Whenever you read Russian text, you should be able to recognize and pronounce these letters right away.

Playing tricks: Familiar-looking, different-sounding letters

Some Russian letters look like English letters but are pronounced differently. You want to watch out for these:

- ✓ Вв: It looks like English Bb, at least the capital letter does, but it's pronounced like the sound v as in victor or vase.
- ✓ Ее: This one's a constant annoyance for English speakers, who want to pronounce it like ee, as in the English word geese. In Russian, it's pronounced that way only if it appears in an unstressed syllable. Otherwise, if it appears in a stressed syllable, it is pronounced like ye as in yes.
- ✓ Ёё: Don't confuse this with the letter Ee. When two dots appear over the Ee, it's considered a different letter, and it's pronounced like yo as in your.
- ✓ Нн: It's not the English Hh — it just looks like it. Actually, it's pronounced like n as in nick.

- ✓ Pp: In Russian it's pronounced like a trilled r and not like the English letter p as in pick.
- ✓ Cc: This letter is always pronounced like s as in sun and never like k as in victor.
- ✓ Уу: This letter is pronounced like oo as in shoot and never like y as in yes.
- ✓ Xx: Never pronounce this letter like z or ks as in the word Xerox. In Russian, the sound it represents is a coarse-sounding, guttural kh, similar to the German ch. (See “Surveying sticky sounds,” later in this chapter, for info on pronouncing this sound.)

How bizarre: Weird-looking letters

As you've probably noticed, quite a few Russian letters don't look like English letters at all:

✓ Бб

✓ Гг

✓ Дд

✓ Жж

✓ Зз

✓ Ии

✓ Йй

✓ Лл

✓ Пп

✓ Фф

✓ Цц

✓ Чч

✓ Шш

✓ Щщ

✓ Ъ

✓ Ыы

✓ Ь

✓ Ээ

✓ Юю

✓ Яя

Don't panic over these letters. Just because they look weird doesn't mean they're any harder to say than the others. It's just a matter of memorizing their proper pronunciations. (Refer to Table 1-1 for details on how to say each letter.)

You may recognize several of these weird letters, such as Ф, Г, Э, Л, П, from learning the Greek alphabet during your fraternity or sorority days.

Sounding Like a Real Russian with Proper Pronunciation

Compared to English pronunciation, which often has more exceptions than rules, Russian rules of pronunciation are fairly clear and consistent.

Understanding the one-letter/ one-sound principle

Russian is a phonetic language, which means that for the most part one Russian letter corresponds to one sound. For example, the letter K is always pronounced like k, and the letter M is always pronounced like m.

Giving voice to vowels

Vowels are the musical building blocks of every Russian word. If you flub a consonant or two, you'll probably still be understood. But if you don't pronounce your vowels correctly, there's a good chance you won't be understood at all. So it's a good idea to get down the basic principles of saying Russian vowels.

That's stretching it: Lengthening out vowels

If you want to sound more Russian, don't shorten your vowels like English speakers often do. When you say a, o, open your mouth wider and purposefully stretch out the sounds to make them a little bit longer. Imagine, for example, that you're in your room on the second floor, and your mom is downstairs in the kitchen. You call her by saying "Mo-o-o-m!" That's the way Russians say their vowels (except for the shouting part!).

Some stress is good: Accenting the right vowels

Stress is an important concept in Russian. Putting a stress in the wrong place isn't just a formal mistake. It can hinder communication, because the meaning of a word can change based on where the stress is. For example, the word zamok (zah-muhk) means "castle." However, if you shift the stress from the first syllable to the last, the word zamok (zuh-mohk) now means "lock."

Unfortunately, no hard-and-fast rules about stress exist. Before learning a new Russian word, find out which vowel to stress. Look in any Russian-English dictionary, which usually marks stress by putting the sign ´ over the stressed syllable. In a dictionary, zamok (zah-muhk; castle) is written за́мок, and zamok (zuh-mohk; lock) is written замо́к.

Vowels misbehavin': Reduction

Some Russian letters change their behavior depending on whether they're in a stressed or an unstressed syllable. The vowels a, o, ye, and ya do this a lot. When stressed, they behave normally and are pronounced in the usual way, but when they're in an unstressed position, they go through a process called reduction. This deviation in the vowels' behavior is a very important linguistic phenomenon that deserves your special attention:

- ✓ O, which is normally pronounced like oh, sounds like ah (like the letter a in the word father) if it occurs exactly one syllable before the stressed syllable, and like a neutral uh (like the letter a in the word about) if it appears in any other unstressed syllable.
- ✓ A, which is pronounced like ah when it's stressed, is pronounced like a neutral uh (like the letter a in the word about) if it appears in any unstressed syllable.

The honest-to-goodness truth is that when the letter a appears in the syllable preceding the stressed syllable, its pronunciation is somewhere between uh and ah. We don't, however, want to burden you with excessive linguistic information, so we indicate the letter a as uh in all unstressed positions. Moreover, in conversational speech, catching the distinction is nearly impossible. If you say an unstressed a as uh, people will fully understand you.

- ✓ Ye, which is pronounced like ye (as in yet) in a stressed syllable, sounds like ee (as in seek) in any unstressed syllable.

When it appears at the end of a word, as in viditye (vee-dee-tee; [you] see [plural and formal singular]), or after another vowel, as in chayepitiye (chee-ee-pee-tee-eh; tea drinking), unstressed ye sounds like eh after another vowel at the end of the word.

- ✓ An unstressed ya sounds either like ee (as in peek) if it's unstressed (but not in the word's final syllable) or like yuh if it's unstressed in the final syllable of the word and also preceded by another vowel or ь; if it is preceded by a consonant, it is pronounced as uh and the preceding consonant is pronounced softly.

Here are some examples of how vowel reduction affects word pronunciation:

- ✓ You write Kolorado (Colorado) but say kuh-lah-rah-duh. Notice how the first o is reduced to a neutral uh and the next o is reduced to an ah sound (because it's exactly one syllable before the stressed syllable), and it's reduced again to a neutral uh sound in the final unstressed syllable.
- ✓ You write khorosho (good, well) but say kuh-rah-shoh. Notice how the first o is reduced to a neutral uh, the next o is reduced to ah (it precedes the stressed syllable), and o in the last syllable is pronounced as oh because it's stressed.

- ✓ You write napravo (to the right) but say nuh-prah-vuh. Notice that the first a is reduced to a neutral uh (because it's not in the stressed syllable), the second a is pronounced normally (like ah) and the final o is pronounced like a neutral uh, because it follows the stressed syllable.
- ✓ You write Pyetyerburg (Petersburg) but say pee-teer-boork. Notice how ye is reduced to the sound ee in each case, because it's not stressed.
- ✓ You write Yaponiya (Japan) but say yee-poh-nee-uh. Notice how the unstressed letter ya sounds like yee at the beginning of the word and like ye at the end of the word (because it's unstressed and in the final syllable).

Saying sibilants with vowels

The letters zh, ts, ch, sh, and sh' are called sibilants, because they emit a hissing sound. When certain vowels appear after these letters, those vowels are pronounced slightly differently than normal. After a sibilant, ye is pronounced like eh (as in end) and yo is pronounced like oh (as in talk). Examples are the words tsyentr (tsehnr; center) and shyol (shohl; went by foot [masculine]). The sound ee always becomes ih after one of these sibilants, regardless of whether the ee sound comes from the letter i or from an unstressed ye before the stressed syllable. Take, for example, the words mashina (muh-shih-nuh; car) and shyestoy (shih-stohy; the sixth).

Enunciating consonants correctly

Like Russian vowels, Russian consonants follow certain patterns and rules of pronunciation. If you want to sound like a real Russian, you need to keep the basics in the following sections in mind.

Say it, don't spray it! Relaxing with consonants

When pronouncing the letters p, t, or k, English speakers are used to straining their tongue and lips. This strain results in what linguists call aspiration — a burst of air that comes out of your mouth as you say these sounds. To see what we're talking about, put your hand in front of your mouth and say the word top. You should feel air against your hand as you pronounce the word.

In Russian, however, aspiration shouldn't happen because consonants are pronounced without aspiration. In fact, you should totally relax your tongue and lips before saying Russian p, t, or k. To practice saying consonants without unnecessary aspiration, again put your hand in front of your mouth and say Russian cognates park (pahrk), lampa (lahm-puh), and tank (tahnk). Practice until you don't produce a puff of air with these words!

Cat got your tongue? Consonants losing their voice

Some consonants (b, v, g, d, zh, and z) are called voiced consonants because they're pronounced with the voice. But when voiced consonants appear at the end of a word, they actually lose their voice. This process is called devoicing. They're still spelled the same, but in their pronunciation, they transform into their devoiced counterparts:

- ✓ B is pronounced like p.
- ✓ V is pronounced like f.
- ✓ G is pronounced like k.
- ✓ D is pronounced like t.
- ✓ Zh is pronounced like sh.
- ✓ Z is pronounced like s.

Here are some examples:

- ✓ You write Smirnov but pronounce it as smeer-nohf because v at the end of the word is pronounced like f.
- ✓ You write garazh (garage) but say guh-rahsh, because at the end of the word, zh loses its voice and is pronounced like sh.

Nutty clusters: Pronouncing consonant combinations

Russian speech often sounds like an endless flow of consonant clusters. Combinations of two, three, and even four consonants are quite common. Take, for example, the common word for hello in Russian — zdravstvuyte (zdrah-stvooy-teh), which has two difficult consonant combinations (zdr and stv). Or take the word for opinion in Russian — vzglyad (vzglyat). The word contains four consonants following one another: vzgl.

How in the world do Russians say these words without choking? They practice, and so should you. Here are some words that contain consonant clusters you may want to repeat at leisure:

- ✓ obstoyatye'stvo (uhp-stah-ya-tehl'-stvih; circumstance)
- ✓ pozdravlyat' (puh-zdruhv-lyat'; to congratulate)
- ✓ prestuplyeniye (pree-stoo-plyen-ee-ye; crime)
- ✓ Rozhdyestvo (ruzh-deest-voh; Christmas)
- ✓ vzdor (vzdohr; nonsense)
- ✓ vzglyanut' (vzglee-noot'; to look/glance)

Surveying sticky sounds

Some Russian letters and sounds are hard for speakers of English. Take a look at some of them and find out how to pronounce them.

The bug sound zh

This sound corresponds to the letter Жж. It looks kind of like a bug, doesn't it? It sounds like a bug, too! In pronouncing it, try to imitate the noise produced by a bug flying over your ear — zh-zh-zh . . . The sound is similar to the sound in the words pleasure or measure.

The very short i sound

This sound corresponds to the letter Йй. This letter's name is i kratkoye, which literally means "a very short i," but it actually sounds like the very short English y. This sound is what you hear when you say the word boy. You should notice your tongue touching the roof of your mouth when you say this sound.

The rolled sound r

This sound corresponds to the letter Рр in the Russian alphabet. To say it correctly, begin by saying an English r and notice that your tongue is rolled back. Now begin moving your tongue back, closer to your upper teeth and try to say this sound with your tongue in this new position. You'll hear how the quality of the sound changes. This is the way the Russians say it.

The guttural sound kh

The corresponding Russian letter is Хх. To say it, imagine that you're eating and a piece of food just got stuck in your throat. What's the first reflex your body responds with? Correct! You will try to cough it up. Remember the sound your throat produces? This is the Russian sound kh. It's similar to the German ch.

The revolting sound y

To say this sound correctly, imagine that you're watching something really revolting, like an episode or Survivor, where the participants are gorging on a plate of swarming bugs. Now recall the sound you make in response to this. This sound is pronounced something like ih, and that's how you pronounce the Russian ы (the transliteration is y). Because this letter appears in some of the most commonly used words, including ты (tih; you [informal]), вы (vih; you [formal singular and plural]), and мы (mih; we), it's important to say it as best you can.

The hard sign

This is the letter Ѣ. Although the soft sign makes the preceding sound soft (see the next section), the hard sign makes it — yes, you guessed it — hard. The good news is that this letter (which transliterates to ’’) is rarely ever used in contemporary Russian. And even when it is, it doesn’t change the pronunciation of the word. So, why does Russian have this sign? For two purposes:

- ✓ To harden the previous consonant
- ✓ To retain the hardness of the consonant before the vowels ye, yo, yu, and ya, which must be pronounced like at the beginning of the word.

Without the hard sign, these consonants would normally palatalize (soften). When a hard sign ь separates a consonant and one of these vowels, the consonant is pronounced without palatalization, as in the word pod’’yezd (pahd-yezd; porch), for example. However, don’t worry too much about this one if your native language is English. Native speakers of English rarely tend to palatalize their Russian consonants the way Russians do it. In other words, if you’re a native English speaker and you come across the situation described here, you probably make your consonant hard and, therefore, pronounce it correctly by default!

The soft sign

This is the letter ь (transliterated to ’’), and it doesn’t have a sound. Its only mission in life is to make the preceding consonant soft. This sound is very important in Russian because it can change the meaning of a word. For example, without the soft sign, the word mat’ (maht’; mother) becomes mat, which means “obscene language.” And when you add a soft sign at the end of the word von (vohn; over there), it becomes von’ (vohn’) and means “stench.” See how important the soft sign is?

It is also used retain the softness of the consonant before the vowels ye, yo, yu, and ya, which must be pronounced as at the beginning of the word — for example, v’yuga (v’yoo-guh; blizzard). Another very important function of ь is that it shows the grammatical gender (feminine) if it follows a sibilant at the end of the word; in this case, ь does not affect pronunciation. Compare myech (mehch; sword [masculine]) and noch' (nohch; night [feminine]).

So, here's how you can make consonants soft:

1. Say the consonant — for example, l, t, or d.

Note where your tongue is. What you should feel is that the tip of your tongue is touching the ridge of your upper teeth and the rest of the tongue is hanging in the mouth like a hammock in the garden on a nice summer day.

2. While you're still pronouncing the consonant, raise the body of your tongue and press it against the hard palate.

Can you hear how the quality of the consonant has changed? It sounds much softer now, doesn't it? That's how you make your consonants soft.

Chapter 2

Grammar on a Diet: Just the Basics

In This Chapter

- ▶ Understanding the Russian case system
 - ▶ Using nouns, pronouns, and adjectives
 - ▶ Forming verbs in different tenses

One of the biggest differences between English and Russian is that English tends to have a fixed order of words, whereas Russian enjoys a free order of words.

In English, word order can often determine the meaning of a sentence. For example, in English you say, “The doctor operated on the patient,” but you never say, “The patient operated on the doctor.” It just doesn’t make sense.

In Russian, you can freely shift around the order of words in a sentence, because the Russian case system tells you exactly what role each word plays in the sentence. What’s a case? Read on.

Making the Russian Cases

In a Russian sentence, every noun, pronoun, and adjective takes a different ending depending on the case it's in. Cases are sets of endings that words take to indicate their function and relationship to other words in the sentence. Russian has 6 cases, which isn't that bad compared to Finnish, which has 15.

Nominative case

A noun (or a pronoun or an adjective) always appears in the nominative case in an English-Russian dictionary. Its main function is to indicate the subject of the sentence. For example, in the sentence Bryenda izuchayet russkij yazyk (brehn-duh ee-zoo-chah-eh-t roos-keey yee-zihk; Brenda studies Russian), the word Bryenda, is the subject of the sentence and consequently is used in the nominative case.

Genitive case

Use the genitive case to indicate possession. It answers the question "Whose?" In the phrase kniga Anny (knee-guh ah-nih; Anna's book), Anna is in the genitive case (Anny) because she's the book's owner.

Accusative case

The accusative case mainly indicates a direct object, which is the object of the action of the verb in a sentence. For example, in the sentence Ya lyublyu russkij yazyk (yah l'ouu-bl'oo roo-skeey yee-zihk; I love Russian), the phrase russkij yazyk is in the accusative case because it's the direct object.

Dative case

Use the dative case to indicate an indirect object, which is the person or thing toward whom the action in a sentence is directed. For example, in the sentence Ya dal uchityelyu sochinyeniye (yah dahl oo-chee-tee-lyu suh-chee-n'eh-nee-eh; I gave the teacher my essay), uchityelyu (oo-chee-tee-lyu; teacher) is in the dative case because it's the indirect object.

Use the dative case after certain prepositions such as k (k; toward) and po (poh; along).

Instrumental case

As the name suggests, the instrumental case is often used to indicate the instrument that assists in the carrying out of an action. So, when you say that you're writing a letter with a ruchka (rooch-kuh; pen), you have to put ruchka into the instrumental case, which is ruchkoj (rooch-kuhy).

Use the instrumental case after certain prepositions such as s (s; with), myezhdu (m'ehzh-doo; between), nad (naht; over), pod (poht; below), and pyeryed (p'eh-reet; in front of).

Prepositional case

Only used after certain prepositions. Older Russian textbooks often refer to it as the locative case, because it often indicates the location where the action takes place. It's used with the prepositions v (v; in), na (nah; on), o (oh; about), and ob (ohb; about).

By the way, you may wonder why the English preposition “about” is translated by two different Russian equivalents: o and ob. For your information, o is used if the following word begins with a consonant. Use ob if the following word begins with a vowel.

Building Your Grammar Base with Nouns and Pronouns

Nouns and pronouns are the building blocks of any sentence. In the following sections, you find out about genders, cases, and plurals of nouns.

Getting the lowdown on the gender of nouns

Unlike English nouns, every Russian noun has what's called a grammatical gender: masculine, feminine, or neuter. Knowing a noun's gender is important because it determines how the noun changes for each of the six cases.

The ending of a noun in its dictionary form (the nominative case) indicates the noun's gender in most cases. Nouns ending in a consonant and j (an unusual letter) are masculine. Nouns ending in a or ya are feminine. If nouns end in o, ye, or yo, they are neuter. Nouns can be either feminine or masculine if they end in the soft sign (').

Grammatical gender for words denoting living beings, in the majority of cases, coincides with biological gender. The word mal'chik (mahl'-cheek; boy) is a masculine noun and the word dyevushka (d'eh-voosh-kuh; girl) is a feminine noun, just as you'd expect.

Checking out cases for nouns

Noun declension is when you change the case endings for nouns. Table 2-1 shows you the declension for masculine, feminine, and neuter singular nouns for all the cases.

Table 2-1 Declension of Singular Nouns

ye	Replace -e with -ya.	Don't do anything.	Replace -ye with -yu.	Replace -ye with -yem.	Don't do anything.
ya	Replace -ya with -i.	Replace -ya with -yu.	Replace -ya with -ye.	Replace -ya with -yej.	Replace -ya with -ye.
Soft sign (')	If the noun is feminine, replace the soft sign with i . If the noun is masculine, replace the soft sign with ya and omit the last vowel of the word if it is ye .	If the noun is feminine, don't do anything. If the noun is masculine and a living being, replace the soft sign with ya ; otherwise, don't do anything.	If the noun is feminine, replace the soft sign with i . If the noun is masculine, replace the soft sign with yu and omit the last vowel of the word if it is ye .	If the noun is feminine, replace the soft sign with yu . If the noun is masculine, replace the soft sign with yem and omit the last vowel of the word if it is ye .	If the noun is feminine, replace the soft sign with i . If the noun is masculine, replace the soft sign with ye and omit the last vowel of the word if it is ye .

Russian nouns in the nominative case (singular) never end in the letters i, u, y, e, or yu. A small number of nouns end in yo, but they're special cases and we deal with them as they come up.

This table may look kind of scary at first, but it's actually easy to use. Say you want to say "I bought my friend a car." The first part of the sentence is ya kupil (ya koo-peel; I bought). But what should you do with the nouns car and friend? In this sentence, mashina (muh-shih-nuh; car) is a direct object of the action expressed by the verb kupil (koo-peel; bought). That means you have to put mashina into the accusative case.

The next step is to find the appropriate ending in Table 2-1. You find this ending in the second row, third column. The table says to replace a with u.

Now what about drug (drook; friend)? Because friend is the indirect object of the sentence (the person to whom or for whom the action of the verb is directed), it takes the dative case in Russian. Table 2-1 indicates that if a noun ends in a consonant (as does drug), you form the dative case by adding the letter u to the final consonant. The correct form for drug in this sentence is drugu (droog-oo). So here's your complete sentence: Ya kupil drugu mashinu (yah koo-peel droog-oo muh-shih-noo; I bought my friend a car).

Putting plurals into their cases

As you probably guessed, Russian plural nouns take different endings depending on the case they're in. Table 2-2 shows you the rules for plural formation in the nominative case.

Table 2-2 Forming the Plural of Nouns
in the Nominative Case

If a Noun in Its Dictionary Form (Nominative Case) Ends In	To Form the Nominative Plural
A consonant	Add y .
a	Replace a with y .
iye	Replace iye with iya .
iya	Replace iya with ii .
j	Replace j with i .
o	Replace o with a .
ye	Replace ye with ya .
ya	Replace ya with i .
Soft sign (')	Replace soft sign with i and if the last vowel is ye , omit it.

The rules in Table 2-2 have a few important exceptions. Some consonants, namely zh, sh, sh', g, k, and kh, are very touchy. They just don't tolerate the letter y after them and prefer an i instead. The plural of kniga (knee-guh; book) is knigi (knee-gee; books).

Changing plurals into the genitive case

Forming the plurals of nouns in the genitive case is a little trickier than in the other cases, so we deal with it first in Table 2-3.

Table 2-3 Forming the Plural of Nouns
in the Genitive Case

If a Noun in Its Dictionary Form (Nominative Case) Ends In	To Form Genitive Plural
A consonant other than zh, sh, sh', ch, or ts	Add ov : studyyent (stoo-dyent; male student) becomes studyyentov (stoo-dyen-tuhf; male students).
zh, sh, sh', ch, or soft sign	Add yej : klyuch (klyuch; key) becomes klyuchyej (klu-chyey; keys).
ts	Add yev : myesyats (mye-seets; month) becomes myesyatsyev (mye-see-tsehf; months).
a	Drop the final a . If the resulting genitive plural form has two consonants at the end, the fill vowel o or e is often added between the consonants: sosyedka (sah-s'ehd-kuh; female neighbor) becomes sosyedok (sah-s'eh-duhk; female neighbors).
iye or iya	Replace iye or iya with ij : stantsiya (stahn-tsih-uh; station) becomes stantsij (stahn-tsihy; stations).
j	Replace the final j with yov if the ending is stressed, or with yev if the ending is not stressed: popugaj (puh-poo-gahy; parrot) becomes popugayev (puh-poo-gah-ehf; parrots).

If a Noun in Its Dictionary Form (Nominative Case) Ends In	To Form Genitive Plural
o	Drop the o : myesto (m'ehs-tuh; place) becomes myest (m'ehst; places).
ye	Add j : morye (moh-ree; sea) becomes moryej (mah-r'ehy; seas).
Consonant + ya	Replace ya with the soft sign: nyedyelya (nee-d'eh-l'eh; week) becomes nyedyel' (nee-d'ehl', weeks).

Now, try to apply Table 2-3 to a real-life situation. Imagine that your friend asks you U tyebya yest' karandash? (oo tee-b'ah yest' kuh-ruhn-dahsh?; Do you have a pencil?). You say that you have a lot of pencils, but the word mnogo (mnoh-guh; many/a lot of) requires that the noun used with it take the genitive plural form. In your sentence, the word karandashi (kuh-ruhn-dah-shih; pencils) should take the form of genitive plural. What does Table 2-3 say about the ending sh? That's right; you need to add the ending yej. You say U myenya mnogo karandashyej (oo mee-n'ah mnoh-guh kuh-ruhn-duh-shehy; I have many pencils).

Setting plurals into other cases

Table 2-4 shows how to form the plurals of nouns for all the other cases.

Picking out pronouns

Pronouns are words like he, she, and it. They're used in place of nouns to refer to someone or something that's already been mentioned.

Major Russian pronouns include the following:

- ✓ ya (ya; I)
- ✓ ty (tih; you [informal singular])
- ✓ on (ohn; he)
- ✓ ona (ah-nah; she)
- ✓ my (mih; we)
- ✓ vy (vih; you [formal singular and plural])

So what about it? In English, inanimate objects are usually referred to with the pronoun it, but in Russian, an inanimate object is always referred to with the pronoun corresponding to its grammatical gender. You translate the English pronoun into Russian with one of these pronouns:

- ✓ on (ohn), if the noun it refers to is masculine
- ✓ ona (ah-nah), if the noun it refers to is feminine
- ✓ ono (ah-noh), if the noun it refers to is neuter
- ✓ oni (ah-nee), if the noun it refers to is plural

For example, in the sentences Eto moya mashina. Ona staraya (eh-tuh mah-ya muh-shih-nuh ah-nah stah-ruh-yuh; That's my car. It's old), the pronoun it is translated as ona, because it refers to the Russian feminine noun mashina.

Placing basic pronouns into cases

Like nouns, Russian pronouns have different forms for all the cases. Table 2-5 shows the declension for pronouns.

Table 2-5 Declension of Russian Pronouns

Pronoun in the Nominative Case	Genitive	Accusative	Dative	Instrumental	Prepositional

Surveying possessive pronouns

Possessive pronouns indicate ownership or possession and must always agree in number, gender, and case with the noun they're referring to. Table 2-6 shows you how to form the possessive pronouns in the nominative case, which is by far the case you'll use most.

Table 2-6 Forming Possessive Pronouns in the Nominative Case

English Possessive Pronoun	When It Modifies a Masculine Noun	When It Modifies a Feminine Noun	When It Modifies a Neuter Noun	When It Modifies a Plural Noun (All Genders)
My/mine	moj (mohy)	moya (mah-ya)	moyo (mah-yo)	moi (mah-ee)
Your/yours (informal singular)	tvoj (tvohy)	tvoya (tvah-ya)	tvoyo (tvah-yo)	tvoi (tvah-ee)
His	yego (ee-voh)	yego (ee-voh)	yego (ee-voh)	yego (ee-voh)
Her/hers	yeyo (ee-yo)	yeyo (ee-yo)	yeyo (ee-yo)	yeyo (ee-yo)
Our/ours	nash (nahsh)	nasha (nah-shuh)	nashye (nah-sheh)	nashi (nah-shih)
Your/yours (formal singular and plural)	vash (vahsh)	vasha (vah-shuh)	vashye (vah-sheh)	vashi (vah-shih)
Their/theirs	ikh (eekh)	ikh (eekh)	ikh (eekh)	ikh (eekh)

Say you're getting ready to go out on the town and you notice you lost your favorite shirt. You want to say, "Where's my shirt?" Because rubashka (roo-bahsh-kuh; shirt) ends in a, it's a feminine noun. Because my modifies the feminine noun rubashka, it's written moya (mah-ya; my), according to Table 2-6. The phrase you want is Gdye moya rubashka? (gdye mah-ya roo-bahsh-kuh?; Where's my shirt?)

Investigating interrogative pronouns

Interrogative pronouns are question words like who, whose, and which. Who in Russian is kto (ktoh), and you're likely to hear or use this word in phrases like

- ✓ Kto eto? (ktoh eh-tuh?; Who is that?)
- ✓ Kto on? (ktoh ohn?; Who is he?)
- ✓ Kto vy? (ktoh vih?; Who are you?)

Kto changes its form depending on the case it's in. It becomes kogo (kah-voh; whom) in the genitive case, kogo (kah-voh; whom) in the accusative case, komu (koh-moo; whom) in the dative case, kyem (kyem; whom) in the instrumental case, and kom (kohm; whom) in the prepositional case. But you hear and use the basic nominative-case form kto in most situations. And just as in English, you use kto no matter what the gender of the noun is.

Whose in Russian is chyej (chehy), and which is kakoj (kuh-kohy). Chyej and kakoj change their endings depending on the gender, number, and case of the noun they modify. For now, you just need to know the nominative case endings in Table 2-7.

Table 2-7 Nominative Case Endings for Chyej (Whose) and Kajoj (Which)

Interrogative Pronoun	When It Modifies a Masculine Noun	When It Modifies a Feminine Noun	When It Modifies a Neuter Noun	When It Modifies a Plural Noun
chyej (chehy; whose)	chyej (chehy)	ch'ya (ch'ya)	ch'yo (ch'yo)	ch'i (ch'ye)
kajoj (kuh- kohy; which)	kajoj (kuh-kohy)	kakaya (kuh-kah- yuh)	kakoye (kuh- koh-eh)	kakiye (kuh-kee-eh)

The question words kogda (kahg-dah; when), gdye (gdeh; where), and chto (shtoh; what) are also sometimes used as interrogative pronouns. The good news is that kogda and gdye never change their form. Chto changes its form for all cases.

Decorating Your Speech with Adjectives

Adjectives spice up your speech. An adjective is a word that describes, or modifies, a noun or a pronoun, like good, nice, difficult, or hard.

Always consenting: Adjective-noun agreement

A Russian adjective always agrees with the noun or pronoun it modifies in gender, number, and case. Table 2-8 shows how to change adjective endings in the nominative case, which is the case you're likely to see and use the most.

Table 2-8 Adjective Formation in the Nominative Case

If an Adjective Modifies	The Adjective Takes the Ending	Examples
A masculine noun/pronoun	oj//ij/yj	bol'shoj myach (bahl'-shohym'ahch; big ball) sinij pidzhak (see-neeey peed-zhahk; blue jacket) krasivyj mal'chik (kruh-see-vihy mahl'-cheek; beautiful boy)
A feminine noun/pronoun	aya/yaya	bol'shaya kniga (bahl'-shah-uh knee-guh; big book) sinyaya shuba (see-nee-uh shoo-buh; blue fur coat) krasivaya rubashka (krah-see-vuh-uh roo-bahsh-kuh; beautiful shirt)

If an Adjective Modifies	The Adjective Takes the Ending	Examples
A plural noun	yye/iye	bol'shyye zhivotnyye (bahl'-shih-eh zhee-voht-nih-eh; big animals) siniye okna (see-nee-eh ohk-nuh; blue windows) krasivyye myesta (krah-see-vih-eh mees-tah; beautiful places)

A lot in common: Putting adjectives into other cases

Table 2-9 shows how to change adjective endings for all the cases other than nominative. (Work with Table 2-8 to figure out which particular ending to use in each case.) Notice how masculine and neuter nouns take the same endings in the genitive, dative, instrumental, and prepositional cases. The feminine endings are the same for all cases except accusative. And the plural genitive and plural prepositional endings are the same.

Table 2-9 Adjective Declension in the Genitive, Accusative, Instrumental, and Prepositional Cases

If the Adjective Modifies	To Form Genitive	To Form Accusative	To Form Dative	To Form Instrumental	To Form Prepositional
A masculine noun	Replace oj/ij/yj with ogo/yego/ogo .	If the noun is a living being, it looks just like the genitive; otherwise, it looks just like the nominative (see Table 2-8).	Replace oj/ij/yj with omu/yemu/omu .	Replace oj/ij/yj with ym/im/ym .	Replace oj/ij/yj with om/im/om .
A feminine noun	Replace aya/yaya with oj/yej/oj .	Replace aya/yaya with uyu/yuyu/uyu .	Replace aj/yej/oj with oj/yej/oj .	Replace aya/yaya with oj/yej/oj .	Replace aya/yaya with oj/yej/oj .
A neuter noun	Replace oye/yeye with ogo/yego .	It looks just like the nominative (see Table 2-8).	Replace oye/yeye with omu/yemu .	Replace oye/yeye with ym/im .	Replace oye/yeye with om/im .
A plural noun	Replace yve/iye with ykh/ikh .	If the noun is a living being, it looks just like the genitive; otherwise, it looks just like the nominative (see Table 2-8).	Replace yve/iye with ym/im .	Replace yve/iye with ymi/fimi .	Replace yve/iye with ykh/ikh .

Nowhere to be found: The lack of articles in Russian

The English words the, a, and an are called articles. You use articles all the time in English, but these words don't exist in Russian, so you don't need to worry about how to say them. When you want to say the, a, or an, all you have to do is say the noun you mean. "The store" and "a store" in Russian are simply magazin (muh-guh-zeen; literally: store). "The girl" and "a girl" are simply dye-vushka (dye-h-voosh-kuh; literally: girl).

Adding Action with Verbs

A Russian verb carries loads of important information. It can reveal whether an action was completed or resulted in something and whether the action occurs on a regular basis or is a one-time event. Russian verbs also reveal the number (and, in the past tense, the gender) of the person or thing performing the action.

Spotting infinitives

Spotting Russian infinitives is easy, because they usually end in a t' as in chitat' (chee-taht'; to read), govorit' (guh-vah-reet'; to speak), and vidyet' (veed-yet'; to see).

Some Russian verbs (which are usually irregular) take the infinitive endings ti as in idti (ee-tee; to walk) and ch' as in moch' (mohch'; to be able to).

Living in the present tense

Russian verbs have only one present tense. Like English verbs, Russian verbs conjugate (change their form) so that they always agree in person and number with the subject of the sentence. To conjugate most Russian verbs in the present tense, you drop the infinitive ending t' and replace it with one of the six endings in Table 2-10.

Table 2-10 Forming the Present Tense of Verbs

Subject of Sentence	Drop the Infinitive Verb Ending (t') and Replace It With	Example
ya (ya; I)	yu	ya rabotayu (ya ruh- boh -tuh-yu; I work or I am working) ty (tih; you [informal singular])	yesh'	ty rabotayesh' (tih ruh- boh -tuh-ehsh'; You work or you are working) on/ona/ono (ohn/ah-nah/ah-noh; he/she/it)	yet	on rabotayet (ohn ruh- boh -tuh-eh; He works or he is working) my (mih; we)	yem	my rabotayem (mih ruh- boh -tuh-ehm; We work or we are working) vy (vih; you [formal singular and plural])	yetye	vy rabotayetye (vih ruh- boh -tuh-eh-tye; You work or you are working) oni (ah-nee; they)	yut	oni rabotayut (ah-nee ruh- boh -tuh-yut; They work or they are working)

Always check the dictionary for clues to anything peculiar in verb conjugations.

Keep it simple: Forming the past tense

To form the past tense of a Russian verb, all you need to do is drop the infinitive ending t' and replace it with one of four endings in Table 2-11.

Table 2-11 Forming the Past Tense of Verbs

If the Subject of the Sentence Is	Drop the Infinitive Ending t' and Replace It With	Example
Masculine singular	l	on rabotal (ohn ruh-boh-tuhl; He worked)
Feminine singular	la	ona rabotala (ah-nah ruh-boh-tuh-luh; She worked)
Neuter singular	lo	ono rabotalo (ah-noh ruh-boh-tuh-luh; It worked)
Plural	li	oni rabotali (ah-nee ruh-boh-tuh-lee; They worked)

Past again: Perfective or imperfective?

English expresses past events either through the past-simple tense (I ate yesterday), which simply states a fact, or the present-perfect tense (I have eaten already), which emphasizes the result of the action. Russian verbs do something similar by using what's called verbal aspect: perfective and imperfective.

Up to this point, we've been withholding some very essential information from you: Every English verb is represented by two Russian verbs: its imperfective equivalent and a perfective counterpart. Usually, the imperfective is listed first, as in this example:

To read — chitat' (chee-taht')/prochitat'
(pruh-chee-taht')

Chitat' is the imperfective infinitive, and prochitat' is the perfective infinitive. You form the perfective aspect by adding the prefix pro to the imperfective infinitive. However, sometimes the perfective aspect of a verb looks quite different from the imperfective aspect, so always check the dictionary.

The imperfective aspect form of the verb emphasizes the fact of an action in the past or to express habitual or repeated action in the past. The perfective aspect emphasizes the result or completion of the action. You also use the perfective aspect of a verb if you want to emphasize a single, momentary event that took place in the past, such as breaking a plate.

If you tell someone Ya pisal ryezyumye tsyelyj dyen' (ya pee-sahl ree-z'oo-meh tseh -lihy d'ehn'; I was writing my résumé all day), you use the past tense imperfective form of the verb pisat', because your emphasis is on the fact of writing, not on the completion of the task. If you finished writing your résumé, you use the past tense perfective form of the verb, because your emphasis is on the completion of the action: Ya napisal ryesyumye (ya nuh-pee-sahl ree-z'oo-meh; I have written my résumé).

Planning for the future tense

To describe an action that will take place in the future, Russian uses the future tense. Although English has many different ways to talk about the future, Russian has only two: the future imperfective and the future perfective.

You use the future imperfective when you want to emphasize the fact that something will happen or be happening in the future, but you don't necessarily want to emphasize the result or completion of an action. You use the future perfective to emphasize result or completion of an action.

To form the future imperfective, you use the future tense form of the verb byt' (biht'; to be) plus the imperfective infinitive. This combination translates into "will/will be." Table 2-12 shows the conjugation of the verb byt' in the future tense.

Table 2-12 Conjugation of Byt' in the Future Tense

Pronoun	Correct Form of Byt' ya (I)	budu (boo-doo) ty (you [informal singular])	budyesh' (boo-d'ehsh')
on/ona/ono (he/she/it)	budyet (boo-d'eh)
my (we)	budyem (boo-d'ehm) vy (you [formal singular and plural])	budyetye (boo-d'eh-t'eh)
oni (they)	budut (boo-doot)

If you want to say “I will read (but not necessarily finish reading) the article,” you use the ya (I) form of the verb byt' plus the imperfective infinitive chitat' (chee-taht'; to read): Ya budu chitat' stat'yu (ya boo-doo chee-taht' staht'-yu).

To form the future perfective, you simply conjugate the perfective form of the verb, as in Ya prochitayu stat'yu syegodnya (ya pruh-chee-tah-yu staht'-yu see-vohd-n'uh; I'll read/finish reading the article today). In other words, you use the ending yu for ya (I) as you do in the present tense. See the previous section for more about perfective verbs.

Using the unusual verb byt' (to be)

Russian has no present tense of the verb to be. To say “I’m happy,” you just say Ya schastliv (ya sh'ahs-leef; literally: I happy). To say “That’s John,” you just say Eto Dzhon (eh-tuh dzhohn; literally: That John). The being verbs am, are, and is are implicitly understood in the present tense.

To express the verb to be in the past tense, you need to use the proper past-tense form of the verb byt':

- ✓ byl (bihl; was), if the subject is a masculine singular noun
- ✓ byla (bih-lah; was), if the subject is a feminine singular noun
- ✓ bylo (bih-luh; was), if the subject is a neuter singular noun
- ✓ byli (bih-lee; was), if the subject is a plural noun or if the subject is vy (vih; you [formal singular])

To express the verb to be in the future tense, you have to use the correct form of the verb byt' in the future tense. (For conjugation, refer to Table 2-12.) To say “I will be happy,” you say Ya budu schastliv (ya boo-doo sh'ahs-leef), and for “I will be there,” you say Ya budu tam (ya boo-doo tahm).

Chapter 3

Numerical Gumbo: Counting of All Kinds

In This Chapter

- ▶ Counting to 20
 - ▶ Telling time
 - ▶ Counting the days
 - ▶ Spending money

This chapter gives you a rundown of all the numbers, dates, and money phrases you need to know to navigate your daily routine in Russian.

Counting in Russian

The harsh truth is that each Russian number changes its form for all six cases! (See Chapter 2 for more on cases.) But unless you plan to spend a lot of time at mathematics or accounting conferences conducted in Russian, you won't find yourself in many practical situations in which you need to know all the different forms. So we give you all the numbers you need to know only in the nominative case.

Numbers 0 through 9

These are the numbers you'll probably use most often:

- ✓ nol' (nohl'; zero)
- ✓ odin (ah-deen; one)
- ✓ dva (dvah; two)
- ✓ tri (tree; three)
- ✓ chyetyrye (chee-tih-r'eh; four)
- ✓ pyat' (p'aht'; five)
- ✓ shyest' (shehst'; six)
- ✓ syem' (s'ehm'; seven)
- ✓ vosyem' (voh-s'ehm'; eight)
- ✓ dyevyat' (d'eh-v'uht'; nine)

But wait! You have to use a few rules when you use these numbers:

- ✓ The number one followed by a noun: For masculine nouns, you say odin followed by the noun as in odin chyelovyek (ah-deen chee-lah-v'ehk; one man). If the noun is feminine you say odna as in odna dyevushka (ahd-nah d'eh-voosh-kuh; one girl). And if the noun is neuter you say odno as in odno okno (ahd-noh ahk-noh; one window).
- ✓ The number two followed by a noun: For masculine or neuter nouns, you say dva, and if the noun is feminine, dva becomes dvye. After the numeral two, you have to put the noun into the genitive case singular as in dva chyelovyeka (dvah chee-lah-v'eh-kuh; two men), dva okna (dvah ahk-nah; two windows), and dvye dyevushki (dv'eh d'eh-voosh-kee; two girls).
- ✓ The numbers three and four followed by a noun: Like the numeral dva (dvah; two), tri (tree; three) and chyetyrye (chee-tih-r'eh; four) also require the noun used after them to be put into the genitive singular. Unlike odin and dva, these numbers don't change their form depending on the gender of the noun they refer to.

- ✓ The numbers five through nine followed by a noun: When you use any noun after the numerals five through nine, you must put the noun into the genitive plural case, as in the phrase pyat' dyevushyek (p'ah't' d'eh-voo-shek; five girls) and syem' mal'chikov (s'ehm' mahl-chee-kuhf; seven boys). Unlike odin and dva, these numbers don't change their form depending on the gender of the noun they're used with.

The following are the numbers 10 through 19:

- ✓ dyesyat' (d'eh-s'uht'; 10)
- ✓ odinnadtsat' (ah-dee-nuht-tsuht'; 11)
- ✓ dvyenadtsat' (dvee-naht-tsuht'; 12)
- ✓ trinadtsat' (tree-naht-tsuht'; 13)
- ✓ chyetyrnadtsat' (chee-tihr-nuht-tsuht'; 14)
- ✓ pyatnadtsat' (peet-naht-tsuht'; 15)
- ✓ shyestnadtsat' (shees-naht-tsuht'; 16)
- ✓ syemnadtsat' (seem-naht-tsuht'; 17)
- ✓ vosyemnadtsyat' (vuh-seem-naht-tsuht'; 18)
- ✓ dyevyatnadtsat' (dee-veet-naht-tsuht'; 19)

Nouns following all these numerals take the genitive plural.

First, Second: Ordinal Numbers

Ordinal numbers are numbers like first, second, and third. We list the first 20 here:

- ✓ pyervyj (p'ehr-vihy; 1st)
- ✓ vtoroj (ftah-rohy; 2nd)
- ✓ tryetij (tr'eh-teey; 3rd)
- ✓ chyetyertyj (cheet-v'ohr-tihy; 4th)

- ✓ pyatyj (p'ah-tihy; 5th)
- ✓ shyestoj (shees-tohy; 6th)
- ✓ syed'moj (seed'-mohy; 7th)
- ✓ vos'moj (vahs'-mohy; 8th)
- ✓ dyevyatyj (dee-v'ah-tihy; 9th)
- ✓ dyesyatyj (dee-s'ah-tihy; 10th)
- ✓ odinnadtsatyj (ah-dee-nuht-suh-tihy; 11th)
- ✓ dvyennadtsatyj (dvee-naht-suh-tihy; 12th)
- ✓ trinadtsatyj (tree-naht-suh-tihy; 13th)
- ✓ chyetyrnadtsatyj (chee-tih-r-nuht-suh-tihy; 14th)
- ✓ pyatnadtsatyj (peet-naht-suh-tihy; 15th)
- ✓ shyestnadtsatyj (shees-naht-suh-tihy; 16th)
- ✓ syemnadtsatyj (seem-naht-suh-tihy; 17th)
- ✓ vosyem'nadtsatyj (vuh-seem-naht-suh-tihy; 18th)
- ✓ dyevyatnadtsatyj (dee-veet-naht-suh-tihy; 19th)
- ✓ dvadtsatyj (dvuht-sah-tihy; 20th)

The Clock's Ticking: Telling Time

When you go out and have fun, vryemya (vr'eh-m'uh; time) is crucial. In the following sections, we help you state and ask for time and specify times of the day and days of the week.

Counting the hours

Just like in Europe, Russia uses the 24-hour system for each day. Instead of 3 p.m., you may hear the phrase pyatnadtsdat' chasov (peet-naht-tsuht' chuh-sohf; 15 o'clock [literally: 15 hours]). Russians use this form of time-telling for all kinds of official messages: schedules, radio and TV announcements, working hours, and so on.

In everyday situations, however, most people use the first 12 numerals to indicate both a.m. and p.m. hours.

If you want to indicate “a.m.” when using the 12-hour system, you say utra (oot-rah; literally: in the morning) after the time; you say dnya (dn’ah; literally: in the day) after the time to indicate “p.m.” So 5 a.m. would be pyat’ chasov utra (p’aht’ chuh-sohf oot-rah), and 5 p.m. would be pyat’ chasov dnya (p’aht’ chuh-sohf dn’ah). When you’re using the 24-hour system, you don’t have to add the words utra or dnya.

Saying “o’clock” in Russian is kind of tricky. These simple rules, however, should help you translate this word into Russian:

- ✓ If the time is one o’clock, you just use the word chas, as in Syejchas chas (see-chahs chahs; It’s one o’clock). You don’t even have to say odin (ah-deen; one) before the word chas.
- ✓ After the numeral dvadtsat’ odin (dvaht-tsuht’ ah-deen; 21), use the word chas (chahs; o’clock), as in Syejchas dvadtsat’ odin chas (see-chahs dvaht-tsuht’ ah-deen chahs; It’s 21 o’clock), or in other words, 9 p.m.
- ✓ After the numbers dva (dvah; 2), tri (tree; 3), chyetyrye (chee-tih-ree; 4), dvadtsat’ dva (dvaht-tsuht’ dvah; 22), dvadtsat’ tri (dvaht-tsuht’ tree; 23), and dvadtsat’ chyetyrye (dvaht-tsuht’ chee-tih-ree; 24), use the word chasa (chuh-sah; o’clock), as in Syejchas tri chasa (see-chahs tree chuh-sah; It’s 3 o’clock).
- ✓ With all other numerals indicating time, use the word chasov (chuh-sohf; o’clock), as in Syejchas pyat chasov (see-chahs p’aht’ chuh-sohf; It’s five o’clock).

One final tip: To say “noon” in Russian, you just say poldyen’ (pohl-d’ehn’; literally: half-day). When you want to say “midnight,” you say polnoch’ (pohl-nuhch; literally: half night).

Marking the minutes

In the following sections, we show you different ways to keep time by expressing minuta (mee-noo-tuh; minute) time increments in Russian.

On the half-hour

The easiest way to state the time by the half-hour in Russian is just to add the words tridsat' minut (treet-tsuht' mee-noot; 30 minutes) to the hour: Syejchas dva chasa tridsat' minut (see-chahs dvah chuh-sah treet-tsuht' mee-noot; It's 2:30). In more conversational speech, it's common to drop the words chasa and minut and just say Syejchas dva tridsat' (see-chahs dvah treet-tsuht'; It's 2:30).

However, you may hear other ways of talking about half-hour increments, such as Syejchas polovina vtorogo (see-chahs puh-lah-vee-nuh ftah-roh-vuh; It's half past one [literally: It's half of two]).

The word polovina literally means “half of,” not “half past.” What you're really saying is “half of” whatever the next hour is. Therefore, 1:30 in Russian is literally “half of two,” or polovina vtorogo, and 2:30 is literally “half of three,” or polovina tryet'yego.

In a phrase like Syejchas polovina vtorogo, the Russian word used to indicate the hour (vtorogo) is the genitive form of the ordinal number vtoroj (ftah-rohy; second).

On the quarter hour

To indicate a quarter after an hour, Russian typically uses the phrase pyatnadsat' minut (peet-naht-tsuht' mee-noot; 15 minutes). To say it's 5:15, you just say:

Syejchas pyat' chasov pyatnadsat' minut (see-chahs p'aht' chuh-sohf peet-naht-tsuht' mee-noot; literally: It's 5 hours 15 minutes)

To be more conversational, you can drop chasov and minut and say Syejchas pyat' pyatnadsat' (see-chahs p'aht' peet-naht-tsuht'; It's 5:15).

To indicate a quarter to an hour, use the word byez (b'ehs; without) with pyatnadsati and the hour, as in:

Syejchas byez pyatnadsati pyat' (see-chahs bees peet-naht-tsoh-tee p'aht'; It's 4:45 [literally: It's 5 without 15 minutes])

Other times before or after the hour

To state times that aren't on the half- or quarter-hour, you can simply use the construction Syejchas . . . chasa (or chasov) + . . . minut, as in Syejchas chyetyrye chasa dyesyat' minut (see-chahs chee-tih-ree chuh-sah d'eh-seet' mee-noot; It's 4:10). For more conversational speech, you can also drop the words chasa (or chasov) and minut and just say Syejchas chyetyrye dyesyat' (see-chahs chee-tih-r'eh d'eh-s'uht').

To express times right before the hour, you use the construction Syejchas byez plus the numbers indicating the minutes and the next hour. "It's ten to five" is Syejchas byez dyesyati pyat (see-chahs bees dee-see-tee p'aht'; literally: It's five minus ten minutes). In this construction, it's common to drop the words minut (minutes) and chasov (hours) after the numerals indicating the time.

When using this expression, you must always remember to put the numeral after the word byez into the genitive case. Here are the genitive-case forms of the numerals you most often use with this expression:

- ✓ odnoj (ahd-nohy; 1)
- ✓ dvukh (dvoohk; 2)
- ✓ tryokh (tryokh; 3)
- ✓ chyetyryokh (chee-tih-r'ohkh; 4)
- ✓ pyati (pee-tee; 5)
- ✓ dyesyati (dee-see-tee; 10)
- ✓ pyat'nadsati (peet-naht-tsoh-tee; 15)
- ✓ dvadsati (dvaht-tsoh-tee; 20)
- ✓ dvadsati pyati (dvoht-tsoh-tee pee-tee; 25)

Asking for the time

To ask what time it is, you say Skol'ko syejchas vryemyeni? (skohl'-kuh see-chahs vr'eh-m'eh-nee?; What time is it?) If you ask a passerby in public, you may want to begin this question with the polite phrase Izvinitye pozhalujsta . . . (eez-vee-nee-t'eh pah-zhah-luh-stuh . . .; Excuse me, please . . .) or Skazhitye pozhalujsta . . . (skuh-zhah-t'eh pah-zhah-luh-stuh . . .; Could you please tell me . . .).

To ask at what time something will happen or has happened, use the phrases Kogda (kahg-dah; when) or V kakoye vryemya . . . (f kuh-koh-ee vr'eh-m'uh . . .; At what time . . .).

Knowing the times of the day

People all over the world seem to agree on three main time periods: utro (oo-truh; morning), dyen' (d'ehn'; afternoon), and vyechyer (v'eh-chehr; evening). Noch' (nohch; night) is the time when most people sleep. To state that something happens within these time periods, use these phrases:

- ✓ utrom (oo-truhm; in the morning)
- ✓ dnyom (dn'ohm; in the afternoon)
- ✓ vyechyerom (v'eh-cheh-ruhm; in the evening)
- ✓ noch'yu (nohch-yu; late at night or early in the morning)

Although English uses the prepositional phrase “in + time of the day” to indicate times of the day, in Russian you put the words utro, dyen', vyechyer, and noch' in instrumental case. Also note that the word dyen' drops the letter ye in the process and becomes dnyom rather than denyom. Nouns sometimes have this habit of “losing” letters in the process of declining for cases in Russian.

Monday, Tuesday: Weekdays

To indicate days of the week, use these Russian words:

- ✓ ponyedyel'nik (puh-nee-d'ehl'-neek; Monday)
- ✓ vtornik (ftohr-neek; Tuesday)
- ✓ sryeda (sree-dah; Wednesday)
- ✓ chyetvyerg (cheet-v'ehrk; Thursday)
- ✓ pyatnitsa (p'aht-nee-tsoh; Friday)
- ✓ subbota (soo-boh-tuh; Saturday)
- ✓ voskryesyen'ye (vuhs-kree-s'ehn'-ye; Sunday)

If somebody asks you what day of the week it is, he says: Kakoj syegodnya dyen'? (kuh-kohy see-vohd-n'uh d'ehn'?; What day is it today?) To answer this question, you say Syegodnya plus the day of the week. For example: Syegodnya ponyedyel'nik (see-vohd-n'uh puh-nee-d'ehl'-neek; It's Monday today). It's that simple!

To say that something happens, happened, or will happen on a certain day, you need to add the preposition v, and you put the word denoting the day of the week into the accusative case. (For more on cases, see Chapter 2.)

- ✓ v ponyedyel'nik (f puh-nee-d'ehl'-neek; on Monday)
- ✓ vo vtornik (vah ftohr-neek; on Tuesday)
- ✓ v sryedu (f sr'eh-doo; on Wednesday)
- ✓ v chyetvyerg (f cheet-v'ehrk; on Thursday)
- ✓ v pyatnitsu (f p'aht-nee-tsoh; on Friday)
- ✓ v subbotu (f soo-boh-too; on Saturday)
- ✓ v voskryesyen'ye (v vuhs-kree-s'ehn'-ee; on Sunday)

You may wonder why some of the days change in the accusative case, while others don't. The explanation is simple: Masculine nouns denoting inanimate objects don't change their form in accusative case and retain their nominative (dictionary) form.

Other phrases related to the days of the week include

- ✓ dyen' (d'ehn'; day)
- ✓ syegodnya (see-vohd-n'uh; today)
- ✓ syegodnya utrom (see-vohd-n'uh oo-truhm; this morning)
- ✓ syegodnya vechyerom (see-vohd-n'uh v'eh-ch'eh-ruhm; this evening)
- ✓ nyedyelya (nee-d'eh-l'uh; week)

Talking about time relative to the present

Just as in English, Russian has lots of phrases to talk about a certain time in the past or future that relates to the present moment. Some time-related words that you may hear or say often in Russian are

- ✓ syejchas (see-chahs; now)
- ✓ skoro (skoh-ruh; soon)
- ✓ pozdno (pohz-nuh; late)
- ✓ pozzhye (poh-zheh; later)
- ✓ rano (rah-nuh; early)
- ✓ ran'shye (rahn'-sheh; earlier)
- ✓ vchjera (fchee-rah; yesterday)
- ✓ pozavchjera (puh-zuhf-ch'eh-rah; the day before yesterday)
- ✓ zavtra (zahf-truh; tomorrow)
- ✓ poslyezavtra (poh-sl'eh-zahf-truh; the day after tomorrow)

If you want to express that something will happen in a week, a month, or a year, you use chyeryez plus the accusative form of either nyedyelya (nee-d'eh-l'uh; week), myesyats (m'eh-seets; month), or god (goht; year):

- ✓ chyeryez nyedyelyu (ch eh-r'ehz nee-d'eh-l'oo; in a week)
- ✓ chyeryez myesyats (ch eh-reez m'eh-s'uhts; in a month)
- ✓ chyeryez god (ch eh-r'ehz goht; in a year)

To say that something happened last week, month, or year, you say

- ✓ na proshloj nyedyele (nuh prohsh-luhy nee-d'eh-l'eh; last week)
- ✓ v proshlom myesyatsye (v prohsh-luhm m'eh-see-tseh; last month)
- ✓ v proshlom godu (v prohsh-luhm gah-doo; last year)

Checking Your Calendar

September, April, June, and November may all have 30 days, but here's some more important things to know about your calendar.

Recognizing the names of the months

Here's a list of the myesyatsy (m'eh-see-tsih; months):

- ✓ yanvar' (yeen-vahr'; January)
- ✓ fyevral' (feev-rah'l'; February)
- ✓ mart (mahrt; March)
- ✓ apryel' (uhp-r'ehl'; April)
- ✓ maj (mahy; May)
- ✓ iyun' (ee-yun'; June)

- ✓ iyul' (ee-yul'; July)
- ✓ avgust (ahv-goost; August)
- ✓ syentyabr' (seen-t'ahbr'; September)
- ✓ oktyabr' (ahk-t'ahbr'; October)
- ✓ noyabr' (nah-yahbr'; November)
- ✓ dyekabr' (dee-kahbr'; December)

When you want to say a chislo (chees-loh; date) in Russian, you need to put the ordinal number indicating the day in the form of neuter gender and the name of the month in the genitive case, as in:

- ✓ Syegodnya pyatoye oktyabrya (see-vohd-n'uh p'ah-tuh-eh uhk-teeb-r'ah; Today is October 5).
- ✓ Zavtra dyesyatoye iyulya (zahf-truh dee-s'ah-tuh-eh ee-yu-l'uh; Tomorrow is June 10).
- ✓ Poslyezavtra dvadtstat' chyetyortoye marta (pohs-lee-zahf-truh dvaht-tsuht' cheet-v'ohr-tuh-eh mah-r-tuh; The day after tomorrow is March 24).

Saying the year

To indicate a year, you begin with the century, as in ttsyacha dyevyatsot (tih-see-chuh dee-veet-soht; 19 [literally: 1,900]) for the 20th century or dvye ttsyachi (dv'eh tih-see-chee; 2,000) for the 21st century. Then, to state the number indicating the year, use the corresponding ordinal number, as in:

- ✓ ttsyacha dyevyatsot pyat'dyesyat' vos'moj god (tih-see-chuh dee-veet-soht pee-dee-s'ah-t vahs'-mohy goht; 1958 [literally: 1,958th year])
- ✓ dvye ttsyachi syed'moj god (dv'eh tih-see-chee seed'-mohy goht; 2007 [literally: 2,007th year])

Note that in indicating a year, Russian, unlike English, actually uses the word god (goht; year). The word god has two plural forms: the regular gody (goh-dih; years) and the irregular goda (gah-dah; years). A very subtle stylistic difference exists between the two, so don't hesitate to use both or the one you like better.

To indicate when a certain event took, takes, or will take place, use preposition v + the year in the prepositional case + godu (gah-doo; year), as in:

v tysyacha dyevyatsot pyat'dyesyat vos'mom godu (v tih-see-chuh dee-veet-soht pee-dee-s'ahht vahs'-mohm gah-doo; in 1958 [literally: in the 1,958th year])

To indicate the year in which an event takes place, you only have to put the last ordinal numeral describing the year into the prepositional case.

Surveying the seasons

Russia has some beautiful vryemyena goda (vree-mee-nah goh-duh; seasons [literally: times of the year]). Here they are:

- ✓ zima (zee-mah; winter)
- ✓ vyesna (vees-nah; spring)
- ✓ lyeto (l'eh-tuh; summer)
- ✓ osyen' (oh-s'ehn'; fall)

A popular Russian song says V prirodye plokhoy pogody nye byvayet (v pree-roh-d'eh plah-khohy pah-goh-dih nee bih-vah-ehht; Nature doesn't have bad weather). This line is another way of saying that every vryemya goda (vr'eh-m'uh goh-duh; season [literally: time of the year]) has its own beauty.

Money, Money, Money

The official Russian currency is the rubl' (roobl'; rouble). Much like a dollar equals 100 cents, one rubl' equals 100 kopyejki (kah-p'ehy-kee; kopecks).

To talk about different numbers of rubles, you need to use different cases, such as dva rublya (dvah roob-l'ah; 2 rubles) in the genitive singular, pyat' rublyej (p'aht' roob-l'ehy; 5 rubles) in the genitive plural, and dvadtsat' odin rubl' (dvaht-tsuht' ah-deen roobl'; 21 rubles) in the nominative singular.

Changing money

Big Russian cities are saturated with punkty obmyena (poonk-tih ahb-m'eh-nuh; currency-exchange offices), which can also be called obmyen valyuty (ahb-m'ehn vuh-lyu-tih). You can usually find a punkt obmyena in any hotel. The best kurs obmyena valyuty (koors ahb-m'eh-nuh vuh-l'oo-tih; exchange rate), however, is offered by banki (bahn-kee; banks).

Some handy phrases to use when you exchange currency include

- ✓ Ya khochu obmyenyat' dyen'gi. (ya khah-choo uhb-mee-n'aht' d'ehn'-gee; I want to exchange money.)
- ✓ Ya khochu obmyenyat' dollary na rubli. (ya khah-choo uhb-mee-n'aht' doh-luh-rih nuh roob-lee; I want to exchange dollars for rubles.)
- ✓ Kakoj kurs obmyena? (kuh-kohy koors ahb-m'eh-nuh?; What is the exchange rate?)
- ✓ Nado platit' komissiyu? (nah-duh pluh-teet' kah-mee-see-yu?; Do I have to pay a fee?)

Heading to the ATM

The fastest way to access your account is the bankomat (buhn-kah-maht; ATM). Bankomaty (buhn-kah-mah-tih; ATMs) are less ubiquitous in small cities; they're usually found in banks.

Here's your guide to the phrases you see on the bankomat screen:

- ✓ vstav'tye kartu (fstahf'-t'eh kahr-too; insert the card)
- ✓ vvyeditye PIN-kod (vee-dee-t'eh peen-koht; enter your PIN)
- ✓ vvyeditye summu (vvee-dee-t'eh soo-moo; enter the amount)
- ✓ snyat' nalichnyye (sn'aht' nuh-leech-nih-yeh; withdraw cash)
- ✓ kvitantsiya (kvee-tahn-tsih-yuh; receipt)
- ✓ zabyeritye kartu (zuh-bee-ree-tee kahr-too; remove the card)

Spending money

Before you run out and spend your money, you may find it helpful to know the verb platit' (pluh-teet'; to pay). Its conjugation appears in Table 3-1.

Table 3-1 Conjugation of Platit'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya plachu	ya pluh-choo	I pay or I am paying ty platish'	tih plah-teesh'	You pay or you are paying (informal singular) on/ona/ ono platit	ohn/ah-nah/ ah-noh plah-teet	He/she/it pays or he/she/it is paying my platim	mih plah-teem	We pay or we are paying vy platitye	vih plah-tee-t'eh	You pay or you are paying (formal singular and plural)
oni platyat	ah-nee plah-t'uh	They pay or they are paying

Paying with credit cards

Although kryeditnyye kartochki (kree-deet-nih-eh kahr-tuhch-kee; credit cards) and bankovskiye kartochki (bahn-kuhf-skee-eh kahr-tuhch-kee; debit cards) have long been established in cities like Moscow and St. Petersburg, in other cities your attempts to pay with a credit card may not be as welcome. When making plans to pay with a credit card, it's worth asking

- ✓ U vas mozhno zaplatit' kryeditnoj kartochkoj? (oo vahs mohzh-nuh zuh-pluh-teet' kree-deet-nuhy kahr-tuhch-kuhy?; Do you accept credit cards?)
- ✓ Ya mogu zaplatit' kryeditnoj kartochkoj? (ya mah-goo zuh-pluh-teet' kree-deet-nuhy kahr-tuhch-kuhy?; Can I pay with a credit card?)

Some places, such as travel agencies, may charge you a fee when accepting payment by credit card. To find out where this is the case, you may want to ask Vy vzymayetye komissionnyj sbor za oplatu kryeditnoj kartochkoj? (vih vzih-mah-eh-t'eh kuh-mee-see-oh-nihy zboh-r zuh ahp-lah-too kree-deet-nuhy kahr-tuhch-kuhy?; Do you charge a fee for paying with a credit card?)

Making New Friends and Enjoying Small Talk

In This Chapter

- ▶ Using informal and formal versions of you
 - ▶ Knowing phrases for hello and goodbye
 - ▶ Introducing yourself and others
 - ▶ Chatting about your life

Greetings and introductions in Russian are a bit more formal than in English. If you greet somebody correctly in Russian, that person is impressed and probably wants to get to know you better. If, however, you botch your greeting, you may get a funny look or even offend the person you're addressing.

In this chapter, we give you details on how to make your best first impression and then make small talk with your new friends.

To Whom Am I Speaking? Being Informal or Formal

When you want to say “hello” in Russian, it’s important to know who you’re talking to first. Unlike in English (but similar to French, German, or Spanish, for example), Russian uses two different words for the word you — informal ty (tih) and formal vy (vih).

Here's how to know when to use which form of you:

- ✓ In Russian, you're allowed to use the informal ty only when you're speaking to your parents, grandparents, siblings, children, and close friends.
- ✓ The formal vy is used in more formal situations when you talk to your boss, acquaintances, older people, or people you don't know very well, and any time you're speaking to more than one person.

As you get to know somebody better, you may switch to the informal ty. You even have a way of asking a person whether he or she is ready to switch to ty: Mozhno na ty? (Mozh-nuh nah tih?; May I call you informal you?) If the answer is da! (dah; yes), then you're free to start calling the person ty. If, however, the answer is nyet! (n'eh; no), you'd better wait until the person feels more comfortable with you!

Comings and Goings: Saying Hello and Goodbye

Greetings and goodbyes are essential Russian phrases to know — because they're the start and finish of every conversation.

Saying hello to different people

To greet one person with whom you're on informal ty (tih) terms, use the word zdravstvuj (zdrah-stvooy; hello). To greet a person with whom you're on formal vy (vih) terms or to address more than one person, use the longer word, zdravstvujtye (zdrah-stvooy-t'eh; hello). Note that the first letter v in zdravstvujtye is silent. Otherwise, it would be hard even for Russians to pronounce!

The informal way of saying “hello” in Russian is privyet! (pree-v’ehf). It’s similar to the English hi, and you should be on pretty familiar terms with a person before you use this greeting.

Here are some other ways to greet people, depending on what time of day it is:

- ✓ Dobroye utro! (dohb-ruh-eh oo-truh!; Good morning!): This is the greeting you use in the morning — until noon.
- ✓ Dobryj dyen’! (dohb-rihy d’ehn’!; Good afternoon!): This is the greeting you can use most of the day, except for early in the morning or late at night.
- ✓ Dobryj vyechyer! (dohb-rihy v’eh-ch’ehr! Good evening!): This is the greeting you would most likely use in the evening.

Handling “How are you?”

Here are the easiest and most popular ways to ask “How are you?”:

- ✓ Kak dyela? (kahk dee-lah?): You use this phrase in rather informal settings.
- ✓ Kak vy pozhivayetye? (kahk vih puh-zhih-vah-eh-t’eh?): You use this phrase when speaking with your boss or somebody you’ve just met.

Here are some way to reply to Kak dyela?:

- ✓ Khorosho (khuh-rah-shoh; good)
- ✓ Normal’no (nahr-mahl’-nuh; normal or okay)
- ✓ Nichyego (nee-chee-voh; so-so [literally: nothing])
- ✓ Nyeplokho (nee-ploh-khuh; not bad)
- ✓ Pryekrasno! (pree-krahs-nuh!; wonderful)
- ✓ Vyelikolyepno! (vee-lee-kah-l’ehp-nuh!; terrific)

Although optimistic Americans don't hesitate to say "terrific" or "wonderful," Russians are usually more reserved. To be on the safe side, just say either Nichyego or Nyeplokho.

But don't stop there! Be sure to ask the person how she's doing. You simply say A u vas? (ah oo vahs?; And you? [formal]) If you want to be less formal, you say A u tyebya? (ah oo tee-b'ah?; And you?)

Taking your leave

The usual way to say "goodbye" in almost any situation is Do svidaniya! (duh svee-dah-nee-uh!), which literally means "'Til (the next) meeting." If you're on informal terms with somebody, you may also say Poka (pah-kah; bye or see you later).

The phrase you use while leave-taking in the evening or just before bed is Spokojnoj nochi (spah-kohy-nuhy noh-chee; Good night). The phrase works both for formal and informal situations.

Break the Ice: Making Introductions

Making a good first impression is important for the beginning of any relationship. This section shows you phrases to use when getting acquainted with someone, how to ask for somebody's name, and the best way to introduce your friends to new people.

Getting acquainted

In English, introducing yourself is the best way to start a conversation with somebody you don't know. Not so in Russian. Russians like to begin with first suggesting to get acquainted. They have two ways to say this:

- ✓ Davajtye poznakomimsya! (duh-vahy-t'eh puhz-nuh koh-meem-suh!; Let's get acquainted!), when addressing a person formally or two or more people
- ✓ Davaj poznakomimsya! (duh-vahy puhz-nuh koh-meem-suh!; Let's get acquainted!), when addressing a person informally

If somebody says one of these phrases to you, you should politely accept the suggestion by saying:

- ✓ Davajtye! (duh-vahy-t'eh!; Okay! [literally: Let's!]), when addressing a person formally or two or more people
- ✓ Davaj! (duh-vahy!; Okay! [literally: Let's!]), when addressing a person informally

Asking for people's names and introducing yourself

The formal version of “What is your name?” is Kak vas zovut? (kahk vahz zah-voot?; literally: What do they call you?). The informal version of “What is your name?” is Kak tyebya zovut? (kahk tee-b'ah zah-voot?; literally: What do they call you?). To introduce yourself in Russian, just say Myenya zovut (Mee-n'ah zah-voot) + your name.

After you're introduced to someone, you may want to say, “Nice to meet you.” In Russian you say ochyen' priyatno (oh-cheen' pree-yat-nuh; literally: very pleasant). The person you've been introduced to may then reply mnye tozhye (mnye toh-zheh; same here). You use the phrases ochyen' priyatno and mnye tozhye in both formal and informal situations.

Saying names in Russian is a bit more complicated than in English because Russians use the patronymic (father's name) right after the first name. The patronymic usually has the ending -vich (veech), meaning “son of,” or -ovna (ohv-nuh), meaning “daughter of.” For example, a man named Boris, whose father’s name is Ivan, would be known as Boris Ivanovich (Ivanovich is the patronymic). A woman named Anna whose father’s name is Ivan would be known as Anna Ivanovna (Ivanovna is the patronymic). A Russian almost never formally addresses a person named Mikhail as just “Mikhail” but rather as “Mikhail” plus his patronymic with the suffix -vich (for instance, “Mikhail Nikolayevich” or “Mikhail Borisovich”).

Men’s last names and women’s last names have different endings. That’s because Russian last names have genders. Although most Russian male last names have the ending -ov (of), female names take the ending -ova (ohv-nuh). Imagine that your new acquaintance, Anna Ivanova, is a married woman. Her husband’s last name isn’t Ivanova (ee-vuh-noh-vuh), but Ivanov (ee-vuh-nof).

Introducing your friends and family

Everyday, common introductions are easy in Russian. When you want to introduce your friends, all you need to say is Eto . . . (eh-tuh . . .; This is . . .). Then you simply add the name of the person.

To indicate that the person is an acquaintance or a colleague, you say one of two things:

- ✔ If the person is a man, you say Eto moj znakomyj (eh-tuh mohy znuh-koh-mihy; This is my acquaintance).
- ✔ If the person is a woman, you say Eto moya znakomaya (eh-tuh mah-ya znuh-koh-muh-yuh; This is my acquaintance).

Let Me Tell You Something: Talking about Yourself

What do people talk about when they first meet? The topics are highly predictable: You usually talk about yourself.

Stating where you're from

To start the conversation, you can say Otkuda vy? (aht-koo-duh vih?; Where are you from?). To answer, you can say:

- ✓ Ya iz Amyeriki (ya eez uh-mye-ree-kee; I am from America)
- ✓ Ya zhivu v Amyerikye (ya zhih-voo v uh-meh-ree-k'eh; I live in America)

After a Russian finds out your country of origin, he may ask you where in the country you're from (such as a city or a state). You may hear questions like

- ✓ V kakom shtatye vy zhivyote? (f kuh-kohm shtah-t'eh vih zhih-vyo-t'eh?; What state do you live in?)
- ✓ Vy iz kakogo goroda? (vih eez kuh-koh-vuh goh-ruh-duh?; What city are you from?)

You can answer:

- ✓ Ya zhivu v Siyetlye (ya zhih-voo f see-yet-l'eh; I live in Seattle)
- ✓ Ya iz Siyetla (ya ees see-yet-luh; I am from Seattle)

Notice that when the preposition v is followed by a noun beginning with an unvoiced consonant, it's pronounced like f, not v, and when the preposition iz is followed by a noun beginning with an unvoiced consonant, it's pronounced ees, not eez.

When you say Ya zhivu v . . . (ya zhih-voov . . . ; I live in . . .), use the word describing the place where you live in the prepositional case, because the preposition v (in) takes that case. When saying Ya iz . . . (ya eez . . . ; I am from . . .), use the next word in the genitive case because the preposition iz (eez; from) requires genitive.

Telling your age

To inquire about someone's voзраст (vohz-ruhst; age) in Russian, you ask one of two questions:

- ✓ Skol'ko tyebye lyet? (skohl'-kuh tee-b'eh l'eh't?; How old are you? [informal])
- ✓ Skol'ko vam lyet? (skohl'-kuh vahm l'eh't; How old are you? [formal])

Answering isn't as simple as you may think. First of all, in Russia, age is seen as something that happens to you, something you can't control (and this is, after all, very true). That's why, instead of using the subject in the nominative case, Russian uses the dative form of the person whose age is being described. In Russian you say literally "To me is 23 years old."

The second tricky part of talking about your age is that the translation of the word year(s) depends on how old you are. This is how it works:

- ✓ If you're 1, 21, or 31 years old (in other words, if the numeral indicating your age is 1 or ends in 1), use the word god (goht; year), as in Mnye dvadtsat' odin god (mnye dvaht-tsuht' ah-deen goht; I am twenty-one years old).
- ✓ If the numeral denoting your age ends in a 2, 3, or 4, use the word goda (goh-duh; years), as in Mnye dvadtsat' dva goda (mnye dvaht-tsuht' dvah goh-duh; I am twenty-two years old).

- ✓ If the numeral denoting your age ends in 5, use the word lyet, as in Mnye dvadsat' pyat' lyet (mn'eh dvaht-tsuht' p'ah't' l'eht; I am twenty-five years old).
- ✓ If the numeral denoting your age ends in a 6, 7, 8, or 9, or if your age is 10 through 20, use the word lyet, as in Mnye dvadsat' syem' lyet (mn'eh dvaht-tsuht' s'ehm' l'eht; I am twenty-seven years old).

Talking about Family

Family is a big part of Russian culture, so your Russian acquaintances will certainly be curious about yours.

Beginning with basic terms for family members

Your best bet is just to talk about the members of your family with your new Russian friend, using the following words:

- ✓ mat' (maht'; mother)
- ✓ otyets (ah-t'ehts; father)
- ✓ rodityeli (rah-dee-t'eh-lee; parents)
- ✓ syn (sihn; son)
- ✓ synovya (sih-nah-v'ya; sons)
- ✓ doch' (dohch'; daughter)
- ✓ dochri (doh-chee-ree; daughters)
- ✓ zhyena (zhih-nah; wife)
- ✓ muzh (moosh; husband)
- ✓ brat (braht; brother)
- ✓ brat'ya (brah-t'yuh; brothers)
- ✓ syestra (sees-trah; sister)
- ✓ syostry (syos-trih; sisters)

- ✓ ryebyonok (ree-byo-nuhk; child)
- ✓ dyeti (d'eh-tee; children)
- ✓ babushka (bah-boosh-kuh; grandmother)
- ✓ dyedushka (d'eh-doosh-kuh; grandfather)
- ✓ babushka i dyedushka (bah-boosh-kuh ee d'eh-doosh-kuh; grandparents [literally: grandmother and grandfather])
- ✓ vnuk (vnook; grandson)
- ✓ vnuki (vnoo-kee; grandsons)
- ✓ vnuchka (vnooch-kuh; granddaughter)
- ✓ vnuchki (vnooch-kee; granddaughters)
- ✓ vnuki (vnoo-kee; grandchildren)
- ✓ dyadya (dya-d'uh; uncle)
- ✓ tyotya (tyo-t'uh; aunt)
- ✓ kuzyen (koo-zehn; male cousin)
- ✓ kuzina (koo-zee-nuh; female cousin)
- ✓ plyemyannik (plee-m'ah-neek; nephew)
- ✓ plyemyannitsa (plee-m'ah-nee-tsuh; niece)
- ✓ syem'ya (seem'-ya; family)

Talking about family members with the verb “to have”

When talking about your family, use phrases like “I have a brother” and “I have a big family” and “I don’t have any brothers or sisters.” To say these phrases, you need to know how to use the verb yest’ (yest’; to have).

Use the construction U myenya yest’ . . . (oo mee-nya yest’ . . .; I have . . .) when talking about your own family:

- ✓ U myenya yest’ brat (oo mee-n’ah yest’ braht; I have a brother)
- ✓ U myenya yest’ syestra (oo mee-n’ah yest’ sees-trah; I have a sister)

If you want to say that you don't have a brother, a sister, a nephew, and so on, you use the construction U myenya nyet (oo mee-n'ah n'eh) plus a noun in the genitive case:

- ✓ U myenya nyet brata (oo mee-n'ah n'eh braht-uh; I don't have a brother)
- ✓ U myenya nyet syestry (oo mee-n'ah n'eh sees-trih; I don't have a sister)

The genitive plural forms of some family members are irregular, and you need to memorize them:

- ✓ brat'yev (braht'-yehf; brothers)
- ✓ syestyor (sees-tyor; sisters)
- ✓ synovyej (sih-nah-v'ehy; sons)
- ✓ dochyeryej (duh-chee-r'ehy; daughters)
- ✓ dyetyej (dee-t'ehy; children)

Where Do You Work?

Because what you do for living is crucial for a Russian's understanding of who you are, be prepared to answer the question Kto vy po professii? (ktoh vih puh-prah-f'eh-see-ee?; What do you do for living? [literally: What's your job?])

To answer the question about your profession, you just need the phrase Ya + your profession, as in Ya yurist (ya yoo-reest; I am a lawyer) or Ya pryepodavatyel' (ya pree-puh-duh-vah-t'ehl'; I am a professor). Here's a list of the most common professions:

- ✓ agjent po nyedvizhimosti (uh-g'ehnt puh need-vee-zhih-muhs-tee; real-estate agent)
- ✓ aktrisa (ahk-tree-suh; actress)
- ✓ aktyor (ahk-tyor; male actor)
- ✓ archityektor (uhr-khee-t'ehk-tuhr; architect)

- ✓ bibliotekar' (beeb-lee-ah-t'eh-kuhr'; librarian)
- ✓ biznyesmyen (beez-nehs-m'ehn; businessman)
- ✓ bukhgalyer (bookh-gahl-t'ehr; accountant)
- ✓ domokhozyajka (duh-muh-khah-zyahy-kuh; homemaker)
- ✓ inzhyenyer (een-zhee-n'ehr; engineer)
- ✓ khudozhnik (khoo-dohzh-neek; artist, painter)
- ✓ muzykant (moo-zih-kahnt; musician)
- ✓ myedbrat (meed-braht; male nurse)
- ✓ myedsyestra (meed-sees-trah; female nurse)
- ✓ myenyedzhyer (meh-nehd-zhehr; manager)
- ✓ pisatyel' (pee-sah-t'ehl'; author, writer)
- ✓ predprinimatyel (preht-pree-nee-mah-t'ehl'; a businessman or a businesswoman)
- ✓ programmist (pruh-gruh-meest; programmer)
- ✓ pryepodavatyel' (pree-puh-duh-vah-t'ehl'; professor at the university)
- ✓ student (stoo-d'ehnt; male student)
- ✓ studentka (stoo-d'ehnt-kuh; female student)
- ✓ uchityel' (oo-chee-t'ehl'; male teacher)
- ✓ uchityel'nitsa (oo-chee-t'ehl'-nee-tsu; female teacher)
- ✓ vospitatyel' (vuhs-pee-tah-t'ehl'; preschool teacher)
- ✓ vrach (vrahch; physician)
- ✓ yurist (yu-reest; attorney, lawyer)
- ✓ zhurnalist (zhoor-nuh-leest; journalist)
- ✓ zunbnoj vrach (zoob-noy vrahch; dentist)

You can also specify where you work. Russian doesn't have an equivalent for the English "I work for United" or "He works for FedEx." Instead of for, Russian uses its equivalent of at — prepositions v or na. Instead of saying, “I work for United,” a Russian says, “I work at United.”

The Russian prepositions v and na (at) require that the noun denoting a place should take the prepositional case. Here are some of the most common places people work. Say Ya rabotayu . . . (ya rah-boh-tuh-yu . . .; I work . . .) plus one of these phrases:

- ✓ doma (doh-muh; from home)
- ✓ na fabrikye (nuh fah-bree-k'eh; at a light-industry factory)
- ✓ na zavodye (nuh zah-voh-d'eh; at a heavy-industry plant)
- ✓ v bankye (v bahn-k'eh; at a bank)
- ✓ v bibliotyekye (v beeb-lee-ah-t'eh-k'eh; in a library)
- ✓ v bol'nitsye (v bahl'-nee-tseh; at a hospital)
- ✓ v byuro nyedvizhimosti (v b'u-roh need-vee-zhih-muhs-tee; at a real-estate agency)
- ✓ v kommyercheskoj firmye (f kah-m'ehr-chees-kuhy feer-m'eh; at a business firm, company)
- ✓ v laboratorii (v luh-buh-ruh-toh-ree-ee; in a laboratory)
- ✓ v magazinye (v muh-guh-zee-n'eh; at a store)
- ✓ v shkolye (f shkoh-l'eh; at a school)
- ✓ v uchryezhdyenii (v ooch-reezh-d'eh-nee-ee; at an office)
- ✓ v univyersityetye (v oo-nee-veer-see-t'eh-t'eh; at a university)
- ✓ v yuridichyeskoj firmye (v yu-ree-dee-chees-kuhy feer-m'eh; at a law firm)

Let's Get Together: Giving and Receiving Contact Information

Just before you're about to take your leave from a new Russian acquaintance, you probably want to exchange contact information. The easiest way to do this is just hand over your business card and say Eto moja vizitnaya kartochka (eh-tuh mah-yah vee-zeet-nah-yuh kahr-tuhch-kuh; This is my card [literally: this is my visiting card]). In case you don't have a business card, you need to know these phrases:

- ✓ Moj adryes . . . (mohy ah-dr'ehs . . . ; My address is . . .)
- ✓ Moya ulitsa . . . (mah-ya oo-lee-tsuh . . . ; My street is . . .)
- ✓ Moj nomyer doma . . . (mohy noh-m'ehr doh-muh . . . ; My house number is . . .)
- ✓ Moj indyeks . . . (mohy een-dehks . . . ; My zip code is . . .)
- ✓ Moj nomyer tyelyefona (moy noh-mer tee-lee-foh-nuh . . . ; My telephone number is . . .)

After you give your contact info, be sure to get your new friend's address, phone number, and e-mail address. You can use these phrases:

- ✓ Kakoj u vas nomyer tyelyefona? (kuh-kohy oo vahs noh-meer tee-lee-foh-nuh?; What's your phone number?)
- ✓ Kakoj u vas adryes? (kuh-kohy oo vahs ah-d-r'ehs?; What's your address?)
- ✓ Kakoj u vas adryes elektronnoj pochty? (kuh-kohy oo vahs ah-d-r'ehs eh-l'ehk-troh-nuhy pohch-tih?; What's your e-mail address?)

I'm Sorry! I Don't Understand

When you first start conversing in Russian, there will probably be a lot you don't understand. You can signal that you don't understand something in several ways. Choose the phrase you like best, or use them all to really get the message across:

- ✓ Izvinitye, ya nye ponyal. (eez-vee-nee-t'eh ya nee pohh-n'uhl; Sorry, I didn't understand. [masculine])
- ✓ Izvinitye, ya nye ponyala. (eez-vee-nee-t'eh ya nee puh-nee-lah; Sorry, I didn't understand. [feminine])
- ✓ Izvinitye, ya plokho ponimayu po-russki. (eez-vee-nee-t'eh ya ploh-khuh puh-nee-mah-yu pah-roos-kee; Sorry, I don't understand Russian very well.)
- ✓ Govoritye, pozhalujsta, myedlyennyeye! (guh-vah-ree-t'eh pah-zhahl-stuh m'ehd-lee-nee-eh!; Speak more slowly, please!)
- ✓ Kak vy skazali? (kakh vih skuh-zah-lee?; What did you say?)
- ✓ Povtoritye, pozhalujsta. (puhf-tah-ree-t'eh pah-zhahl-luh-stuh; Could you please repeat that?)
- ✓ Vy govoritye po-anglijski? (vih guh-vah-ree-t'eh puh uhn-gleey-skee?; Do you speak English?)

Chapter 5

Enjoying a Drink and a Snack (or a Meal!)

In This Chapter

- ▶ Talking about food fundamentals
 - ▶ Eating breakfast, lunch, and dinner
 - ▶ Shopping for food
 - ▶ Dining in restaurants and cafes

Russians are famous for their bountiful cuisine. Whether you like homemade food or prefer to go out to Russian restaurants, knowing how to talk about food is helpful.

Focusing on Food Basics

Russian has a rich variety of words and expressions related to eating and drinking. In this section, we tell you how to say you're thirsty and hungry in Russian, tell you how to talk about the different eating utensils, and give you an overview of basic Russian table etiquette.

Eating up

When Russians are hungry they don't say "I'm hungry." Instead they say Ya khochu yest' (ya khah-choo yest'; I'm hungry [literally: I want to eat). If you want to ask somebody if he or she is hungry, you say:

- ✓ Ty khochyesh' yest'? (tih khoh-chesh' yest'?; Are you hungry? [literally: Do you want to eat?], informal)
- ✓ Vy khotitye yest'? (vih khah-tee-t'eh yest'?; Are you hungry? [literally: Do you want to eat?], formal and plural)

In addition to these expressions, you may also hear one of the following phrases:

- ✓ Vy golodnyj? (vih gah-lohd-nihy?; Are you hungry?), when speaking to a male
- ✓ Vy golodnaya? (vih gah-lohd-nuh-yuh?; Are you hungry?), when speaking to a female
- ✓ Vy golodnyye? (vih gah-lohd-nih-eh; Are you hungry?), when speaking to multiple people

To answer these questions, you say:

- ✓ Ya golodnyj (ya gah-lohd-nihy; I'm hungry), if you're male
- ✓ Ya golodnaya (ya gah-lohd-nuh-'uh; I'm hungry), if you're female

Note that these phrases, however, have a particular flavor. In Russia golod (goh-luht; hunger) is a word that carries tragic historical connotations. So although it's perfectly acceptable to use the preceding expressions, you should know that they also carry this darker, secondary meaning.

Table 5-1 shows you how to conjugate the Russian verb yest' (yest'; to eat) for all the different pronouns. It's an irregular verb, so you just have to memorize it.

Table 5-1 Conjugation of Yest'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya yem	ya yem	I eat or I am eating ty yesh'	tih yesh'	You eat or you are eating (informal singular)
on/ona/ ono yest	ohn/ah-nah/ ah-noh yest	He/she/it eats or he/she/it is eating my yedim	mih yee-deem	We eat or we are eating
vy yeditye	vih yee-dee-t'eh	You eat or you are eating (formal singular and plural)
oni yedyat	ah-nee -yee-dyat	They eat or they are eating

Drinking up

If you feel thirsty, you say Ya khochu pit' (ya khah-choo peet'; I'm thirsty [literally: I want to drink]). When you want to ask somebody whether he or she is thirsty, you say Ty khochyesh' pit'? (tih khoh-chehsh' peet'?; Are you thirsty? [literally: Do you want to drink?], informal) or Vy khotitye pit'? (vih khah-tee-t'eh peet'?; Are you thirsty? [literally: Do you want to drink?], formal).

The drinking verb pit' (peet'; to drink) has an unruly conjugation, as shown in Table 5-2.

Table 5-2 Conjugation of Pit'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya p'yu	ya p'yu	I drink or I am drinking
ty p'yosh'	tih p'yosh'	You drink or you are drinking (informal singular)

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
on/ona/ ono p'yot	ohn/ah-nah/ ah-noh p'yot	He/she/it drinks or he/she/it is drinking
my p'yom	mih p'yom	We drink or we are drinking
vy p'yotye	vih p'yo-t'eh	You drink or you are drinking (formal singular and plural)
oni p'yut	ah-nee p'yut	They drink or they are drinking

Just as in English, the Russian statement On/ona p'yot (ohn/ah-nah p'yot; He/she drinks) in certain contexts can signify that the person is an alcoholic. If that's not your intention, you may want to add a direct object to the sentence to clarify your meaning.

Some common napitki (nuh-peet-kee; beverages) you may use as the direct objects are

- ✓ sok (sohk; juice)
- ✓ chaj (chahy; tea)
- ✓ kofye (koh-f'eh; coffee)
- ✓ vodka (voht-kuh; vodka)
- ✓ pivo (pee-vuh; beer)
- ✓ vino (vee-noh; wine)
- ✓ kvas (kvahs; a nonalcoholic beverage made of bread)

To say “I drink coffee” in Russian, you say Ya p'yu kofye (yah p'yu koh-f'eh). “I'm drinking vodka” is Ya p'yu vodku (yah p'yu voht'-koo). Notice that, in this sentence, vodka become vodku, the accusative-case form of the noun, because it's the direct object of the sentence.

Using utensils and tableware

Here's a list of the most common eating utensils and tableware:

- ✓ blyudyechko (bl'u-deech-kuh; tea plate)
- ✓ chashka (chahsh-kuh; cup)
- ✓ chaynaya lozhka or lozhyechka (chahy-nuh-'uh lohsh-kuh or loh-zhich-kuh; teaspoon)
- ✓ glubokaya taryelka (gloo-boh-kuh-'uh tuh-r'ehl-kuh; soup bowl)
- ✓ kruzhka (kroosh-kuh; mug)
- ✓ lozhka (lohsh-kuh; spoon)
- ✓ noz (nohsh; knife)
- ✓ salfyetka (sahl-f'ehl-kuh; napkin)
- ✓ stakan (stuh-kahn; glass)
- ✓ taryelka (tah-r'ehl-kuh; plate)
- ✓ vilka (veel-kuh; fork)

If you need to borrow a spoon from someone, you may ask that person by saying Mozhno lozhku? (mohzh-nuh lohsh-koo; Can I have a spoon?).

Making room for the Russian tea tradition

The famous Russian tradition called chayepitiye (chee-pee-tee-eh) is derived of two words — chaj (chahy; tea) and the noun pitiye (pee-tee-eh; drinking). Russians love tea almost as much as Brits do and drink it in huge quantities, usually in big glasses. In the old days, they used a samovar (suh-mah-vahr) — a special, huge tea-kettle, placed in the middle of the table. Russians usually drink tea with sakhar (sah-khuhr; sugar) and home-made berry preserves called varayen'ye (vah-r'ehn-ye).

The construction Mozhno . . . (mohzh-nuh; Can/May I have . . .) + a noun is quite common in Russian. The noun takes the accusative case.

Enjoying Different Meals

Russians eat three meals a day: zavtrak (zahf-truhk; breakfast), obyed (ah-b'eht; dinner), and uzhin (oo-zihh; supper). But Russian meals have quite a few peculiarities, which we tell you about in the following sections.

Russian for “to cook” is gotovit' (gah-toh-veet'). So, if cooking is one of your hobbies, you can now proudly say Ya lyublyu gotovit' (ya lyub-lyu gah-toh-veet'; I like/love to cook) when asked Vy lyubitye gotovit'? (vih lyu-bee-t'eh gah-toh-veet'; Do you like to cook?)

What's for breakfast?

Almost anything!

The Russian breakfast is called zavtrak (zahf-truhk). What can you eat for zavtrak? The real question is what can't you eat! In contrast to American cereal, fruit, or bagels, or the British porridge, or the French croissant and jam, the Russian zavtrak is very flexible. Some Russian breakfast favorites include

- ✓ butyerbrod s kolbasoj (boo-tehr-broht s kuhl-buh-sohy; sausage sandwich)
- ✓ butyerbrod s syrom (boo-tehr-broht s sih-ruhm; cheese sandwich)
- ✓ kasha (kah-shuh; cooked grain served hot with milk, sugar, and butter)
- ✓ kofye s molokom (koh-f'eh s muh-lah-kohm; coffee with milk)

- ✓ kolbasa (kuhl-buh-sah; sausage)
- ✓ kyefir (kee-feer; kefir)
- ✓ syelyodka s kartoshkoj (see-lyot-kuh s kahr-tohsh-kuhy; herring with potatoes)
- ✓ varyen'ye (vuh-r'ehn'-yeh; jam)
- ✓ yaichnitsa (ee-eesh-nee-tshuh; fried or scrambled eggs)

If you're not quite ready for syelyodka s kartoshkoj in the morning, use the following words to order Western-style breakfast foods:

- ✓ behkon (bee-kohn; bacon)
- ✓ bliny (blee-nih; pancakes)
- ✓ kasha (kah-shuh; cereal)
- ✓ kukuruznyye khlop'ya (koo-koo-rooz-nih-eh khlohp'yuh; corn flakes)
- ✓ moloko (muh-lah-koh; milk)
- ✓ ovsyanka (ahf-s'ahn-kuh; oatmeal)
- ✓ sok (sohk; juice)
- ✓ tost (tohst; toast)
- ✓ yajtsa (yay-tshuh; boiled eggs)
- ✓ yaichnitsa (ee-eesh-nee-tshuh; fried/scrambled eggs)

Let's do dinner (not lunch)

Obyed (ah-b'eh; dinner) is the main meal of the day and it's usually eaten as a midday meal between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. For their midday meal, Russians enjoy a four-course meal consisting of zakuski (zuh-koos-kee; appetizers), sup (soop; soup), vtoroye (ftah-roh-yeh; the second or main course), and dyesyert (dee-s'ehrt; dessert), also called tryet'ye (tr'eh-t'yeh; third course).

The most popular Russian zakuski are

- ✓ baklzhannaya ikra (buh-klah-zhah-nuh-yuh eek-rah; eggplant caviar)
- ✓ kapustnyj salat (kah-poost-nihy suh-laht; cabbage salad)
- ✓ salat iz ogurtsov i pomidorov (suh-laht iz ah-goor-tsohf ee puh-mee-doh-ruh; salad made of tomatoes and cucumbers)
- ✓ salat olivye (suh-laht uh-lee-v'ye; meat salad)
- ✓ studyen' (stoo-deen'; beef in aspic)
- ✓ syelyodka (see-lyot-kuh; herring)
- ✓ vinyegryet (vee-nee-gr'eh; mixed vegetable salad made with beets, carrots, and pickle)
- ✓ vyetchina s goroshkom (veet-chee-nah s gah-rohsh-kuhm; ham with peas)

After zakuski comes the sup. You have many different kinds to choose from:

- ✓ borsh' (bohrsh'; beet root soup)
- ✓ bul'yon (bool'-yon; broth)
- ✓ kurinyj sup (koo-ree-nihy soop; chicken soup)
- ✓ molochnyj sup (mah-lohch-nihy soop; milk soup)
- ✓ sh'i (sh'ee; cabbage soup)
- ✓ ukha (oo-khah; fish soup)

After the sup comes the main course, usually called vtoroye (ftah-roh-eh; literally: second course). Here are some typical Russian favorites:

- ✓ bifshtyeks (beef-shtehks; beefsteak)
- ✓ bifstroganov (behf-stroh-guh-nuh; beef stroganoff)
- ✓ gamburgyer (gahm-boor-geer; hamburger) (Russians are still getting used to this one, but they do prefer kotlyety to gamburgery; old habits die hard.)

- ✓ golubtsy (guh-loop-tsih; stuffed cabbage rolls)
- ✓ griby (gree-bih; mushrooms)
- ✓ kotlyety (kaht-l'eh-tih; ground meat patties)
- ✓ kotlyety s kartoshkoj (kaht-l'eh-tih s kuhr-tohsh-kuhy; meat patty with potatoes)
- ✓ kuritsa (koo-ree-tseh; chicken)
- ✓ makarony (muh-kuh-roh-nih; pasta)
- ✓ pitsa (pee-tseh; pizza) (This one is a relative novelty in Russian cuisine.)
- ✓ pyechyen' (p'eh-cheen'; liver)
- ✓ ryba (rih-buh; fish)
- ✓ schnitzyel' (shnee-tsehl'; schnitzel)
- ✓ sosiski (sah-sees-kee; frankfurters)
- ✓ zharkoye (zhuhr-koh-ee; any meat cooked in an oven)

The main course is usually served with kartoshka (kuhr-tohsh-kuh; potatoes), makarony (muh-kuh-roh-nih; pasta), and ris (rees; rice), and it's always served with khlyeb (khlep; bread).

After the main course comes dyesyert (dee-s'ehrt; dessert), or tryet'ye (tr'eh-t'ye; third course). This course usually consists of some kind of

- ✓ kompot (kahm-poht; compote)
- ✓ kisyel' (kee-s'ehl'; drink made of fruit and starch)
- ✓ morozhenoye (mah-roh-zhuh-nuh-eh; ice cream)
- ✓ pyechyen'ye (pee-chehn'-eh; cookies)
- ✓ pirog (pee-rohk; pie)
- ✓ tort (tohrt; cake)

Some typical beverages that Russians drink in the middle of the day are sok (sohk; juice), chaj (chahy; tea), kofye (koh-f'eh; coffee), and voda (vah-dah; water), although the latter doesn't enjoy as much popularity as it does in the United States, for example.

A simple supper

The last meal of the day is called uzhin (oo-zihhn; supper), and it's usually eaten with the family around the kitchen or dining room table. Just as with obyed (dinner), soup and a main course are often served for uzhin. Butyerbrody (boo-tehr-broh-dih; open-sided sandwiches) may also be served, and several cups of chaj (chahy; tea) often conclude the evening meal. Some other Russian supper favorites include

- ✓ blinchiki (bleen-chee-kee; crepes)
- ✓ pyel'myeni (peel'-m'eh-nee; Russian ravioli)
- ✓ syrniki (sihr-nee-kee; patties made of cottage cheese)
- ✓ tvorog so smyetanoj (tvoh-ruhk suh smee-tah-nuhy; cottage cheese with sour cream)

Going Out for Groceries

If you want to make a quick trip to the produktovyyj magazin (pruh-dook-toh-vihy muh-guh-zeen; grocery store) or spend a leisurely day at the Russian rynok (rih-nuhk; market), you have to know how to buy food products in Russian.

Picking out produce

Buying produce at a farmers' market is very common. Russians are convinced that produce is much fresher there than in regular grocery stores. Table 5-3 has a list of some of the more popular produce items you may want to buy:

Table 5-3		Produce

Eating Out with Ease

Eating out at Russian restaurants and cafes can be a lot of fun, especially if you know Russian. In the following sections, we go over the different kinds of restaurants you can go to, how to reserve your table, the right way to order a meal, and how to pay your bill.

Deciding on a place to eat

You can find lots of different places to eat out, Russian-style, depending on your mood and budget. If you're in the mood for a night of culinary delights, with a full eight-course meal, lots of drinks, and live music, check out a fancy Russian ryestoran (ree-stah-rah-n; restaurant).

A more affordable everyday option is a kafye (kuh-feh; cafe), which can serve anything from coffee and ice cream, to pancakes, to pies. Cafes are usually privately owned and have such interesting names (often unrelated to food) that if you pass one of them on the street, you may not even recognize it as a place to eat! But if you follow that delicious smell under your nose, you may wind up at one of these delightful little places:

- ✓ blinnaya (blee-nuh-yuh; cafe that serves pancakes)
- ✓ chyeburychnya (chee-boo-r'ehch-nuh-yuh; cafe that serves meat pies)
- ✓ kafye-morozhenoye (kuh-feh mah-roh-zhuh-nuh-eh; ice-cream parlor)
- ✓ pirozhkovya (pee-rahsh-koh-vuh-yuh; cafe that serves small pies)
- ✓ pyel'myennya (peel'-m'ehn-nuh-yuh; place that serves Russian ravioli)
- ✓ pyshychnaya (pih-shihch-nuh-yuh; donut shop)
- ✓ stolovaya (stah-loh-vuh-yuh; dining room)
- ✓ zakusochnaya (zuh-koo-suhch-nuh-yuh; snack bar)

After you decide which restaurant to go to, pick up the phone and make a reservation:

- ✓ If you're a man, say, Ya khotyel by zakazat' stolik na syegodnya (ya khah-t'ehl bih zuh-kuh-zah't' stoh-leek nuh see-vohd-n'uh; I'd like to reserve a table for tonight).
- ✓ If you're a woman, say, Ya khotyela by zakazat' stolik na syegodnya (ya khah-tye-luh bih zuh-kuh-zah't' stoh-leek nuh see-vohd-n'uh; I'd like to reserve a table for tonight).

The art of ordering a meal

After you arrive at the restaurant and are seated by the myetrdotyel' (mehtr-dah-tehl; maitre d'), the ofitsiant (uh-fee-tsih-ahnt; waiter) or ofitsiantka (uh-fee-tsih-ahnt-kuh; waitress) will bring you a myenyu (mee-n'u; menu). In a nice restaurant, all the dishes in the menu are usually listed in English as well as Russian.

When you open the menu, you'll notice it's divided into several subsections, which is how items are usually eaten and ordered in a Russian restaurant:

- ✓ zakuski (zuh-koos-kee; appetizers)
- ✓ supy (soo-pih; soups)
- ✓ goryachiye blyuda (gah-rya-chee-eh bly'u-duh; main dishes)
- ✓ sladkiye blyuda (slaht-kee-eh bl'u-duh; dessert)
- ✓ alkogol'nye napitki (ahl-kah-gohl'-nih-eh nuh-peet-kee; alcoholic drinks)
- ✓ bezalkogol'niye napitki (beez-uhl-kah-gohl'-nih-eh nuh-peet-kee; nonalcoholic beverages)

When the waiter asks you Chto vy budyetye zakazyvat'? (shtoh vih boo-d'eh-t'eh zuh-kah-zih-vuht'?; What would you like to order?), just say Ya budu + the name of the item you're ordering in the accusative case. (For more on forming the accusative, see Chapter 2.) For example, you may say something like: Ya budu kotlyetu s kartofelyem i salat iz pomidorov (ya boo-doo kaht-l'eh-tih s kahr-toh-fee-l'ehm ee suh-laht ees puh-mee-doh-ruh; I'll have meat patty with potatoes and tomato salad).

The waiter may also ask you specifically Chto vy budyete pit'? (shtoh vih boo-dee-t'eh peet'?; What would you like to drink?). To answer, you simply say Ya budu (ya boo-doo; I will have) + the name of the drink you want in the accusative case.

When you say Ya budu + the food or drink item, what you're really saying is Ya budu yest' . . . (ya boo-doo yest' . . . ; I will eat . . .) or Ya budu pit' . . . (ya boo-doo peet' . . . ; I will drink . . .). The verbs yest' (yest'; to eat) and pit' (peet'; to drink) force the noun coming after them into the accusative case because it's a direct object. When you order, you skip the verbs yest' and pit', but they're implied.

Receiving and paying the bill

When it comes time to ask for the bill, don't expect the waiter to bring it automatically. When the waiter is in the vicinity, try to attract his attention by either waving or smiling to him or just saying (loudly, if necessary — Russians are very direct!) Rasschitajte nas pozhalujsta! (ruh-shee-tahy-t'eh nahs pah-zhahl-stuh!; Check please!)

If the waiter returns before you ask him for the bill, he may tell you how much you owe by saying S vas . . . (s vahs; you owe [literally: from you is due . . .]). If your meal costs 200 rubles 41 kopecks, the waiter will say S vas dvesti rublyej sorok odna kopyejka (s vahs dv'ehs-tee-roob-l'ehy soh-ruhk ahd-nah kah-p'ehy-kuh; You owe two hundred rubles and forty-one kopeks).

Whether you're hardcore or just window shopping, this chapter gives you what you need to know.

Where and How to Buy Things the Russian Way

You can buy anything (other than food) in either a univyermagi (oo-nee-veer-mah-gee; department stores) or magaziny (muh-guh-zee-nih; stores). If you're looking for something specific, you'll want to check out some of the following stores:

- ✓ antikvarnyj magazin (uhn-tee-kvahr-nihy muh-guh-zeen; antique store)
- ✓ aptyeka (uhp-tye-kuh; pharmacy)
- ✓ byel'yo (beel'-yo; intimate apparel)
- ✓ dyetskaya odyezhdá (d'eht-skuh-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; children's apparel)
- ✓ elyektrotovary (eh-l'ehk-truh-tah-vah-rih; electrical goods)

- ✓ fototovary (foh-tuh-tah-vah-rih; photography store)
- ✓ galanteryeya (guh-luhn-tee-r'eh-yuh; haberdashery)
- ✓ gazyetnyj kiosk (guh-z'eh-neh-rih kee-ohsk; newsstand)
- ✓ golovnyye ubory (guh-lahv-nih-eh oo-boh-rih; hats)
- ✓ kantsyelyarskiye tovary (kuhn-tsih-l'ahr-skee-eh tah-vah-rih; stationery)
- ✓ khozyajstvyennyj magazin (khah-z'ay-stv'eh-nihy muh-guh-zeen; household goods, hardware store)
- ✓ komissionnyj magazin (kuh-mee-see-ohn-nihy muh-guh-zeen; secondhand store)
- ✓ kosmyetika (kahs-m'eh-tee-kuh; makeup)
- ✓ muzhskaya odyezhda (moosh-skah-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; men's apparel)
- ✓ muzykal'nyye instrumyenty (moo-zih-kahl'nih-eh een-stroo-myen-tih; musical instruments)
- ✓ odyezhdha (ah-d'ehzh-duh; clothing)
- ✓ parfumeriya (puhr-fyu-m'eh-ree-yuh; perfumery)
- ✓ posuda (pah-soo-duh; tableware)
- ✓ sportivnyye tovary (spahr-teev-nih-eh tah-vah-rih; sporting goods)
- ✓ suveniry (soo-vee-nee-rih; souvenir store)
- ✓ tkani (tkah-nee; textiles)
- ✓ tsvyety (tsvee-tih; florist)
- ✓ vyerkhnyaya odyezhdha (vyerkh-n'eh-yuh ah-dyezhd-duh; outerwear)
- ✓ yuvelirnyj magazin (yu-vee-leer-nihy muh-gah-zeen; jewelry store)
- ✓ zhyenskaya odyezhdha (zhehn-skuh-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; women's apparel)

The easiest way to find out whether a Russian store is open is to go there and look for a sign hanging in the door or window with one of these two words on it: Otkryto (aht-krih-tuh; Open) or Zakryto (zuh-krit-tuh; Closed). The next best way is just to call. Here are some ways to ask about store hours:

- ✓ Do kotorogo chasa otkryt magazin? (duh kuh-toh-ruh-vuh chah-suh aht-kriht muh-guh-zeen; 'Til what time is the store open?)
- ✓ V voskryesyen'ye magazin otkryt? (v vuhs-kree-s'ehn'yeh muh-guh-zeen aht-kriht; Is the store open on Sunday?)
- ✓ Kogda magazin zakryvayetsya? (kahg-dah muh-guh-zeen zuh-krih-vah-eht-s'uh; When does the store close?)
- ✓ Kogda zavtra otkryvayetsya magazin? (kahg-dah zahf-truh uht-krih-vah-eht-s'uh muh-guh-zeen; When does the store open tomorrow?)

You Wear It Well: Shopping for Clothes

Russian folk wisdom has it that people's first impression of you is based on the way you're dressed. That's why you're likely to see Russians well-dressed in public, even in informal situations. To keep up, you'll want the phrases in the following sections.

Seeking specific items of clothing

If you're looking for outerwear, you want to go to the store or department called vyerkhnyaya odyezhda (v'ehrkhn'yeh-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; outerwear). There you'll find things like a

- ✓ kurtka (koort-kuh; short coat or warmer jacket)
- ✓ pal'to (puhl'-toh; coat)
- ✓ plash' (plahsh'; raincoat or trench coat)

If you need a new pair of shoes, drop in to the store or department called obuv' (oh-boof'; footwear) and choose among

- ✓ bosonozhki (buh-sah-nohsh-kee; women's sandals)
- ✓ botinki (bah-teen-kee; laced shoes)
- ✓ krossovki (krah-sohf-kee; sneakers)
- ✓ sandalii (suhn-dah-lee-ee; sandals)
- ✓ sapogi (suh-pah-gee; boots)
- ✓ tufli (toof-lee; lighter shoes for men and most shoes for women)

In the galantyeryeya (guh-luhn-tee-r'eh-yuh; haberdashery) you can buy all kinds of little things, both for her and for him, such as

- ✓ chulki (chool-kee; stockings)
- ✓ chyemodan (chee-mah-dahn; suitcase)
- ✓ galstuk (gahl-stook; necktie)
- ✓ khalat (khuh-laht; robe)
- ✓ kolgotki (kahl-goht-kee; pantyhose)
- ✓ kupal'nik (koo-pahl'-neek; bathing suit)
- ✓ noski (nahs-kee; socks)
- ✓ nosovoj platok (nuh-sah-vohy pluh-tohk; handkerchief)
- ✓ ochki (ahch-kee; eyeglasses)
- ✓ pizhama (pee-zhah-muh; pajamas)
- ✓ pyerchatki (peer-chaht-kee; gloves)
- ✓ raschyoska (ruh-sh'yos-kuh; hairbrush/comb)
- ✓ ryemyen' (ree-myen'; belt)
- ✓ sumka (soom-kuh; purse or bag)
- ✓ varyezhki (vah-reesh-kee; mittens)
- ✓ zontik (zohn-teek; umbrella)

In the store called muzhkaya odyezhda (moosh-skah-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; men's apparel), you can find the following:

- ✓ bryuki (bryu-kee; pants)
- ✓ dzhinsy (dzhihn-sih; jeans)
- ✓ futbolka (foot-bohl-kuh; football jersey/sports shirt)
- ✓ kostyum (kahs-tyum; suit)
- ✓ maika (mahy-kuh; T-shirt)
- ✓ pidzhak (peed-zhahk; suit jacket)
- ✓ plavki (plahf-kee; swimming trunks)
- ✓ rubashka (roo-bahsh-kuh; shirt)
- ✓ shorty (shohr-tih; shorts)
- ✓ svitehr (svee-tehr; sweater)
- ✓ trusy (troo-sih; men's underwear)
- ✓ zhilyet (zhih-l'eh; vest)

In the store zhyensaya odyezhda (zhehn-skuh-yuh ah-d'ehzh-duh; women's apparel), you can find a

- ✓ bluzka (bloos-kuh; blouse)
- ✓ kofta (kohf-tuh; cardigan)
- ✓ lifchik (leef-cheek; bra)
- ✓ plat'ye (plah-t'yeh; dress)
- ✓ sarafan (suh-ruh-fahn; sleeveless dress)
- ✓ yubka (yup-kuh; skirt)
- ✓ zhenskoye byel'yo (zhehn-skuh-eh beel'-yo; women's underwear)

And if you need a hat, drop by the store or department called golovnyye ubory (guh-lahv-nih-ye oo-boh-rih; hats) and buy a

- ✓ kyepka (k'ehp-kuh; cap)
- ✓ platok (pluh-tohk; head scarf)
- ✓ shapka (shahp-kuh; warm winter hat)

- ✓ sharf (shahrf; scarf)
- ✓ shlyapa (shl'ah-puh; hat)

Describing items in color

What's your favorite color? When picking out clothes, you may want to tell the salesperson Ya lyublyu krasnyj tsvyet (ya l'oob-l'oo krahs-nihy tsveht; I like red [literally: I like the color red]) or Ya lyublyu zelyonyj tsvyet (ya lyub-lyu zee-lyo-nihy tsveht; I like green [literally: I like the color green]). Some common colors are

- ✓ byelyj (b'eh-lihy; white)
- ✓ chyornyj (chyor-nihy; black)
- ✓ goluboj (guh-loo-bohy; light blue)
- ✓ korichnyevyj (kah-reech-nee-vihy; brown)
- ✓ krasnyj (krahs-nihy; red)
- ✓ oranzhyevyj (ah-rah-zhiv-vihy; orange)
- ✓ purpurnyj (poor-poor-nihy; purple)
- ✓ rozovyj (roh-zuh-vihy; pink)
- ✓ siniy (see-neey; blue)
- ✓ syeryj (s'eh-rihy; gray)
- ✓ zhyoltyj (zhohl-tihy; yellow)
- ✓ zelyonyj (zee-lyo-nihy; green)

The names for colors in Russian are considered adjectives. So when you're describing the color of an item you want, make sure the color agrees in case, number, and gender with the noun it modifies. (For more on adjective-noun agreement, see Chapter 2.) For example, a black hat in the nominative case is chyornaya shlyapa (chohr-nuh-yuh shl'ah-puh), a black dress is chyornoye plat'ye (chohr-nuh-eh plaht'yeh), and black shoes are chyornyye botinki (chohr-nih-eh bah-tehn-keh).

If you want to ask for a different shade of a color, use the phrase A potyemnyeye/posvyetlyye yest'? (uh puh-teem-n'eh-eh/puhs-veet-l'eh-eh yest'?; Do you have it in a darker/lighter shade?). Other words that may come in handy are odnotsvyetnyj (uhd-nah-tsveht-nihy; solid), and raznotsvyetnyj (ruhzh-nah-tsveht-nihy; patterned).

Finding the right size

Here are some of the words and phrases you may hear or say while searching for your right size:

- ✓ Razmehr (ruhzh-m'ehr; size)
- ✓ Ya noshu razmyer . . . (ya nah-shoo ruhzh-m'ehr; I wear size . . .)
- ✓ Eto moj razmyer. (eh-tuh mohy ruhzh-m'ehr; This is my size.)
- ✓ Kakoj vash/u vas razmyer? (kuh-kohy vahsh/oo vahs ruhzh-m'ehr?; What's your size?)

Trying on clothing

Before you decide you want to nosit' (nah-seet; wear) something, you probably want to try it on first. To ask to try something on, you say Mozhno pomyerit'? (mohzh-nuh pah-m'eh-reet'?; May I try this on?). You'll most likely hear Da, pozhalujsta (dah, pah-zhah-luh-stuh; Yes, please).

When you try something on, and it fits you well, you say Eto khorosho sidit (eh-tuh khuh-rah-shoh see-deet; It fits). If it doesn't fit, you say Eto plokhho sidit (eh-tuh ploh-khuh see-deet; It doesn't fit). Here are some other adjectives you may use to describe the clothes you're considering buying:

- ✓ khoroшыj (kha-roh-shihy; good)
- ✓ plokhoj (plah-khohy; bad)
- ✓ bol'shoj (bahl'-shohy; big)

✓ malyenkij (mah-leen'-keey; small)

✓ dlinnyj (dlee-nihy; long)

✓ korotkij (kah-roht-keey; short)

Don't forget when using these adjectives to add the correct ending, which depends on the case, number, and gender of the noun the adjective refers to. (For more on adjective-noun agreement, see Chapter 2.)

The item you've just tried on may turn out to be too big or too small. To say something is too big, use this construction: The name of the item + mnye (mn'eh; to me) followed by

✓ vyelik (vee-leek; too big) for masculine nouns

✓ vyelika (vee-lee-kah; too big) for feminine nouns

✓ vyeliko (vee-lee-koh; too big) for neuter nouns

✓ vyeliki (vee-lee-kee; too big) for plural nouns

If the raincoat you just tried on is too big, for example, you say Etot plash' mnye vyelik (eh-tuht plash' mn'eh vee-leek; This raincoat is too big for me).

If, on the other hand, something is too small, you say the name of the item + mnye + one of the following:

✓ mal (mahl; too small) for masculine nouns

✓ mala (muh-lah; too small) for feminine nouns

✓ malo (muh-loh; too small) for neuter nouns

✓ maly (muh-lih; too small) for plural nouns

This or That? Deciding What You Want

The blue dress or the black pants. How do you decide? Can't help you there, but this section helps you discuss your dilemma.

Expressing likes and dislikes

When people go shopping, they often base their final decisions on one simple thing: You either like something or you don't! To express that you like something in Russian, you say Mnye (mn'eh; literally: to me) + a form of the verb nraivitsya (nrah-veet-s'eh; to like) + the thing(s) you like. The verb must agree in number (and gender, for past tense) with the thing(s) you like. It's a peculiar construction: What you're saying literally is "To me, something is liked." If you like a particular coat, for example, you say Mnye nraivitsya eta kurtka (mn'eh nrah-veet-s'uh eh-tuh koort-kuh; I like this coat).

Table 6-1 has some other forms of the verb nraivitsya you may need to use, depending on the thing(s) you're talking about and the tense you're using.

Table 6-1	Tenses of Nraivitsya
Tense	Verb
Present	nraivitsya (singular)
	nraivyatsya (plural)
Past	nraivilsya (masculine) nraivilas' (feminine) nraivilos' (neuter)
	nraivilis' (plural)
Future	budyet nraivitsya (singular)
	budut nraivitsya (plural)

If you want to express that you don't like something, you simply add nye (nee; not) before nraivitsya, as in Mnye nye nraivitsya eta kurtka (mnye nee nrah-veet-s'uh eh-tuh koort-kuh; I don't like this coat).

Comparing two items

To compare things, Russian uses comparative adjectives like bol'shye (bohl'-sheh; bigger), myen'shye (m'ehn'-sheh; smaller), luchshye (looch-sheh; better), and khuzhye (khoo-zheh; worse). Just as in English, you say the name of the item + the comparative adjectives (for instance, bigger or smaller) + the word chyem (chyem; than) + the other item. And here's some good news: Comparative adjectives do not need to agree in case, number, and gender with the nouns they refer to. They use the same form for every noun.

Say you're trying on two pairs of shoes. You like the second pair better: It's more comfortable, lighter, and cheaper, too. This is what you may be thinking to yourself: Eti tufli udobnyeye, lyegchye, i dyeshyevlye chyem tye (eh-tee toof-lee oo-dohb-n'eh-eh l'ehkh-cheh ee dee-shehv-l'eh chyem tye; These shoes are more comfortable, lighter, and cheaper than those).

In addition to the words we use here, here are some other commonly used comparative adjectives in Russian:

- ✓ dlinnyeye (dl'eh-nye-eh; longer)
- ✓ dorozhye (dah-roh-zheh; more expensive)
- ✓ dyeshyevlye (dee-shehv-l'eh; cheaper)
- ✓ intyeryesnyeye (een-tee-r'ehs-n'eh-eh; more interesting)
- ✓ kholodnyeye (khuh-lahd-n'eh-eh; colder)
- ✓ korochoye (kah-rohch-cheh; shorter)
- ✓ krasivyeye (kruh-seh-v'eh-eh; more beautiful)
- ✓ tolsh'ye (tohl-sh'e; thicker)
- ✓ ton'shye (tohn'-sheh; thinner)
- ✓ tyazhyelyeye (tee-zhih-l'eh-eh; heavier)
- ✓ tyePLYeye (teep-l'eh-eh; warmer)

Talking about what you like most (or least)

When you look at several items (or people or things), you may like one of them most of all. To communicate this preference, you need to use the superlative form of the adjective. Just like in English, Russian simply adds the word samyj (sah-mihy; the most) before the adjective and noun you're talking about.

To express the superlative form of the adjective, put samyj before the neutral adjective form, not the comparative adjective form, as given in the previous section. For a list of superlative adjective forms, see Table 6-2.

Samyj is an adjective and must agree in case, number, and gender with the nouns and other adjectives it modifies. (For details on adjective-noun agreement, see Chapter 2.) Table 6-2 has the forms of samyj you need to use.

	Masculine	Feminine	Neuter
Singular	samyj (sah-mihy)	samaya (sah-muh-yuh)	samoye (sah-muh-yuh)
Plural	samyje (sah-mih-eh)	samyje (sah-mih-eh)	samyje (sah-mih-eh)

If one coat is the lightest of all the coats you tried on, you may want to say Eta kurtka samaya lyogkaya (eh-tuh koort-kuh sah-muh-ye lyohk-kuh-ye; This coat is the lightest). If you're particularly fond of one pair of earrings, you can say Eti syer'gi samyje krasivyye (eh-tee syer'-gee sah-mih-eh krah-see-vih-eh; These earrings are the most beautiful ones).

To communicate that something is the worst in its category, Russians today use the word samyj plokhoy (sah-mihy plah-khohy; worst [literally: most bad]) for masculine nouns, samaya plokhaya (sah-muh-yuh plah-khah-yuh) for feminine nouns, samoye plokhoye (sah-muh-eh plah-khoh-eh) for neuter nouns, and samye plokhoye (sah-mih-eh plah-khee-eh) for plural nouns.

So if you particularly dislike one dress, you say Eto plat'ye samoye plokhoye (eh-tuh plah-t'yeh sah-muh-eh plah-khoh-eh; That dress is the worst [literally: That dress is the most bad]).

You Gotta Pay to Play

To inquire about the price of any item, ask Skol'ko stoit . . . ? (skohl'-kuh stoh-eet . . . ?; How much does . . . cost?). After you hear the price, you may want to specify your question to avoid the confusion:

- ✓ Za kilogram? (zuh kee-lahg-rahm; Per kilo?)
- ✓ Za shtuku? (zuh shtoo-koo; Per item?)
- ✓ Za yash'ik? (zuh ya-sh'eeek; Per box?)

When you're buying several items or paying for your meal at a restaurant, a good phrase to use is Skol'ko s myenya? (skohl'-kuh s mee-n'ah; How much do I owe?) Here are some other good phrases:

- ✓ Eto ochyen' dorogo. (eh-tuh oh-cheen' doh-ruh-guh; It's very expensive.)
- ✓ Eto dyoshyevo! (eh-tuh dyo-shih-vuh; It's cheap!)
- ✓ Ya voz'mu eto. (ya vahz'-moo eh-tuh; I'll take it.)
- ✓ Ya eto kuplyu. (ya eh-tuh koo-pl'oo; I'll buy it.)

Chapter 7

Making Leisure a Top Priority

In This Chapter

- ▶ Planning to go out
 - ▶ Sharing your impressions about an event
 - ▶ Discussing your hobbies
 - ▶ Reading everything
 - ▶ Enjoying nature
 - ▶ Collecting things, working with your hands, and playing sports

This chapter is all about leisure, whether going out on the town the Russian way or playing sports. And with the phrases you find here, you won't be short on words.

Together Wherever We Go: Making Plans to Go Out

Going out on the town with friends is always more fun. Here we give you all the words and expressions you need to invite your friends out with you, and we tell you how to accept or decline invitations you receive. We also tell you how to find out what time an event starts.

Here are common phrases people use to invite you to do things with them:

- ✓ Pojdyom v . . . (pahy-dyom v . . .; Let's go to the . . . [informal])
- ✓ Pojdyomtye v . . . (pahy-dyom-tye v . . .; Let's go to the . . . [formal or plural])
- ✓ Davaj pojdyom v . . . (duh-vahy pahy-dyom v . . .; Let's go to the . . . [informal])
- ✓ Davajtye pojdyom v . . . (duh-vahy-tye pahy-dyom v . . .; Let's go to the . . . [formal or plural])
- ✓ Ty khochyesh' pojti v . . . (tih khoh-chehsh' pahy-tee v . . .; Do you want to go to the . . . [informal])
- ✓ Vy khotitye pojti v . . . (vih khah-tee-tye pahy-tee v . . .; Do you want to go to the . . . [formal or plural])

To let everybody around know that you want to go somewhere tonight, you may say Ya khochu pojti v . . . syegodnya vyechyerom (*ya khah-choo pahy-tee f . . . see-vohd-nye vye-cheh-ruh*m; I want to go to . . . tonight).

After you ask someone to make plans with you (or after someone asks you), the big question is whether to decline or accept.

Russians don't easily take nyet for an answer! So if you need to decline an invitation, we recommend softening your response with one of the following:

- ✓ K sozhalyenyu, ya nye mogu. (k suh-zhuh-lye-nee-yu ya nee mah-goo; Unfortunately, I can't.)
- ✓ Ochyen' zhal', no ya v etot dyen' zanyat. (oh-chen' zhahl' noh ya v eh-tuht dyen' zah-neet; I am very sorry, but I am busy that day.)
- ✓ Mozhyet byt', v drugoj dyen'? (moh-zhiht biht' v droo-gohy dyen'?; Maybe on a different day?)

- ✓ Mozhyet, luchshye pojdyom v kafye? (moh-zhiht looch-shih pahy-dyohm f kah-feh?; Maybe we could go to a coffee shop instead?)

Here are some ways to spice up your da:

- ✓ Spasibo, s udovol'stviyem! (spah-see-buh s oo-dah-vohl'-stvee-eem!; Thank you, I would be happy to!)
- ✓ Bol'shoye spasibo, ya obyazatyel'no pridu. (bahl'-shoh-eh spuh-see-buh, ya ah-bee-zah-teel'-nuh pree-doo; Thank you very much, I'll come by all means.)
- ✓ Spasibo, a kogda? Vo skol'ko? (spah-see-buh ah kahg-dah? vah skohl'-kuh?; Thank you, and when? What time?)

Going Out on the Town

Whether going out with friends or family, you have lots of options for your weekend entertainment.

On the big screen: Going to the movies

Feel like seeing a fil'm (feel'm; movie) this weekend? Whereas English just uses the word theater for a movie theater, Russian is more exact in expressing the difference between a movie theater and a play, opera, or ballet theater. The word kino (kee-noh) or the more formal kinoteatr (kee-nuh-tee-ahtr) are the only words you can use to denote movie theater in Russian.

Check out the following list for the names of different film genres in Russian:

- ✓ dyetyektiv (deh-tehk-teef; detective film)
- ✓ ekranizatsiya khudozhyestvyennoj lityeratury (eh-kruh-nee-zah-tsih-ye khoo-doh-zhihs-tveenuhy lee-tee-ruh-too-rih; screen version of a book)
- ✓ fil'm uzhasov (feel'm oo-zhuh-suhf; horror film)

- ✓ komyediya (kah-mye-dee-ye; comedy)
- ✓ mul'tfil'm (mool't-feel'm; cartoon)
- ✓ myuzikl (m'yu-zeekl; musical)
- ✓ nauhcnyaya fantastika (nuh-ooch-nuh-ye fuhn-tahs-tee-kuh; science fiction)
- ✓ priklyuchyenchyeskij fil'm (pree-klyu-chyen-chees-keey feel'm; adventure film)
- ✓ trillyer (tree-lyer; thriller)
- ✓ vyestyern (vehs-tehrn; western)

If you decide to go to the movies, you need a bilyet (bee-lyet; ticket). To ask for a ticket, customers often use a kind of a stenographic language. Kassiry (kuh-see-rih; cashiers) are generally impatient people, and you may have a line behind you. So try to make your request for a ticket as brief as you can. If you want to go to the 2:30 p.m. show, you say one of these phrases:

- ✓ Odin na chyetyrnadtsat' tridtsat'. (ah-deen nah chee-tihr-nuh-tsuht' treet-tsuht'; One for 2:30.)
- ✓ Dva na chyetyrnadtsat' tridtsat'. (dvah nah chee-tihr-nuh-tsuht' treet-tsuht'; Two for 2:30.)

It's classic: Taking in the Russian ballet and theater

If a Russian ballet company happens to be in your area, don't miss it! And if you're in Russia, don't even think of leaving without seeing at least one performance either in Moscow's Bol'shoy Theater or St. Petersburg's Mariinski Theater. No ballet in the world can compare with the Russian balyet (buh-lyet; ballet) in its grand, powerful style; lavish décor; impeccable technique; and proud preservation of the classical tradition.

The Russian teatr (tee-ahr; theater) is just as famous and impressive as the ballet, but most theater performances are in Russian, so you may not understand a lot until you work on your Russian for a while. Still, if you want to see great acting and test your Russian knowledge, by all means check out the theater, too!

When you buy tickets, you may hear Gdye vy khoti-tye sidyet'? (gdye vih khah-tee-tee see-dyet'?; Where do you want to sit?) or Kakoj ryad? (kah-kohy ryat?; Which row?). If you prefer a centrally located seat, you say V partyerye (f puhr-teh-ree; In the orchestra seats). Here are some other seating options you may want to consider, depending on your budget and taste:

- ✓ lozha (loh-zhuh; box seat)
- ✓ byenuar (bee-noo-ahr; lower boxes)
- ✓ byel'etazh (behl'-eh-tahsh; tier above byenuar)
- ✓ yarus (ya-roos; tier above bel'etazh)
- ✓ galyeryeya (guh-lee-rye-ye; the last balcony)
- ✓ balkon (buhl-kohn; balcony)

During the antrakt (uhn-trahkt; intermission), take a walk around the koridor (kuh-ree-dohr; hall) and look at the pictures of the past and current aktyory (uhk-tyo-rih; actors), aktrisy (uhk-tree-sih; actresses), balyeriny (buh-lee-ree-nih; ballerinas), and rezhissy-ory (ree-zhih-syo-rih; theater directors) that are usually displayed. Another thing you may want to do is grab a bite to eat at the bufyet (boo-fyet; buffet), which is designed to make you feel that coming to the theater is a very special occasion. Typical buffet delicacies are: butyerbrod s ikroj (boo-tehr-broht s eek-rohy; a caviar sandwich), butyerbrod s kopchyonoj ryboj (boo-tehr-broht s kuhp-chyo-nuhy rih-buhy; a smoked fish sandwich), pirozhnyye (pee-rohzh-nih-ee; pastries), shokolad (shuh-kah-laht; chocolate), and shampanskoye (shuhm-pahn-skuh-ye; champagne).

Culture club: Visiting a museum

Russians are a nation of museum-goers. Visiting a muzyej (moo-zyey; museum) is seen as a “culture” trip. In almost every city, you’re likely to find the following museums to satisfy your hunger for culture:

- ✓ Etnograficheskiy muzyej (eht-nuh-gruh-fee-chees-keey moo-zyey; ethnographic museum)
- ✓ Istoricheskiy muzyej (ee-stah-ree-chees-keey moo-zyey; historical museum)
- ✓ Kartinnaya galyeryeya (kuhr-tee-nuh-ya guh-lee-rye-ya; art gallery)
- ✓ Muzyej istorii goroda (moo-zyey ees-toh-ree-ee goh-ruh-duh; museum of the town history)
- ✓ Muzyej istorii kraya (moo-zyey ees-toh-ree-ee krah-ya; regional history museum)

Also, you may want to visit any of the large number of Russian museums dedicated to famous and not-so-famous Russian pisatyeli (pee-sah-tye-lee; writers), poety (pah-eh-tih; poets), aktyory (uhk-tyo-rih; actors) and aktrisy (uhk-tree-sih; actresses), khudozhniki (khoo-dohzh-nee-kee; artists), uchyonnye (oo-choh-nih-ye; scientists), and politiki (pah-lee-tee-kee; politicians). For example, in St. Petersburg alone, you find the A. S. Pushkin museum, the F. M. Dostoyevsky museum, A. A. Akhmatova museum, and many, many more — almost enough for every weekend of the year!

Some other words and expressions you may need in a museum are

- ✓ ekskursant (ehks-koor-sahnt; member of a tour group)
- ✓ ekskursiya (ihks-koor-see-ya; tour)
- ✓ ekskurovod (ihks-koor-sah-voht; guide)
- ✓ eksponat (ihks-pah-naht; exhibit)
- ✓ ekspozitsiya (ihks-pah-zee-tsih-ye; display)
- ✓ iskusstvo (ees-koos-tvuh; arts)
- ✓ kartina (kuhr-tee-nuh; painting)

- ✓ putyevodityel' (poo-tee-vah-dee-teel'; guidebook)
- ✓ skul'ptura (skool'-ptoo-ruh; sculpture or piece of sculpture)
- ✓ vystavka (vihs-tuhf-kuh; exhibition)
- ✓ zal (zahl; exhibition hall)
- ✓ Muzyeyj otkryvayetsya v . . . (moo-zyey uht-krih-vah-eet-suh v . . . ; The museum opens at . . .)
- ✓ Muzyeyj zakryvayetsya v . . . (moo-zyey zuh-krih-vah-eet-suh v . . . ; The museum closes at . . .)
- ✓ Skol'ko stoyat vkhodnyye bilyety? (skohl'-kuh stoh-eet fkhahd-nih-ee bee-lye-tih?; How much do admission tickets cost?)

Shootin' the Breeze about Hobbies

Before getting to the nitty-gritty of your khobbi (khoh-bee; hobby or hobbies — the word is used for both singular and plural forms), you probably want to test the water so that you don't exhaust your vocabulary of Russian exclamations discussing Tchaikovsky with someone who prefers boxing. To discover someone's likes or dislikes, you can ask one of the following:

- ✓ Chyem ty lyubish' zanimat'sya? (chyem tih lyu-beesh' zuh-nee-maht-suh?; What do you like to do? [informal singular])
- ✓ Chyem vy lyubitye zanimat'sya? (chyem vih lyu-bee-tee zuh-nee-maht-suh?; What do you like to do? [formal singular; plural])
- ✓ Ty lyubish' . . . ? (tih lyu-beesh' . . . ?; Do you like . . . ? [informal singular]) + the imperfective infinitive of a verb or a noun in the accusative case (see Chapter 2)
- ✓ Vy lyubitye . . . ? (vih lyu-bee-tee . . . ?; Do you like . . . ? [formal singular; plural]) + the imperfective infinitive of a verb or a noun in the accusative case (see Chapter 2)

You use the verb lyubit' (lyu-beet'; to love or to like) to describe your feelings toward almost anything, from borsh' (borsh'; borshcht) to your significant other. Saying Ya lyublyu grupp U2 (ya lyu-blyu groo-poo yu-too; I like the band U2) isn't too strong, and this word is just right to express your feelings for your family members, too: Ya lyublyu moyu malyen'kuyu syestru (ya lyu-blyu mah-yu mah-leen'-koo-yu sees-troo; I love my little sister).

Table 7-1 shows you how to conjugate the verb lyubit' in the present tense.

Table 7-1 Conjugation of Lyubit'
Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya lyublyu	yah lyu-blyu	I love/like ty lyubish'	tih lyu-beesh'	You love/like (informal singular)
on/ona/ ono lyubit'	on/ah- nah / ah- noh lyu-byet'	He/she/it loves/likes my lyubim	mih lyu-beem	We love/like vy lyubitye	vih lyu-bee-tye	You love/like (formal singular; plural)
oni lyubyat	ah- nee lyu-byet	They love/like

Reading All About It

An American who has traveled in Russia observed that, on the Moscow metro, half the people are reading books and the other half are holding beer bottles. But we don't agree with such a sharp division. Some Russians can be holding a book in one hand and a beer bottle in the other! But, all joking aside, Russians are still reported to read more than any other nation in the world. So, get prepared to discuss your reading habits.

Have you read it?

When you talk about reading, a handy verb to know is chitat' (chee-tah't'; to read). This verb is a regular verb. Here are some essential phrases you need in a conversation about reading:

- ✓ Ya chitayu . . . (ya chee-tah-yu . . . ; I read/am reading . . .) + a noun in the accusative case
- ✓ Chto ty chitayesh'? (shtoh tih chee-tah-yesh'?: What are you reading? [informal singular])
- ✓ Chto vy chitayetye? (shtoh vih chee-tah-ee-tye?: What are you reading? [formal singular; plural])
- ✓ Ty chital . . . ? (tih chee-tahl . . . ?; Have you read . . . ? [informal singular]) + a noun in the accusative case when speaking to a male
- ✓ Ty chitala . . . ? (tih chee-tah-luh . . . ?; Have you read . . . ? [informal singular]) + a noun in the accusative case when speaking to a female
- ✓ Vy chitali . . . ? (vih chee-tah-lee . . . ?; Have you read . . . ? [formal singular; plural]) + a noun in the accusative case

What do you like to read?

So you're ready to talk about your favorite kniga (knee-guh; book) or knigi (knee-gee; books). Here are some words to outline your general preferences in literature, some of which may sound very familiar:

- ✓ lityeratura (lee-tee-ruh-too-ruh; literature)
- ✓ povyesti (poh-vees-tee; tales)
- ✓ poyeziya (pah-eh-zee-ye; poetry)
- ✓ proza (proh-zuh; prose)
- ✓ p'yesy (p'ye-sih; plays)
- ✓ rasskazy (ruhs-kah-zih; short stories)

- ✓ romany (rah-mah-nih; novels)
- ✓ stikhi (stee-khee; poems)

The conversation probably doesn't end with your saying Ya lyublyu chitat' romany (ya lyu-blyu chee-taht' rah-mah-nih; I like to read novels). Somebody will ask you: A kakiye romany vy lyubitye? (ah kuh-kee-ee rah-mah-nih vih lyu-bee-tee?; And what kind of novels do you like?). To answer this question, you can simply say Ya lyublyu . . . (ya lyu-blyu; I like . . .) + one of the following genres:

- ✓ biografii (bee-ahg-rah-fee-ee; biographies)
- ✓ boyeviki (buh-ee-vee-kee; action novels)
- ✓ dyetyektivy (deh-tehk-tee-vih; mysteries)
- ✓ fantastika (fuhn-tahs-tee-kuh; science fiction)
- ✓ istorichyeskiye isslyedovaniya (ees-tah-ree-chees-kee-ye ees-lye-duh-vuh-nee-ye; history [literally: historical research])
- ✓ istorichyeskaya proza (ees-tah-ree-chees-kuh-ye proh-zuh; historical fiction)
- ✓ lyubovnyye romany (lyu-bohv-nih-ee rah-mah-nih; romance)
- ✓ myemuary (meh-moo-ah-rih; memoirs)
- ✓ sovryemyennaya proza (suhv-ree-mye-nuh-ye proh-zuh; contemporary fiction)
- ✓ trillyery (tree-lee-rih; thrillers)
- ✓ vyestyerny (vehs-tehr-nih; Westerns)

Now you're well-prepared to talk about literature, but what about the news, political commentary, and celebrity gossip? These phrases can help:

- ✓ gazyeta (guh-zye-tuh; newspaper)
- ✓ komiksy (koh-meek-sih; comic books)
- ✓ novosti (noh-vuhs-tee; the news)
- ✓ novosti v intyernyetye (noh-vuhs-tee v een-tehr-neh-tye; news on the Internet)

- ✓ stat'ya (stuh-t'ya; article)
- ✓ zhurnal (zhoor-nahl; magazine)

Rejoicing in the Lap of Nature

Russians love nature. Every city in Russia has big parks where numerous urban dwellers take walks, enjoy picnics, and swim in suspiciously smelling ponds. Even more so, Russians like to get out of town and enjoy the nature in the wild. Luckily, the country's diverse geography offers a wide variety of opportunities to do so. In the following sections, you discover how to make the most out of enjoying nature in Russian.

Enjoying the country house

The easiest route to nature is through the dacha (dah-chuh), which is a little country house not far from the city that most Russians have. Poyekhat' na dachu (pah-ye-khuht' nuh dah-choo; to go to the dacha) usually implies an overnight visit that includes barbecuing, dining in the fresh air, and, if you're lucky, banya (bah-nye) — the Russian-style sauna. Some phrases to use during your dacha experience include the following:

- ✓ natopit' banyu (nuh-tah-peat' bah-nyu; to prepare the sauna)
- ✓ ogorod (uh-gah-roht; vegetable garden)
- ✓ rabotat' v sadu (ruh-boh-tuht' f suh-doo; to garden)
- ✓ razvodit' kostyor (ruhzh-vah-deet' kahs-tyor; to make a campfire)
- ✓ sad (saht; orchard or garden)
- ✓ sobirat' ovosh'i (suh-bee-raht' oh-vuh-sh'ee; to pick vegetables)
- ✓ zharit' shashlyk (zhah-reet' shuh-shlihk; to barbecue)

Skiing in the Caucasus

The Caucasus, a picturesque mountainous region in the South of Russia, is easily accessible by train or by a flight into the city of Minvody. The best places to ski in the Caucasus (called Kavkaz in Russian) include Dombaj (dahm-bahy) and Priyel'brus'ye (pree-ehl'-broo-s'ee). The word Priyel'brus'ye actually means “next to El'brus,” with El'brus (ehl'-broos) being the highest mountain peak in Europe (according to those who consider the Caucasus a part of Europe).

Here are some phrases to help you organize your skiing adventure:

- ✓ gora (gah-rah; mountain)
- ✓ gory (goh-rih; mountains)
- ✓ kanatka (kuh-naht-kuh; informal for cable cars)
- ✓ kanatnaya doroga (kuh-naht-nuh-ye dah-roh-guh; cable cars)
- ✓ katat'sya na lyzhakh (kuh-taht'-suh nuh lih-zhuhkh; to ski)
- ✓ kryem ot zagara (krehm uht zuh-gah-ruh; sunblock)
- ✓ lyzhi (lih-zhiih; skis)
- ✓ prokat (prah-kaht; rental)
- ✓ snoubord (snoh-oo-bohrd; snowboard)
- ✓ turbaza (toor-bah-zuh; tourist center)
- ✓ vzyat' na prokat (vzyat' nuh prah-kaht; to rent)

Lying around at Lake Baikal

With its picturesque cliffs, numerous islands, and crystal clear water, Ozyero Baikal (oh-zee-ruh buhy-kahl; Lake Baikal) is an unforgettable vacation spot. Having these words at your disposal makes your experience more enjoyable:

- ✓ bajdarka (buhy-dahr-kuh; kayak)
- ✓ byeryeg (bye-ryek; shore)
- ✓ katyer (kah-tyer; boat)
- ✓ komary (kuh-muh-rih; mosquitoes)
- ✓ lovit' rybu (lah-veet' rih-boo; to fish)
- ✓ ostrov (ohs-truhf; island)
- ✓ parom (puh-rohm; ferry)
- ✓ plavat' (plah-vuht'; to swim)
- ✓ plyazh (plyash; beach)
- ✓ prichal (pree-chahl; pier)
- ✓ pristan' (prees-tuhn'; loading dock)
- ✓ ryechoj vokzal (reech-nohy vahk-zahl; marina)
- ✓ port (pohrt; port)
- ✓ rybalka (rih-bahl-kuh; fishing)

Doing Things with Your Hands

Exploring natural wonders and architectural gems is fun, but so is discovering your internal treasures. In the following sections, you find out how to talk about nifty things you can do with your hands. Don't be shy — your talant (tuh-lahnt; talent) deserves to be talked about!

Being crafty

If you're one of those lucky people who can create things with your hands, use the following words to describe your craft:

- ✓ dyelat' loskutnyye odyeyala (dye-luht' luhs-koot-nih-ee uh-dee-ya-luh; to quilt)
- ✓ lyepit' (lee-peat'; to sculpt)
- ✓ lyepit' iz gliny (lee-peat' eez glee-nih; to make pottery)

- ✓ pisat' maslom (pee-saht' mahs-luhm; to paint)
- ✓ risovat' (ree-sah-vaht'; to draw)
- ✓ shit' (shiht'; to sew)
- ✓ vyazat' (veeh-zaht'; to knit)

To ask someone whether he or she can do one of these crafts, use the verb umyet' (oo-myet'; can) plus the infinitive:

- ✓ Ty umyeyesh pisat' maslom? (tih oo-mye-yesh' pee-saht' mahs-luhm?; Can you paint? [informal singular])
- ✓ Vy umyetye vyazat'? (vih oo-mye-ye-tye vee-zaht'?; Can you knit? [formal singular, plural])

To answer these kinds of questions, you can say:

- ✓ Da, ya umyeyu. (dah ya oo-mye-yu; Yes, I can.)
- ✓ Nyet, ya nye umyeyu. (nyet ya nee oo-mye-yu; No, I can't.)

Playing music

Do you like muzyka (moo-zih-kuh; music)? To talk about playing a muzykal'nyj instrument (moo-zih-kahl'-nihy een-stroo-myent; musical instrument), use the verb igrat' (eeg-raht'; to play) + the preposition na (nah) and the name of the instrument in the prepositional case.

You can ask the following questions:

- ✓ Ty umyeyesh' igrat' na . . . ? (tih oo-mye-yesh' eeg-raht' nah . . . ?; Can you play . . . ? [informal singular]) + the name of the instrument in the prepositional case
- ✓ Vy umyetye igrat' na . . . ? (vih oo-mye-ee-tee eeg-raht' nah . . . ?; Can you play . . . ? [formal singular; plural]) + the name of the instrument in the prepositional case

Some musical instruments you may want to mention include the following:

- ✓ baraban (buh-ruh-bahn; drum)
- ✓ flyejta (flyey-tuh; flute)
- ✓ gitara (gee-tah-ruh; guitar)
- ✓ klarnyet (kluhr-nyet; clarinet)
- ✓ pianino (pee-uh-nee-nuh; piano)
- ✓ saksofon (suhk-suh-fohn; saxophone)
- ✓ skripka (skreep-kuh; violin)
- ✓ trombon (trahm-bohn; trombone)
- ✓ truba (troo-bah; tuba)

Scoring with Sports

To talk about playing sports, use the verb zanimat'sya (zuh-nee-mah'-suh; to engage in or to play a sport). The name of the sport after this verb should be in the instrumental case. The word for sports is sport (spohrt); it's always singular.

Zanimat'sya is a reflexive verb. That means that at the end of it, you have a little -sya particle that remains there no matter how you conjugate the verb. This -sya particle is what remained of syebya (see-byah; oneself). The use of this particle directs the action onto the speaker. Thus, zanimat'sya means “to engage oneself.” The same verb without the -sya particle, zanimat', means “to engage somebody else.” Reflexive verbs aren't very numerous in Russian — we warn you whenever we come across them.

You can ask somebody Ty zanimayesh'sya sportom? (tih zuh-nee-mah-yesh-suh spohr-tuhm?; Do you play sports? [literally: Do you engage in sports?]) You can answer this question by saying one of two phrases:

- ✓ Da, ya zanimayus' . . . (dah ya zuh-nee-mah-yus' . . . ; Yes, I play . . .) + the name of the sport in the instrumental case
- ✓ Nyet, ya ne zanimayus' sportom. (nyet ya nee zuh-nee-mah-yus' spohr-tuhm; No, I don't play sports.)

If you're talking about a team sport that can also be called an igra (eeg-rah; game), you can use the expression igrat' v (eeg-raht' v; to play) + the name of the sport in the accusative case. For instance: Ty igrayesh' v futbol? (tih eeg-rah-yesh' f foot-bohl?; Do you play soccer?)

Here's a list of sports you may want to talk about:

- ✓ basketbol (buhs-keet-bohl; basketball)
- ✓ byejsbol (beeys-bohl; baseball)
- ✓ futbol (foot-bohl; soccer)
- ✓ gol'f (gohl'f; golf)
- ✓ tyennis (teh-nees; tennis)
- ✓ vollyejbol (vuh-leey-bohl; volleyball)

To talk about watching a game, you can use the verb smotryet (smaht-ryet'; to watch).

Chapter 8

When You Gotta Work

In This Chapter

- ▶ Finding employment
 - ▶ Making a phone call
 - ▶ Sending a variety of written correspondence

Whether you're looking for a job or just need to talk with your coworkers, this chapter has the phrases for you. We also give you basic phone vocabulary and tell you how to send letters, e-mails, and faxes.

Searching for a Job

A great Russian proverb summarizes Russians' attitude to work: Rabota — nye volk, v lyes nye ubyezhit. (ruh-boh-tuh — nee vohlk, v lyes nee oo-bee-zhiht; Work isn't a wolf, it won't run away from you into the forest.) In the following sections, you discover all you need to know about finding a job in Russia.

Discovering where to look

Looking for a job in Russia isn't much different from job-searching elsewhere in the world. Your options are

- ✓ Going to a kadrovoye agyentstvo (kahd-ruh-vuh-eh uh-gyens-tvuh; recruiting agency)
- ✓ Posting your ryezyumye (ree-zyu-meh; résumé) on a sajt po poisku raboty (sahjt pah poh-ees-koo ruh-boh-tih; job finder Web site)
- ✓ Looking for an ob'yavlyeniye (uhb-yeev-lye-nee-eh; announcement/ad) in a newspaper or a magazine
- ✓ Harassing your friends

If you decide to go with option two, there are three main online job sites: www.job.ru, www.rabota.ru, and www.headhunter.ru.

The most popular newspapers that offer employment information are Rabota dlya vas (ruh-boh-tuh dlya vahs; Jobs for You), Rabota i zarplata (ruh-boh-tuh ee zuhr-plah-tuh; Jobs and Wages), and Elitnyj pyersonal (eh-leet-nihy peer-sah-nahl; Elite Personnel).

Some phrases to look for when you're scanning the ads:

- ✓ opyt raboty (oh-piht ruh-boh-tih; experience in the field)
- ✓ otpusk (oht-poosk; vacation time)
- ✓ ryekommyendatsii (ree-kuh-meen-dah-tsih-ee; recommendations)
- ✓ strakhovka (struh-khohf-kuh; insurance)
- ✓ vakansiya (vuh-kahn-see-ye; vacancy)
- ✓ zarplata (zuhr-plah-tuh; wage)

Contacting employers

When you identify a rabotodatyel' (ruh-boh-tuh-dah-teel'; employer) that you're interested in, you want poslat' ryezyumye (pahs-laht' ree-zyu-meh; to send a résumé). You have several ways to do it; to find out which way is preferred by the employer, you can ask Mnye prislát' ryezyumye . . . (mnye prees-laht' ree-zyu-meh; Should I send my résumé . . .) + one of the following:

- ✓ po faksu? (puh fahksoo?; by fax)
- ✓ po elektronnoj pochtye? (puh ee-leek-troh-nuhy pohch-tee?; by e-mail)
- ✓ po pochtye? (puh pohch-tee?; by mail)

A Russian résumé, unlike an American one, includes your gender, birth date, and syemye-jnoye polozhyeniye (see-myey-nuh-ee puh-lah-zheh-nee-eh; marital status). Some employers may even ask you to include your picture!

The next step is an intyerv'yu (een-tehr-v'yu; interview). If you want to bring some supporting documents to the interview, but you aren't sure which ones to bring, you may want to ask Kakiye dokumyenty mnye prinjesti na intyerv'yu? (kuh-kee-eh duh-koo-myen-tih mnye pree-nees-tee nuh een-tehr-v'yu?; Which documents should I bring to the interview?) The answers can include

- ✓ diplom (deep-lohm; diploma)
- ✓ razryeshyeniye na rabotu (ruh-z-ree-sheh-nee-eh nuh ruh-boh-too; work authorization)
- ✓ ryekommyendatsiya (ree-kuh-meen-dah-tsih-ye; reference)

Clarifying job responsibilities

To find out about your obyazannosti (ah-byazuh-nuhs-tee; job responsibilities), you need to ask questions. A good place to start is with the following question: Chto vkhodit v moi obyazannosti? (shtoh f khoh-deet v mah-ee ah-byazuh-nuhs-tee?; What do my job responsibilities include?)

The variety of professional skills is endless, but these words are likely to be useful:

- ✓ pyechatat' (pee-chah-tuht'; to type)
- ✓ pyeryevodit' (pee-ree-vah-deet'; to translate)
- ✓ rabotat' s komp'yutyerom (ruh-boh-tuht' s kahm-p'yoo-teh-ruhm; to work with a computer)

Communicating in the Workplace

The thing about the workplace is that you're never alone. You often need to talk to a kollyega (kah-lye-guh; coworker), your nachal'nik (nuh-chahl'-neek; boss), or a kliyant (klee-yent; client). In the following sections, find out what to say in the workplace and how to say it in Russian.

Making an appointment

Here are the standard phrases used to naznachit' vstryechu (nuh-znah-cheet' fstrye-choo; make an appointment):

- ✓ Davajtye vstryetimsya v dyevyat' chasov utra. (duh-vahy-tee fstrye-teem-sye v dye-veet' chuh-sohf oo-trah; Let's meet at 9 a.m.)
- ✓ Ya budu vas zhdatt' v tri chasa dnya. (ya boo-doo vahs zhdaht' f tree chuh-sah dnya; I'll be waiting for you at 3 p.m.)

If you're arranging for a phone call, you can say:

- ✓ Ya budu zhdatt' vashyego zvonka v dyesyat' chasov utra. (ya boo-doo zhdaht' vah-shih-vuh zvahn-kah v dye-seet' chuh-sohf oo-trah; I'll be waiting for your phone call at 10 a.m.)
- ✓ Ya vam pozvonyu v dva chasa dnya. (ya vahm puh-zvah-nyu v dvah chuh-sah dnya; I'll call you at 2 p.m.)

Sticking to workplace etiquette

Russian business etiquette is not as strict as that of some other cultures. Just garnish your speech generously with pozhalujsta (pah-zhah-luh-stuh; please) and spasibo (spuh-see-buh; thank you), and you'll already sound more formal than an average Russian in the workplace.

The main thing you notice about Russian dyelovoj etikyet (dee-lah-vohy eh-tee-kyet; workplace etiquette) is that it's less formal than what you may be used to. Engaging in humorous exchanges that fall far from political correctness is considered normal, and your coworkers are likely to throw plenty of improvised parties at the office. Bosses and clients, however, are excluded from these friendly interactions, unless they decide to set the playful tone themselves.

Always use the formal vy (vih; you [formal singular and plural]) whenever you communicate with anyone in the workplace. If your coworkers and, especially, your boss, want to switch to less-formal terms, they'll tell you so. Wait for the initiative to come from them.

To avoid uncomfortable situations, always use the first name + patronymic form to address your colleagues. If they want you to switch to the Western first-name manner, they'll tell you: Myenya mozhno zvat' prosto Sasha. (mee-nya mohzh-nuh zvaht' proh-stuh sah-shuh; You can call me simply Sasha.) For more information on Russian names, see Chapter 3.

Here are some general polite phrases to use in the workplace:

- ✓ Ya mogu vam chyem-nibud' pomoch'? (ya mah-goo vahm chehm-nee-boot' pah-mohch?; Can I help you with anything?)

- ✓ Bol'shoye spasibo, vy mnye ochyen' pomogli. (bahl'-shoh-eh spuh-see-buh, vih mnye oh-cheen' puh-mahg-lee; Thank you very much, you helped me a lot.)

Ringin'g Up Telephone Basics

Before you find out how to make a call, knowing a little bit about the phone itself is helpful. In the following sections, we give you some basic vocabulary related to phones and describe the different types of phones and phone calls.

Brushing up on phone vocabulary

When somebody wants to talk to you, he may want zvinit' (zvah-need'; to call) you. The caller needs nabirat' (nuh-bee-raht'; to dial) your nomyer tyelyefona (noh-meer tee-lee-foh-nuh; telephone number), and when the call goes through, you hear a zvonok (zvah-nohk; ring). Here are some other important words related to the tyelyefon:

- ✓ byesprovodnoj tyelyefon (bees-pruh-vahd-nohy tee-lee-fohn; cordless phone)
- ✓ diskovyj tyelyefon (dees-kuh-vihy tee-lee-fohn; rotary phone)
- ✓ dolgij gudok (dohl-geey goo-dohk; dial tone [literally: long tone])
- ✓ gudok (goo-dohk; beep or tone)
- ✓ knopka (knohp-kuh; button)
- ✓ knopochnyj tyelyefon (knoh-puhch-nihy tee-lee-fohn; touch-tone phone)
- ✓ kod goroda (kohd goh-ruh-duh; area code)
- ✓ korotkiye gudki (kah-roht-kee-ee goot-kee; busy signal [literally: short tones])

- ✓ mobil'nyj tyelyefon (mah-beel'-nihy tee-lee-fohn; mobile phone)
- ✓ myestnyj zvonok (myest-nihy zvah-nohk; local call)
- ✓ myezdugorodnyj zvonok (myezh-doo-gah-rohd-nihy zvah-nohk; long-distance call [literally: intercity])
- ✓ myezhdunarodnyj zvonok (myezh-doo-nuh-rohd-nihy zvah-nohk; international call)
- ✓ sotovyy tyelyefon (soh-tuh-vihy tee-lee-fohn; cell phone)
- ✓ tyelyefonnyaya budka (tee-lee-fohn-nuh-ye boot-kuh; telephone booth)
- ✓ tyelyefonnyaya kniga (tee-lee-fohn-nuh-ye knee-guh; telephone book)

Russian makes a grammatical distinction between calling a person, calling an institution, and calling a different city or a country. The following rules apply. (See Chapter 2 for more details about cases.)

- ✓ If you're calling a person, use the dative case, as in Ya khochu pozvonit' Natashye. (ya khah-choo puh-zvah-need' nuh-tah-shih; I want to call Natasha.)
- ✓ If you're calling an institution, after the verb, use the preposition v or na + the accusative case to indicate the institution you're calling, as in zvonit' na rabotu (zvah-need' nuh ruh-boh-too; to call work) or zvonit' v magazin (zvah-need' v muh-guh-zeen; to call a store).
- ✓ If you're calling a foreign country or another city, after the verb, use v + the accusative form of the city or country you're calling, as in zvonit' v Ameriku (zvah-need' v uh-mye-ree-koo; to call the United States).

Basic telephone etiquette

Every culture has its own telephone etiquette, and Russia is no exception.

When you make a phone call in Russia, the person who answers may say:

- ✓ Alyo! (uh-lyo!; Hello!)
- ✓ Da. (dah; Yes.)
- ✓ Slushayu. (sloo-shuh-yu; I'm listening.)

In English, you often say something like “Is John there?” Not so in Russian. In fact, a Russian may not even understand what you mean by that question. Instead, get to your request right away, using the phrase Mozhno . . . (mohzh-nuh . . .; May I speak to . . .) + the name of the person you want to talk to. If you want to talk to a woman named Natalya Ivanovna, you say Mozhno Natalyu Ivanovnu? (mohzh-nuh nuh-tahl'-yu ee-vah-nuhv-noo?; May I speak to Natalya Ivanovna?)

Note that you have to use the name of the person you want to talk to in the accusative case. That's because what you're saying is an abbreviated Mozhno pozvat' k tyelyefonu Natalyu Ivanovnu? (mohzh-nuh pahz-vaht' k tee-lee-foh-noo nuh-tahl'-yu ee-vah-nuhv-noo?; Can you call to the phone Natalya Ivanovna?), and the verb pozvat' (pahz-vaht'; to call) requires that the noun after it is used in the accusative case. (For more on the accusative case, see Chapter 2.) You can make this phrase more polite by adding the phrase bud'tye dobry (bood'-tee dahb-rih; will you be so kind) at the beginning.

Anticipating different responses

Here are some of the more common things you may hear in response after you ask for the person you want to speak to:

- ✓ If you call somebody at home and he or she is not at home, you most likely hear Yego/yeyo nyet doma. (ee-voh/ee-yo nyet doh-muh; He/she is not at home.)
- ✓ If the person you call is at home but he or she is not the one who answered the phone, you hear Syejchas (see-chahs; Hold on) or Syejchas pozovu (see-chahs puh-zah-voov; Hold on, I'll get him/her).
- ✓ When the person you want finally answers the phone (or if he or she actually picked up the phone when you called), he or she will say Alyo (uh-lyo; Hello) or Slushayu (sloo-shuh-yu; Speaking) or simply Da (dah; Yes).
- ✓ You probably have the wrong number if you hear Kogo? (kah-voh; Whom?) If the person knows you called the wrong number, you most likely will hear Vy nye tuda popali. (vih nee too-dah pah-pah-lee; You dialed the wrong number.)

You can also check to make sure you dialed the right number by saying something like Eto pyat'sot dyevyanosto vosyem' sorok pyat' dvadtsat odin? (eh-tuh peet-soht dee-vee-nohs-tuh voh-seem' soh-ruhk pyat' dvaht-tsuht' ah-deen?; Is this five nine eight four five two one? [literally: Is this five hundred ninety-eight forty-five twenty-one?]) If you dialed another number, you may hear Nyet, vy nyepравil'no nabirayete. (nyet vih nee-prah-veel'-nuh nuh-bee-rah-ee-tee; No, you've dialed the wrong number.)

Leaving a message with a person

If you call somebody and the person isn't available, you'll probably hear one of these phrases:

- ✓ A kto yego/yeyo sprashivayet? (uh ktoh yee-voh/yee-yo sprah-shih-vuh-eet?; And who is asking for him/her?)
- ✓ A chto yemu pyeryedat'? (uh shtoh yee-moo pee-ree-daht'?; Can I take a message? [if the person you're leaving a message for is a man].)
- ✓ A chto yey pyeryedat'? (uh shtoh yey pee-ree-daht'?; Can I take a message? [if the person you're leaving a message for is a woman].)

When you're asked who is calling, say: Eto (eh-tuh; This is . . . calling) + your name. Then you may simply want to give your phone number and say Spasibo (spuh-see-buh; thank you).

To ask to leave a message, begin your request with A vy nye mozhyetye yemu/yey pyeryedat'? (uh vih nee-moh-zhah-tee yee-moo/yey pee-ree-daht'?; Can I leave a message for him/her? [literally: please, tell him/her].)

No matter what your message is, it should begin with the phrase Pyeryedajte pozhalujsta . . . (pee-ree-dahy-tee pah-zhah-luh-stuh; Please tell him/her . . .) Most likely, you want to say

- ✓ Pyeryedajte pozhalujsta chto zvonil (pee-ree-dahy-tee pah-zhah-luh-stuh shtoh zvah-neel; Please tell him/her that . . . called) + your name (if you are a man).
- ✓ Pyeryedajte pozhalujsta chto zvonila (pee-ree-dahy-tee pah-zhah-luh-stuh shtoh zvah-nee-luh; Please tell him/her that . . . called) + your name (if you are a woman).

Words to Know

Vy nye znayetye gdye ona?	vih nee znah- ee-tee gdye ah-nah?	Do you happen to know where she is?
Kogda ona budyet doma?	kahg- dah ah- nahboo-deet doh-muh ?	When will she be home?
Ona dolzhna vyernut'sya . . .	ah-nah dahl- zhnah veer- noot'-sye . . .	She should be back . . .
Mozhyet byt' chto-nibud' pyeryedat'?	moh-zhit biht' shtoh-nee-boot' pee-ree-daht'?	Would you like to leave a message?
Ya pyeryezvonyu.	ya pee-reez- vah-nyu.	I'll call back.
Ya yey skazhu, chto ty zvonila.	ya yey skuh- zhoo shtoh tih zvah-nee-luh.	I will tell her that you called.

Talking to an answering machine

If you get an avtootvyetchik (uhf-tuh-aht-vyet-chee-keek; answering machine) the first thing you'll probably hear is Zdravstvujte, k sozhaleniju, ja ne mogu otvetit' na Vash zvonok. Ostav'tye, pozhalujsta soobsh'yeniye poslye gudka. (zdrah-stvooy-tee, k suh-zhuh-lyeh-nee-yoo, yah nee mah-goo aht-veh-teet' nuh vahsh zvah-nohk. ahs-tahf-tee, pah-zhah-luh-stuh suh-ahpsh'ye-nee-eh pohs-lee goot-kah; Hello, unfortunately, I cannot take your call now. Please leave your message after the beep.)

On a cell phone voice mail, you're likely to hear a slightly different message from the one you hear on a regular answering machine: Abonyent nye dostupyen. Ostav'tye soobsh'yeniye poslye signala. (uh-bah-nyent nee dahs-too-peen ahs-tahf-tee suh-ahp-sh'ye-nee-ee pohs-lee seeg-nah-luh; The person you are calling is not available. Leave a message after the beep.)

When leaving a message, you can say something along these lines: Zdravstvujtye. Eto + your name. Pozvonitye mnye pozhalujsta. Moj nomyer tyelyefona + your phone number (zdrah-stvooy-tee. eh-tuh . . . puhz-vah-nee-tee mnye pah-zhah-luh-stuh. moy noh-meer tee-lee-foh-nuh . . .; Hello! This is . . . Call me please. My phone number is . . .)

Sending a Letter, a Fax, or an E-Mail

Strange as it may seem today in the age of e-mail and cell phones, people still sometimes write and send pis'ma (pees'-muh; letters).

The imperfective verb posylat' (puh-sih-laht'; to send) and its perfective counterpart poslat' (pahs-laht') have different patterns of conjugation. Although posylat' is a nice regular verb and poslat' has nothing special about it in the past tense, it has a peculiar pattern of conjugation in the future tense, shown in Table 8-1. (Check out Chapter 2 for more about verbs in general, including imperfective and perfective verbs.)

Table 8-1 Conjugation of Poslat' in the Future Tense

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya poshlyu	ya pahsh-lyu	I will send ty poshlyosh'	tih pahsh-lyosh'	You will send (informal singular)

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
on/ona poshlyot	ohn/ah-nah pahsh-lyot	He/she will send my poshlyom	mih pahsh-lyom	We will send vy poshlyotye	vih pah-shlyo-tee	You will send (formal singular and plural)
oni poshlyut	ah-nee pahsh-lyut	They will send

Just as in English, when sending written correspondence in Russian, it's customary to address the person you're writing to with the word dear:

- ✓ uvazhajemyj (oo-vah-zhah-yee-mihy; dear [masculine]) + the person's name
- ✓ uvazhajemaja (oo-vah-zhah-yee-muh-yuh; dear [feminine]) + the person's name
- ✓ uvazhajemye (oo-vah-zhah-ye-mih-ye; dear [plural]) + the people's names

In more-formal situations, you should also include the date in the upper left-hand corner.

The close of your letter may include the standard vash (vahsh; yours [formal]) or tvoj (tvohy; yours [informal]) plus your name. Or you use one of the following phrases, depending on your intention and your relationship to the recipient:

- ✓ s uvazheniyem (s oo-vuh-zheh-nee-eem; respectfully)
- ✓ s lyubov'yu (s lyu-bohv'-yoo; with love)
- ✓ tseluyu (tsih-loo-yoo; love [literally: I kiss you])

When you talk about imyeil (ee-meh-eel; e-mail) and faks (fahks; fax), use the same verb pair of posylat' and poslat' (to send) as you do when you talk about letters. For example, suppose you want to promise a client that you'll send him an e-mail; you simply say

Ya poshlyu tyebye imejl. (ya pahsh-lyoo tee-bye ee-meh-eel; I'll e-mail you.) If you promise to send him a fax, you say Ya poshlyu tyebye faks. (ya pahsh-lyoo tee-bye fahks; I'll send you a fax.) You also use the same verb pair when you attach documents to your e-mail. Vlozhyennyj fajl/document (vloh-zhyeh-nihy fahyl/duh-koo-myent; literally: an enclosed file/document) or prikryeplyonnij fajl/document (pree-krye-plyo-nihy fahyl/duh-koo-myent; an attached file/document) are the two terms used most commonly to refer to an e-mail attachment.

If you want to ask somebody what his or her e-mail address is, just say Kakoj u vas imyeil? (kuh-kohy oo vahs ee-meh-eel?; What is your e-mail address? [literally: What is your e-mail?]) But before you ask this question, you may want to make sure that this person has an e-mail account by asking U vas yest' imyeil? (oo vas yest' ee-meh-eel?; Do you have e-mail?)

Other words and expressions associated with correspondence include

- ✓ nomyer faksa (noh-meer fahk-suh; fax number)
- ✓ pis'mo (pees'-moh; letter)
- ✓ pochta (pohch-tuh; post office)
- ✓ pochtovyj yash'ik (pahch-toh-vihy ya-sh'eeek; mailbox)
- ✓ proverit' pochtu (prah-vyeh-reet' pohch-too; to check your e-mail) or prochitat' pochtu (pruh-chee-taht' pohch-too; to read e-mails)

Chapter 9

I Get Around: Transportation

In This Chapter

- ▶ Moving along with motion verbs
 - ▶ Making your way through the airport
 - ▶ Exploring public transportation
 - ▶ Asking directions

As the Russian proverb has it, Yazyk do Kiyeva dovyedyot (ee-zihk dah kee-ee-vuh duh-vee-dyot), which translates as “Your tongue will lead you to Kiev,” and basically means, “Ask questions, and you’ll get anywhere.” This chapter gives you all the phrases you need to navigate your way through the transportation maze.

Understanding Verbs of Motion

Every language has a lot of words for things the speakers of that language know well. That’s why the Eskimos have 12 different words for snow. Russians have a lot of space to move around — maybe that’s why they have so many different verbs of motion.

Your choice of verb depends on many different factors and your intended message. To mention just a few factors, the choice depends on

- ✓ Whether the motion is performed with a vehicle or without it
- ✓ Whether the motion indicates a regular, habitual motion
- ✓ Whether the motion takes place at the moment of speaking

Going by foot or vehicle habitually

To indicate regular habitual motion in the present tense, you use the multidirectional verbs khodit' (khah-deet'; to go on foot) and yezdit' (yez-deet'; to go by vehicle). Think of places that you go to once a week, every day, two times a month, once a year, or every weekend. Most folks, for example, have to go to work every day. In Russian you say:

- ✓ Ya khozhu na rabotu kazhdyj dyen' (ya khah-zhoo nuh ruh-boh-too kahzh-dihy dyen'; I go to work every day) if you go by foot. (The verb khodit' is conjugated in Table 9-1.)
- ✓ Ya yezzhu na rabotu kazhdyj dyen' (ya yez-zhoo nuh ruh-boh-too kahzh-dihy dyen'; I go to work every day) if you go by vehicle. (The verb yezdit' is conjugated in Table 9-2.)

When you talk about walking, you also can use the expression khodit' pyeshkom (khah-deet' peesh-kohm; to go by foot, to walk). This expression sounds redundant, but that's the way it's used in Russian.

Table 9-1 Conjugation of Khodit'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya khozhu	ya khah-zhoo	I go on foot
ty khodish'	tih khoh-deesh'	You go on foot (informal singular)

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
on/ona/ ono khodit	ohn/ah- nah / ah- nohkhoh -deet	He/she/it goes on foot my khodim	mih khoh -deem	We go on foot
vy khoditye	vih khoh -dee-tee	You go on foot (formal singular; plural)
oni khodyat	ah- nee khoh -dyet	They go on foot

Table 9-2 Conjugation of Yezdit'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya yezzhu	ya yez -zhoo	I go by vehicle ty yezdish'	tih yez -deesh'	You go by vehicle (informal singular)
on/ona/ono yezdit	ohn/ah- nah / ah- noh yez -deet	He/she/it goes by vehicle
my yezdim	mih yez -deem	We go by vehicle
vy yezdite	vih yez -dee-tee	You go by vehicle (formal singular; plural)
oni yezdyat	ah- nee yez -dyet	They go by vehicle

You also can specify the vehicle you're using with one of these phrases:

- ✔ yezdit' na avtobusye (yez-deet' nah uhf-toh-boo-see; to go by bus)
- ✔ yezdit' na marshrutkiye (yez-deet' nah muhr-shroot-kee; to go by minivan)
- ✔ yezdit' na mashinye (yiez-deet' nah muh-shih-nee; to go by car)

- ✓ yezdit' na myetro (yez-deet' nah mee-troh; to go by metro)
- ✓ yezdit' na poyezdye (yez-deet' nah poh-yeez-dee; to go by train)
- ✓ yezdit' na taksi (yez-deet' nah tuhk-see; to go by taxi)

Going by foot or vehicle at the present time

You use different verbs (called unidirectional verbs) to specify that you're moving in a specific direction or to a specific place. You also use these verbs to indicate motion performed at the present moment.

For walking, use the verb idti (ee-tee; to go in one direction by foot), such as in the phrase Ya idu na rabotu (ya ee-doo nuh ruh-boh-too; I am walking to work). The verb idti is conjugated in Table 9-3.

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya idu	yah ee- doo	I am going ty idyosh'	tih ee- dyohsh'	You are going (informal singular)
on/ona/ono idyot	ohn/ah- nah/ah-noh ee-dyot	He/she/it is going my idyom	mih ee- dyom	We are going vy idyotye	vih ee- dyo-tee	You are going (formal singular; plural)
oni idut	ah- nee ee-doot	They are going

For moving by a vehicle, use the unidirectional verb yekhat' (ye-khaht'; to go in one direction by a vehicle). The verb yekhat' is conjugated in Table 9-4.

Table 9-4 Conjugation of Yekhat'

Conjugation	Pronunciation	Translation
ya yedu	yah ye-doo	I am going ty yedyesh'	tih ye-deesh'	You are going (informal singular)
on/ona/ono yedyet	ohn/ah-nah/ah-noh ye-deet	He/she/it is going my yedyem	mih ye-deem	We are going vy yedyetye	vih ye-dee-tee	You are going (formal singular; plural)
oni yedut	ah-nee ye-doot	They are going

Explaining where you're going

To tell where you're going specifically, use the prepositions v (v; to) or na (nah; to) + the accusative case of the place you're going:

- ✓ Ya idu v tyatr. (ya ee-doo f tee-ahtr; I am going to the theater.)
- ✓ Ona idyot na kontsyert. (ah-nah ee-dyot nuh kahn-tsehr; She is going to the concert.)

For walking or driving around a place, use the preposition po (pah; around) + the dative case. (For more information on cases, see Chapter 2.)

- ✓ Ona khodit po Moskvye. (ah-nah khoh-deet puh mahsk-vye; She walks around Moscow.)
- ✓ My yezdim po tsyentru goroda. (mih yez-deem pah tsehnt-roo goh-ruh-duh; We drive around downtown.)

Remember to use yezdit' or yekhat' (to go by vehicle) when you talk about going to other cities! Otherwise, if you say ya idu v Moskvu (ya ee-doo v mahsk-vo), you make it sound as though you're embarking on an enduring walking pilgrimage to Moscow, which is probably not your intention.

Navigating the Airport

The vocabulary in this section helps you plan and enjoy your trip by samolyot (suh-mah-lyot; plane).

You use a special verb of motion when you talk about flying: lyetyet' (lee-tyet'; to fly). You can't use the verb yekhat' when you talk about traveling by plane, unless the plane is wheeling around the airport without actually leaving the ground. If the plane actually takes off, you have to use the verb lyetyet'.

Checking in and boarding your flight

When you arrive at the aeroport (ah-eh-rah-pohrt; airport), the following words will help you navigate:

- ✓ bilyet (bee-lyet; ticket)
- ✓ informatsionnoye tablo (een-fuhr-muh-tsih-oh-nuh-ye tahb-loh; departures and arrivals display)
- ✓ myesto u okna (myes-tuh oo ahk-nah; window seat)
- ✓ myesto u prokhoda (myes-tuh oo prah-khoh-duh; aisle seat)
- ✓ myetalloiskatyel' (mee-tah-luh-ees-kah-teel'; metal detector)
- ✓ nomyer ryejsa (noh-meer ryey-suh; flight number)
- ✓ otpravlyeniye (uht-pruhv-lye-nee-eh; departures)
- ✓ pasport (pahs-puhrt; passport)
- ✓ posadochnyj talon (pah-sah-duhch-nihy tuh-lohn; boarding pass)
- ✓ pribytiye (pree-bih-tee-eh; arrivals)

- ✓ ruchnoj bagazh (rooch-nohy buh-gahsh; carryon)
- ✓ ryegistratsiya (ree-geest-rah-tsih-ye; check-in)
- ✓ sluzhba byezopasnosti (sloozh-buh bee-zah-pahs-nuhs-tee; security service)

Here are some questions you may hear or ask as you check in:

- ✓ Vy budyetye sdavat' bagazh? (vih boo-dee-tee zdah-vaht' buh-gahsh?; Are you checking any luggage?)
- ✓ Vy ostavlyali vash bagazh byez prismotra? (vih ahs-tahv-lya-lee vahsh buh-gahsh byes pree-smoh-truh?; Have you left your luggage unattended?)
- ✓ Kakoj u myenya nomyer vykhoda? (kuh-kohy oo mee-nya noh-meer vih-khuh-duh?; What's my gate number?)
- ✓ Eto ryejs v . . . ? (eh-tuh ryejs v . . . ?; Is this the flight to . . . ?)

Handling passport control and Customs

After leaving the plane and walking through a corridor maze, you see a crowded hall with pasportnyj kontrol' (pahs-puhrt-nihy kahnt-rohl'; passport control).

Make sure you get into the right line: One line is for grazhdanye Rossii (grahzh-duh-nee rah-see-ee; Russian citizens), and one is for inostranniye grazhdanye (ee-nahs-trah-nih-ee grahzh-duh-nee; foreign citizens).

At passport control, you show your pasport (pahs-puhrt; passport) and viza (vee-zah; visa). A pogranichnik (puhg-ruh-nee-ch-neek; border official) asks you Tsyel' priyezda? (tsehl' pree-yez-duh; The purpose of your visit?) You may answer:

- ✓ chastnyj vizit (chahs-nihy vee-zeet; private visit)
- ✓ rabota (ruh-boh-tuh; work)
- ✓ turizm (too-reezm; tourism)
- ✓ uchyoba (oo-choh-buh; studies)

After you pick up your bagazh, the next step is going through tamozhyennyj dosmotr (tuh-moh-zhih-nihy dahs-moht; Customs). The best way to go is zyelyonyj koridor (zee-lyo-nihy kuh-ree-dohr; nothing to declare passage way [literally: green corridor]). Otherwise, you have to deal with tamozhyenniki (tuh-moh-zhih-nee-kee; Customs officers) and answer the question Chto dyeklariruyete? (shtoh deek-luh-ree-roo-ee-tee; What would you like to declare?)

To answer, say Ya dyeklariruyu . . . (ya deek-luh-ree-roo-yu; I'm declaring . . .) + the word for what you are declaring in the accusative case. The following items usually need to be declared:

- ✓ alkogol' (uhl-kah-gohl'; alcohol)
- ✓ dragotsyennosti (druh-gah-tseh-nuhs-tee; jewelry)
- ✓ proizvyedeniya iskusstva (pruh-eez-vee-dye-nee-ye ees-koost-vuh; works of art)

Conquering Public Transportation

Russians hop around their humongous cities with butterfly ease, changing two to three means of public transportation during a one-way trip to work. And so can you. You just need to know where to look for the information and how to ask the right questions, which you discover in the following sections.

Taking a taxi

When you call the sluzhba taksi (sloozh-buh tuhk-see; cab service), they ask:

- ✓ vash adryes (vahsh ahd-rees; your address)
- ✓ Kuda yedyetye? (koo-dah ye-dee-tee; Where are you going?)

You use kuda (koo-dah; where to) rather than gdye (gdye; where) when you're asking about movement toward a destination. You can think of kuda as meaning "Where to?" and gdye as simply "Where?" Likewise, you use tuda (too-dah; to there) instead of tam (tahm; there) when you want to emphasize movement toward a destination. Simply stated: With verbs of motion, you usually use kuda rather than gdye, and tuda rather than tam.

You can ask for your fare while you're ordering your cab: Skol'ko eto budyet stoit'? (skohl'-kuh eh-tuh boodeet stoh-eet?; How much would that be?) This fare is usually nonnegotiable. If you hail a cab in the street, however, you have plenty of room for negotiating.

You don't need davat' chayeveye (duh-vaht' chee-ee-vih-ee; to give a tip) to cab drivers in Russia.

Using minivans

The transport of choice in today's Russia is the marshrutka (muhr-shroot-kuh), a minivan with a set route. Marshrutki (muhr-shroot-kee; minivans) are usually fast and often go to any destination. They stop only where passengers need to get off, so make sure you tell the driver something like Ostanovitye, pozhalujsta, u vokzala? (uh-stuh-nah-vee-tee pah-zhah-luh-stuh oo vahk-zah-luh?; Would you please stop at the railway station?)

Marshrutki have different routes, marked by numbers. You can recognize a marshrutka by a piece of paper with its number in the front window. To board a marshrutka, you need to go to a place where it stops. These places aren't usually marked, so you need to ask a local Gdye ostanavlivayutsya marshrutki? (gdye uhs-tuh-nahv-lee-vuh-yut-sye muhr-shroot-kee?; Where do the minivans stop?)

Catching buses, trolley buses, and trams

The first difficulty with all this variety of Russian public transportation is that, in English, all these things are called “buses.” Here’s a short comprehensive guide on how to tell one item from another:

- ✓ avtobus (uhf-toh-boos): A bus as you know it
- ✓ trollyejbus (trah-lyey-boos): A bus connected to electric wires above
- ✓ tramvaj (truhm-vahy): A bus connected to electric wires and running on rails

Unless you’re into orienteering, the best way to find your route is to ask the locals. Just ask these questions:

- ✓ Kak mnye doyekhat’ do Krasnoj Plosh’adi? (kahk mnye dah-ye-khuht’ dah krahs-nuhy plosh-sh’ee-dee?; How can I get to the Red Square?)
- ✓ Etot avtobus idyot do Ermitazha? (eh-tuht uhf-toh-boos ee-dyot duh ehr-mee-tah-zhuh?; Will this bus take me to the Hermitage?)
- ✓ Gdye mozhno kupit’ bilyety? (gdye mohzh-nuh koo-peat’ bee-lye-tih?; Where can I buy tickets?)

Ways to pay for a bus ride vary. In some cities, you need to buy bilyety (bee-lye-tih; tickets) ahead of time in kioski (kee-ohs-kee; ticket kiosks). In others, you pay directly to the vodityel’ (vah-dee-teel’; driver) or konduktor (kahn-dook-tuhr; bus conductor) when you board the bus.

Hopping onto the subway

The Russian myetro (mee-troh; subway) is beautiful, clean, user-friendly, and cheap. It connects the most distant parts of such humongous cities as Moscow, and it’s impenetrable to traffic complications. During the day, trains come every two to three minutes. Unfortunately, it’s usually closed between 1:30 a.m.

and 4:30 a.m. Around 4:30 a.m., you can easily locate a stantsiya myetro (stahn-tsee-ye meet-roh; subway station) on a Moscow street by a crowd of young people in clubbing clothes waiting for the myetro to open so they can go home.

To take the myetro, you need to buy a kartochka (kahr-tuhch-kuh; fare card) for any number of trips or a proyezdnoj (pruh-eez-nohy; pass). Both are available in the vyestibyl' myetro (vees-tee-byul meet-roh; metro foyer).

Hopping on a train

Trains are a great way to travel. The types of trains, in the order of increasing price and quality, are

- ✓ elyektrichka (eh-leek-treech-kuh; a suburban train)
- ✓ skorostnoj poyezd (skuh-rah-s-nohy poh-ehst; a low-speed train)
- ✓ skoryj poyezd (skoh-rihy poh-ehst; a faster and more expensive train)
- ✓ firmyennyj poyezd (feer-mee-nihy poh-eehst; a premium train [literally: company train])

You can kupit' bilyety (koo-peat' bee-lye-tih; buy tickets) directly at the railway station, at a travel agency, or in a zhelyeznodorozhnyye kassy (zhih-lyez-nuh-dah-rohzh-nih-ee kah-sih; railway ticket office).

You can start your dialogue with Mnye nuzhyen bilyet v (mnye noo-zheen bee-lyet v; I need a ticket to) + the name of the city you're heading for, in the accusative case (see Chapter 2 for more on cases). The ticket salesperson will probably ask you the following questions:

- ✓ Na kakoye chislo? (nuh kuh-koh-eh chees-loh?; For what date?)
- ✓ Vam kupye ili platskart? (vahm koo-peh ee-lee pluhts-kahrt?; Would you like a compartment car or a reserved berth?)

- ✓ V odnu storonu ili tuda i obratno? (v ahd-noo stoh-ruh-noo ee-lee too-dah ee ah-braht-nuh?; One way or round trip?)

You can also tell the ticket salesperson what kind of seat you prefer: vyerkhnyaya polka (vyerkh-nee-ye pohl-kuh; top fold-down bed) or nizhnyaya polka (neezh-nye-ye pohl-kuh; bottom fold-down bed).

On elyektrichki (eh-leek-treech-kee; suburban trains), which don't have fold-down beds, seats aren't assigned.

Asking “Where” and “How” Questions

When in doubt, just ask! In the following sections you discover how to ask for directions with two simple words: where and how.

Where is it?

Russian uses two words to translate the English where — gdye (gdye; where) or kuda (koo-dah; where). But you can't use the two words interchangeably. The following is what you need to know about these words:

- ✓ If “where” indicates location rather than direction of movement and you aren't using the so-called verbs of motion (to go, to walk, to drive, and so on), use the word gdye (where).
- ✓ If “where” indicates direction of movement rather than location, or in other words is used in a sentence with verbs of motion (to go, to walk, to drive, and so on), use the word kuda (where).

So if you're inquiring about location or destination you can ask:

Gdye blizhayshaya ostanovka avtobusa? (gdye blee-zhahy-shuh-ye uhs-tuh-nohf-kuh uhf-toh-boo-suh?; Where is the nearest bus stop?)

Gdye biblioteka? (gdye beeb-lee-ah-tye-kuh?; Where is the library?)

But if you're asking about direction, you ask:

Kuda idyot etot avtobus? (koo-dah ee-dyot eh-tuht uhf-toh-boos?; Where is this bus going?)

How do I get there?

To ask how to get somewhere — say, the muzyyej (moo-zyey; museum) — you need the verb popast' (pah-pahst'; to get to). This verb, too, belongs to the category of verbs of motion.

Kak ya otsyuda mogu popast' v muzyyej? (kahk ya aht-syu-duh mah-goo pah-pahst' v moo-zyey?; How do I get to the museum from here?)

Or you may want to make your question more impersonal by saying Kak otsyuda mozhno popast' v (How does one get to . . .?):

Kak otsyuda mozhno popast' v muzyyej? (kaht aht-syu-duh mohzh-nuh pah-pahst' v moo-zyey?; How does one get to the museum from here?)

Understanding Specific Directions

When you're done asking for directions, you need to understand what you're being told. In the following sections, you find out about prepositions and other words people use when talking about directions in Russian.

Recognizing prepositions

Russian uses the same prepositions, v/na, to express both “to (a place)” and “in/at (a place).” When you use v/na to indicate movement, the noun indicating the place of destination takes the accusative case. If v/na is used to denote location, the noun denoting location is used in prepositional case. Compare these two sentences:

- ✓ Ya idu v biblioteku. (ya ee-doo v beeb-lee-ah-tye-koo; I am going to the library.)
- ✓ Ya v bibliotekye. (ya v beeb-lee-ah-tye-kee; I am at the library.)

So when do you use na and when do you use v? The choice of the preposition depends on the noun it's used with. With most nouns, Russian speakers use v. But a number of nouns, such as those in the following list, require na (you just need to remember them).

- ✓ na lyektsiyu/na lyektsii (nuh lyek-tsih-yu/nuh lyek-tsih-ee; to a lecture/at a lecture)
- ✓ na stantsiyu/na stantsii (nuh stahn-tsih-yu/nuh stahn-tsih-ee; to a station/at a station)
- ✓ na urok/na urokye (nuh oo-rohk/nuh oo-roh-kee; to a class/at a class)
- ✓ na vokzal/na vokzalye (nuh vahk-zahl/nuh vahk-zah-lee; to a railway station/at a railway station)

Some other prepositions that are helpful in directions are:

- ✓ okolo (oh-kuh-luh; near) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ ryadom s (rya-duhm s; next to) + a noun in the instrumental case

- ✓ naprotiv (nuh-proh-teef; opposite, across from) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ za (zah; behind, beyond) + a noun in the instrumental case
- ✓ pozadi (puh-zuh-dee; behind) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ pyered (pye-reet; in front of) + a noun in the instrumental case
- ✓ myezhdu (myezh-doo; between) + a noun in the instrumental case
- ✓ vnutri (vnoo-tree; inside) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ snaruzhi (snuh-roo-zhih; outside) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ nad (naht; above) + a noun in the instrumental case
- ✓ pod (poht; below) + a noun in the instrumental case

When people give you directions, they also often use these words:

- ✓ sprava ot (sprah-vuh uht; to the right of) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ napravo (nuh-prah-vuh; to the right)
- ✓ slyeva ot (slye-vuh uht; to the left of) + a noun in the genitive case
- ✓ nalyevo (nuh-lye-vuh; to the left)
- ✓ na lyevoj storonye (nuh lye-vuhy stuh-rah-nye; on the left side)
- ✓ na pravoj storonye (nuh prah-vahy stuh-rah-nye; on the right side)

Here's a short exchange that may take place between you and a friendly-looking Russian woman:

You: Izvinitye, gdye magazin? (ee-vee-nee-tee gdye muh-guh-zeen?; Excuse me, where is the store?)

The woman: Magazin sprava ot aptyeki. (muh-guh-zeen sprah-vuh uht uhp-tye-kee; The store is to the right of the pharmacy.)

Making sense of commands

Here are some useful phrases in the imperative mood you may hear or want to use when giving directions:

- ✓ Iditye praymo. (ee-dee-tee pryamuh; Go straight.)
- ✓ Iditye nazad. (ee-dee-tee nuh-zaht; Go back.)
- ✓ Iditye pryamo do . . . (ee-dee-tee pryamuh duh; Go as far as . . .) + the noun in the genitive case
- ✓ Podojditye k . . . (puh-duhy-dee-tee k; Go up to . . .) + the noun in the dative case
- ✓ Iditye po . . . (ee-dee-tee puh; Go down along . . .) + the noun in the dative case
- ✓ Iditye mimo . . . (ee-dee-tee mee-muh; Pass by . . .) + the noun in the genitive case
- ✓ Povyernitye nalyevo! (puh-veer-nee-tee nuh-lye-vuh; Turn left or take a left turn.)
- ✓ Povyernitye napravo! (puh-veer-nee-tee nuh-prah-vuh; Turn right or take a right turn.)
- ✓ Zavyernitye za ugol! (zuh-veer-nee-tee zah-oo-guhl; Turn around the corner.)
- ✓ Pyeryejditye ulitsu! (pee-reey-dee-tee oo-leet-soo; Cross the street.)
- ✓ Pyeryejditye plosh'ad'! (pee-reey-dee-tee plosh-sh'uh't'; Cross the square.)
- ✓ Pyeryejditye chyerez dorogu! (pee-reey-dee-tee cheh-reez dah-roh-goo; Cross the street/road.)

To form the imperative when you're talking to somebody with whom you're on vy (vih; you [formal singular; plural]) terms, such as strangers, add -tye as we did in the previous list. When you're speaking to somebody with whom you're on ty (tih; you [informal singular]) terms, you can remove the -tye. For example, to say "Turn left" to a friend, you say Povyerni nalyevo. (puh-veer-nee nuh-lye-vuh; Turn left.)

Curiously enough, Russians don't like to indicate directions with the words vostok (vahs-tohk; east), zapad (zah-puht; west), syever (syee-veer; north), and yug (yuk; south). They seem to avoid them when explaining how you can reach your place of destination. Phrases like Go south, Turn west, and Drive south are very rare in direction-giving.

Words to Know

Kak mnye otsyuda popast' v ...	kahk mnye aht- syu -duh pah- pahst' v ...	How can I get to ... from here?
nakhoditsya	nuh-khoh- deet-sye	is located vyjti na	vi hy-tee nuh	go out to
Nikuda nye svorachivaya	nee-koo- dah nee svah- rah - chee-vuh-ye	Without turning anywhere
Kogda dojdyotye do ...	kahg- dah dahy- dyo -tee duh ...	When you reach ...
opyat'	ah- pyat'	again
na uglu	nuh oog- loo	on the corner

Describing Distances

Sometimes you don't want detailed information about directions. You just want to know whether someplace is near or far and how long it takes to get there. Here are some helpful phrases:

- ✓ Eto dalyeko? (eh-tuh duh-lee-koh?; Is it far away?)
- ✓ Eto dovol'no dalyeko. Dvye ostanovki na tramvaye/avtobusye/trolleybusye/myetro. (eh-tuh dah-vohl'-nuh duh-lee-koh. dvye uhs-tuh-nohf-kee nuh truhm-vahy-ee/uhf-toh-boo-see/trah-lyey-boo-see/meet-roh; That's quite far away. Two stops by the tram/bus/trolleybus/metro.)
- ✓ Eto nedalyeko. Minut pyatnadsat' pyeshkom. (eh-tuh nee-duh-lee-koh. mee-noot peet-naht-suht peesh-kohm; It's not far away. About fifteen minutes' walk.)

You may notice that in both the previous responses, the word minut (minutes) is placed before the numeral pyatnadsat' (fifteen), and you may be wondering whether it's an error. Nope, that's not an error! Russian has a very special way of indicating approximate time, weight, distance, or even prices. Where English uses the word about, Russian may simply use the method of reversing the order of words, as in Minut pyatnadsat' pyeshkom (mee-noot peet-naht-suht' peesh-kohm; About fifteen minutes' walk). To be more exact, a Russian would say Pyatnadsat' minut pyeshkom (peet-naht-suht' mee-noot peesh-kohm; Exactly fifteen minutes' walk).

Chapter 10

Laying Down Your Weary Head: House or Hotel

In This Chapter

- ▶ Locating an apartment
 - ▶ Finding the hotel of your dreams
 - ▶ Checking in and checking out

Whether you've been working at the office, shopping, or traveling, at the end of the day, you need a place to lay your head. This chapter gives you the phrases you need to get around your house or to find a hotel.

Hunting for an Apartment or a House

Finding an apartment or a house is stressful enough in English. Are you looking for a good view or a central location? What's more important: a big kitchen or hardwood floors? And how squeaky are those hardwood floors? Equip yourself with phrases introduced in the following sections, and good luck in your hunt for a home!

Talking about an apartment or a house

A Russian kvartira (kvuhr-tee-ruh; apartment) is generally small. For example, odnokomnatnaya (uhd-nah-kohm-nuht-nuh-yuh) kvartira literally means one-room apartment. It has, literally, one room and a kitchen (which is usually used as a dining room, no matter how tiny it is). So, a more accurate equivalent for a Russian odnokomnatnaya kvartira is “a studio apartment.”

If you like to live large, you may want to look at a dvukhkomnatnaya kvartira (dvookh-kohm-nuht-nuh-yuh kvuhr-tee-ruh; two-room apartment) or even a tryokhkomnatnaya kvartira (tryokh-kohm-nuht-nuh-yuh kvuhr-tee-ruh; three-room apartment).

Here are some other phrases you use and hear when talking about an apartment:

- ✓ kvartira na pyervom etazhye (kvuhr-tee-ruh nuh pyer-vuhm eh-tuh-zheh; a first-floor apartment)
- ✓ kvartira na vtorom etazhye (kvuhr-tee-ruh nuh ftah-rohm eh-tuh-zheh; a second-floor apartment)
- ✓ kvartira s myebyel'yu (kvuhr-tee-ruh s m'eh-bee-l'yuu; furnished apartment)
- ✓ sdat' kvartiru (zdaht' kvuhr-tee-roo; to rent out an apartment)
- ✓ snyat' kvartiru (sn'aht' kvuhr-tee-roo; to rent an apartment)

Although Russians do use the word ryenta (r'ehn-tuh; rent), it isn't usually used to talk about private apartments. To inquire about the price of an apartment, ask about plata za kvartiru (plah-tuh zuh kvuhr-tee-roo; payment for the apartment) or stoimost' prozhivaniya v myesyats (stoh-ee-muhst' pruh-zhih-vah-nee-uh v mye-seets; cost of living per month). When you make your payments, use the expression platit' za kvartiru (pluh-teet' zuh kvuhr-tee-roo; pay for the apartment).

If you're looking in the newspaper for apartments, look for the Ob'yavleniya (ahb'-yeev-l'eh-nee-uh; classifieds) section. You have several ways to say “apartments for rent” in Russian. Any of the following is likely to pop up in the newspaper you're looking at:

- ✓ aryenda kvartir (uh-r'ehn-duh kvuhr-teer; rent of apartments)
- ✓ kvartiry v nayom (kvuhr-tee-rih v nuh-yom; apartments to rent)
- ✓ sdayu (sduh-yoo; I am renting out)
- ✓ snyat' zhil'yo (sn'aht' zhihl'-yo; to rent a place)

The ads you find are probably saturated with abbreviations such as kmn for komnata (kohm-nuh-tuh; room) and m. for metro or stantsiya myetro (stahn-tsih-yuh meet-roh; subway station). Because the metro is such a prominent means of getting around, Russians use names of metro stations to describe location. Thus, if the ad says m. Tverskaya, the apartment is located next to metro station Tverskaya — in downtown Moscow!

Your ad may also say nye agentstvo (nee uh-g'ehn-stvih; not an agency). What this means is that the ad was posted by the landlord himself, which allows him to cut the cost of a rental-agency fee.

The rules for finding a dom (dohm; house) are pretty much the same as those for finding an apartment. You can check out newspaper ads about selling nyedvizhimost' (need-vee-zhih-muhst'; real estate) or talk to an agyyent po prodazhye nyedvizhimosti (uh-g'ehnt puh prah-dah-zhih need-vee-zhih-muhs-tee; real estate agent).

Asking the right questions

Some questions you definitely want to ask your agjent po s'yomu zhil'ya (uh-g'ehnt pah s'yo-moo zhih-l'ya; real estate agent) or khozyain/khozyajka (khah-z'ah-een/khah-z'ah-koo; landlord/landlady):

- ✓ Mnye nuzhno platit' dyeposit? (mn'eh noozh-nuh plah-teet' dee-pah-zeet?; Do I need to pay the deposit?)
- ✓ Kto platit za uslugi — elyektrichyestvo, gaz, vodu? (ktoh plah-teet zuh oos-loo-gee — eh-leek-tree-chees-tvuh, gahs, voh-doo?; Who pays for utilities — electricity, gas, water?)
- ✓ Kakaya oplata v myesyats? (kuh-kah-yuh ahplah-tuh v m'eh-seets?; What are the monthly payments?)
- ✓ Vy khotitye, chtoby ya platil rublyami ili dollarami? (vih khah-tee-tee shtoh-bih ya pluh-teel roob-l'ah-mee ee-lee doh-luh-ruh-mee?; Do you want me to pay in rubles or in dollars?)
- ✓ Eto spokojnyj rayon? (eh-tuh spah-kohy-nihy ruh-yon?; Is it a safe neighborhood?)
- ✓ Kto zanimayetsya pochinkoj nyeispravnostyej? (ktoh zuh-nee-mah-ee-tsuh pah-cheen-kuhy nee-ees-prahv-nuhs-t'ehy?; Who performs the maintenance? [literally: Who performs the repairs of things that are out of order?])

The main things to find out about a house are the following:

- ✓ Eto dom v gorodye ili v prigorodye? (eh-tuh dohm v goh-ruh-d'eh ee-lee f pree-guh-ruh-d'eh?; Is the house in the city or in the suburbs?)
- ✓ Kakoj vid transporta tuda khodit? (kuh-kohy veet trahn-spuhr-tuh too-dah khoh-deet?; Which public transportation runs there?)

- ✓ Skol'ko v domye etazhyej? (skohl'-kuh v doh-mee eh-tuh-zhehy?; How many floors does the house have?)
- ✓ Kakoye v domye otoplyeniye? (kuh-koh-eh v doh-m'eh uh-tah-pl'eh-nee-eh?; How is the house heated?)
- ✓ V domye yest' garazh? (v doh-m'eh yest' guh-rahsh?; Is there a garage in the house?)

Sealing the deal

When you find a place to rent that strikes your fancy, you're ready to podpisat' kontrakt (puhd-pee-saht' kahn-trahkt; sign the lease). In your kontrakt na aryendu zhil'ya (kahn-trahkt nuh uh-r'ehn-doo zhihl'-ya; lease), look for the following key points:

- ✓ oplata/plata (ah-plah-tuh/plah-tuh; rent)
- ✓ podpis' (poht-pees'; signature)
- ✓ srok (srohk; duration of the lease)

Settling Into Your New Digs

Congratulations on moving into your new home! In the following sections, you discover how to talk about your home and the things you have there.

Knowing the names of different rooms

Russians don't usually have as many rooms as Americans do. And the rooms they have are often reversible: a divan-krovat' (dee-vahn krah-vaht'; sofa bed) can turn a cozy gostinnaya (gahs-tee-nuh-yuh; living room) into a spal'nya (spahl'-n'uh; bedroom). In the morning, the same room can magically turn into a stolovaya (stah-loh-vuh-yuh; dining room) when the hosts bring in their skladnoj stol (skluhd-nohy stohl; folding table)!

Here are some names for rooms to navigate you through a Russian apartment:

- ✓ dyetskaya (d'eht-skuh-yuh; children's room)
- ✓ kabinyet (kuh-bee-n'eht; study)
- ✓ koridor (kuh-ree-dohr; corridor)
- ✓ kukhnya (kookh-n'uh; kitchen)
- ✓ prikhozhaya (pree-khoh-zhuh-yuh; hall)

The English word bathroom corresponds to two different notions in Russian: vannaya (vahn-nuh-yuh) and tualyet (too-uh-l'eht). Vannaya is the place where the vanna (vahn-nuh; bathtub), dush (doosh; shower), and rakovina (rah-kuh-vee-nuh; sink) are. The tualyet is usually a separate room next to the vannaya.

One of the more important phrases in any language is this one: Gdye tualyet? (gd'eh too-uh-l'eht?; Where is the bathroom?)

Most Russian room names, such as gostinaya and stolovaya, don't decline like nouns. Instead, they decline like feminine adjectives. The explanation to this mystery is easy: Stolovaya is what remained in modern Russian of stolovaya komnata (dining room), where the word stolovaya was, in fact, an adjective, describing the feminine noun komnata (room). (For more info on adjective declension, see Chapter 2.)

Buying furniture

The easiest place to find myebyel' (m'eh-beel'; furniture) is a myebyel'nij magazin (m'eh-beel'-niyh muh-guh-zeen; furniture store). Here are some Russian words for various pieces of furniture:

- ✓ divan (dee-vahn; sofa)
- ✓ dukhovka (doo-khof-kuh; oven)
- ✓ kholodil'nik (khuh-lah-deel'-neek; refrigerator)

- ✓ knizhnaya polka (kneezh-nuh-yuh pohl-kuh; bookshelf)
- ✓ kovyor (kah-vyor; carpet/rug)
- ✓ krovat' (krah-vaht'; bed)
- ✓ kryeslo (kr'ehs-luh; armchair)
- ✓ kukhonnyj stol (koo-khuh-nihy stohl; kitchen table)
- ✓ lampa (lahm-puh; lamp)
- ✓ magnitofon (muhg-nee-tah-fohn; stereo)
- ✓ mikrovolnovka (meeek-ruh-vahl-nohf-kuh; microwave)
- ✓ pis'myennyj stol (pees'-mee-nihy stohl; desk/writing table)
- ✓ plita (plee-tah; stove)
- ✓ posudomoyechnaya mashina (pah-soo-dah-moh-eech-nuh-yuh muh-shih-nuh; dishwasher)
- ✓ shkaf (shkafh; cupboard/closet/wardrobe)
- ✓ stiral'naya mashina (stee-rah'l'-nuh-yuh muh-shih-nuh; washing machine)
- ✓ stol (stohl; table)
- ✓ stul (stool; chair)
- ✓ sushilka (soo-shihl-kuh; dryer)
- ✓ zhurnal'nyj stolik (zhoor-nahl'-nihy stoh-leek; coffee table)
- ✓ zyerkalo (z'ehr-kuh-luh; mirror)

Booking the Hotel That's Right for You

Russian today has two words for the English hotel:

- ✓ gostinitsa (gahs-tee-nee-tsoh; hotel [literally: a place for the guests])
- ✓ otel' (ah-tehl'; hotel)

Although from a linguistic point of view both words are interchangeable, they're charged with slightly different meanings. Nobody in Russia uses the word otel' (hotel) in reference to a little old shabby hotel. In this situation, the word gostinitsa (hotel) is more appropriate. On the other hand, when speaking about luxurious four- or five-star hotels, Russians use both words interchangeably.

Making a reservation

To make a reservation, you want to say:

Ya khotyel/khotyela by zabronirovat' nomyer (ya khah-t'ehl/khah-t'eh-luh bih zuh-brah-nee-ruh-vuht' noh-meer; I would like to make a reservation for a room).

Use khotyel if you're a man and khotyela if you're a woman.

When they talk about hotel rooms, Russians use the word nomyer, which also means “number.” In a way it makes sense because each hotel room has a number!

After you state that you want to make a reservation, the person you're talking to will probably ask Na kakoye chislo? (nuh kuh-koh-ee chees-loh?; For what date?)

To answer, use this formula: Na (nah; for) + the ordinal numeral indicating date in neuter + the name of the month in genitive case. For example, if you're planning to arrive on September 15, you say: Na pyatnadsatoye syentyabrya (nuh peet-naht-tsuhtuh-eh seen-teeb-r'ah; For September 15).

You may also be asked from what date to what date you want to stay in the hotel: S kakogo po kakoye chislo? (s kuh-koh-vuh puh kuh-koh-eh chees-loh?;

From what date to what date?)

To answer this question, use s (s; from) + the genitive case of the ordinal number indicating the date + the genitive case of the word indicating the month + po (poh; until) + the ordinal numeral indicating the date in neuter gender (and nominative case) + name of the month in the genitive case. If, for example, you're planning to stay in the hotel from June 21 to June 25, you say S dvadtsat' pyervogo iyunya po dvadtsat' pyatoye iyunya (s dvaht-tsuht' p'ehr-vuh-vuh ee-yoo-n'uh p'ah dvaht-tsuht' p'ah-tuh-eh ee-yoo-n'uh; from June 21 to June 25).

You also can simply state how many nights you're going to stay in the hotel. If you're checking in on June 21 at 3 p.m. and leaving on June 25 at 11 a.m., you'll be staying in the hotel chyetyrye nochi (chee-tih-r'eh noh-chee; four nights).

Here are some other important phrases you may need to understand:

- ✓ Vy khotitye odnomyestnyj nomyer ili dvukhmyestnyj nomyer? (vih khah-tee-tee uhd-nah-m'ehst-nihy ee-lee dvookh-m'ehst-nihy noh-meer?; Do you want a single or double accommodation?)
- ✓ V nomyere yest' vannaya, dush, i tualyet? (v noh-mee-r'eh yest' vah-nuh-yuh, doosh, ee too-uh-lyet?; Is there a bathtub, shower, and toilet in the room?)
- ✓ Skol'ko stoit nomyer? (skohl'-kuh stoh-eet noh-m'ehr?; How much is the room?)
- ✓ Skol'ko stoyat nomyera? (skohl'-kuh stoh-yuht nuh-mee-rah?; How much are the rooms?)
- ✓ Eto vklyuchayet zavtrak? (eh-tuh fklyoo-chah-eh zahf-truhk?; Does it include breakfast?)

Checking In and Out

Congratulations! You made it to your hotel. To make your check-in process as smooth as possible, in the following sections, we tell you what to say when checking in, how to find your room and what to expect when you get there, and how to find what you're looking for in the hotel. And then we tell you how to check out.

Enduring the registration process

Look for a sign with the word ryegistratsiya (ree-gee-strah-tsih-ye; check-in). That's where you report your arrival. Simply say U myenya zabronirovan nomyer (oo mee-nya zuh-brah-nee-ruh-vuhn noh-meer; I have a room reserved).

Expect to be asked Kak vasha familiya? (kahk vah-shuh fuh-mee-lee-ye?; What is your last name?) Keep your passport ready — you need it for registration. To ask for your passport, the dezhurnij administrator (dee-zhoor-nihy ahd-mee-neest-rah-tuhr; receptionist) says: Vash pasport (vahsh pahs-puhrt; Your passport).

The next step in registration is filling out the ryegistratsionnaya kartochka (ree-gee-struh-tsih-oh-nuh-ye kahr-tuhch-kuh; registration form). You hear Zapolnite, pozhalujsta, ryegistratsionnuyu kartochku. (zuh-pohl-nee-tee, pah-zhahl-stuh, ree-gee-struh-tsih-ohn-noo-yu kahr-tuhch-koo; Fill out the registration form, please.) In most cases, this form requires you to provide the following information:

- ✓ Imya (ee-m'uh; first name)
- ✓ Familiya (fuh-mee-lee-yuh; last name)
- ✓ Adryes (ahd-rees; address)

- ✓ Domashnij/rabochij tyelefon (dah-mahsh-nee-y/ ruh-boh-cheey tee-lee-fohn; home/work phone number)
- ✓ Srok pryebvyanya v gostinitsye s . . . po . . . (srohk pree-bih-vah-nee-yuh v gahs-tee-nee-tseh s . . . pah . . .; period of stay in the hotel from . . . to . . .)
- ✓ Nomyer pasporta (noh-meer pahs-puhr-tuh; passport number)

After you fill out all the forms and give the receptionist your passport, you receive the all-important klyuch ot komnaty (klyuch aht kohm-nuh-tih; key to your room) and your kartochka gostya (kahr-tuhch-kuh gohs-t'uh; hotel guest card) or visitka (vee-zeet-kuh; hotel guest card).

Don't assume that your room number is related to the floor number. For example, if the nomyer komnaty (noh-meer kohm-nuh-tih; room number) is 235, it doesn't mean that the room is on the second floor; it can actually be on any floor of the hotel. Before you leave risepshn (ree-sehp-shn; check-in), ask: Na kakom etazhye moy nomyer? (nuh kuh-kohm eh-tuh-zheh mohy noh-meer; On what floor is my room?)

Never leave the hotel without your kartochka gostya or visitka if you want to be let into the hotel. In most cases, you need to present the visitka to the security officer that most Russian hotels are staffed with today.

Taking a tour of your room

What can you expect to find in your hotel room? Most likely, you will see the following:

- ✓ budil'nik (boo-deel'-neek; alarm clock)
- ✓ dvukhsPAL'naya krovat' (dvookh-sPahl'-nuh-yuh krah-vaht'; double bed)

- ✓ odnospal'nyya krovat' (uhd-nah-spahl'-nuh-yuh krah-vaht'; twin bed)
- ✓ pis'myennyj stol i stul (pees'-mee-nihy stohl ee stool; desk and a chair)
- ✓ shkaf (shkahf; wardrobe)
- ✓ torshyer (tahr-shehr; standing lamp)
- ✓ tumbochki (toom-buhch-kee; nightstands)
- ✓ tyelyefon (tee-lee-fohn; telephone)
- ✓ tyelyefonnyj spravochnik (tee-lee-foh-nihy sprah-vuhch-neek; phone book containing hotel numbers)
- ✓ tyelyevizor (tee-lee-vee-zuhr; TV set)
- ✓ vyeshalki (v'eh-shuhl-kee; hangers)

If you have a bathroom in your room, you may find the following necessities:

- ✓ dush (doosh; shower)
- ✓ lichnoye polotyentsye (leech-nuh-eh puh-lah-tyen-tseh; towel)
- ✓ unitaz (oo-nee-tahs; toilet)
- ✓ vannaya (vah-nuh-yuh; bathtub)
- ✓ vannoeye polotyentsye (vah-nuh-eh puh-lah-t'ehn-tseh; bath towel)

Familiarizing yourself with the facilities

To idle away time in the hotel, you may want to explore. Here's what you may find:

- ✓ bahr (bahr; bar)
- ✓ byuro obsluzhivaniya (byu-roh ahp-sloo-zhih-vuh-nee-yuh; customer service)
- ✓ gardyerob (guhr-dee-rohp; cloak room)

- ✓ kamyera khraryeniya (kah-mee-ruh khruh-nye-nee-yuh; storeroom)
- ✓ pochta (pohch-tuh; post office)
- ✓ ryestoran (rees-tah-rah; restaurant)
- ✓ suvenirnyj kiosk (soo-vee-neer-nihy kee-ohsk; souvenir kiosk)

To inquire where a certain service is, go to the byuro obsluzhivaniya and say Skazhitye, pozhajsta, gдые kamyera khraryeniya/pochta? (skuh-zhuh-tee pah-zhah-luh-stuh gдые kah-mee-ruh khruh-nye-nee-ee/pohch-tuh?; Could you tell me where the storeroom/post office is?)

Meeting the staff

People who work in the earlier-mentioned facilities and other hotel services you want to know include the following:

- ✓ administrator (uhd-mee-nee-strah-tuhr; manager, person working at the front desk, or concierge)
- ✓ gardyerobsh'ik/gardyerobsh'tsa (guhr-dee-rohp-sh'eeek/guhr-dee-rohp-sh'ee-tsuh; a man/woman working in the cloak room)
- ✓ gornichnaya (gohr-nee-ch-nuh-yuh; maid)
- ✓ nosil'sh'ik (nah-seel'-sh'eeek; porter)
- ✓ shvyejtsar (shvehy-tsahr; doorman)

Reporting a broken item

A very common problem is when something in your room isn't working. The key refuses to open the door, the phone is silent when you pick it up, or the shower pours only cold water on you. You need to speak to a rabotnik (ruh-boht-neeek; employee) in byuro obsluzhivaniya (byu-roh ahp-sloo-zhuh-vuh-nee-ye; customer service) to get help for these problems.

To report the problem, use the phrase U myenya v komnatye nye rabotayet . . . (oo mee-n'ah f kohm-nuh-tee nee ruh-boh-tuh-eet; The . . . in my room is not working) + the item that's not working. If your telephone is broken, for instance, you say U myenya v komnatye nye rabotayet tyelyefon (oo mee-n'ah f kohm-nuh-t'eh nee ruh-boh-tuh-eet tee-lee-fohn; The telephone in my room is not working). You put the word for the broken item into the nominative case. (For more information on cases, see Chapter 2.)

Requesting missing items

The formula you need to know to report that something is missing is: U myenya v nomyere nyet (oo-mee-n'ah v noh-mee-r'eh nyet; In my room I don't have a) + the word denoting a missing thing, in the genitive case. (For more information on forming the genitive case, see Chapter 2.)

Imagine that you've just taken a shower and are now reaching for the vannoje polotyentsye (vah-nuh-ee puh-lah-tyen-tseh; bath towel) only to discover you don't have one! Shivering from cold and dripping water from your freshly showered body, you rush to the phone to call customer service. You say: U myenya v nomyere nyet vannogo polotyentsya (oo mee-nya v noh-mee-ree nyet vah-nuh-vuh puh-lah-tyen-tseh; I don't have a bath towel in my room). Other things that you may request include

- ✓ odyeyalo (ah-dee-ya-luh; blanket)
- ✓ podushka (pah-doosh-kuh; pillow)
- ✓ tualyelnaya bumaga (too-uh-lyet-nuh-ye boomah-guh; toilet paper)
- ✓ vyeshalka (v'eh-shuhl-kuh; hanger)

Asking to change rooms

To be honest, changing rooms isn't the easiest thing to do in a Russian hotel, but as they say in Russian: Popytka nye pytka! (pah-piht-kuh nee piht-kuh; It doesn't hurt to try! [literally: An attempt is not a torture!])

You should call customer service and say Ya khotyel/khotyela by pomyenyat' nomyer (ya khah-tyel/khah-tye-luh bih puh-mee-nyat' noh-meer; I would like to change my room). You say khotyel if you're a man and khotyela if you're a woman. And you need to give some convincing reasons for wanting to do so, such as:

- ✓ V komnatye ochyen' shumno (f kohm-nuh-t'eh oh-cheen' shoom-nuh; It is very noisy in my room).
- ✓ V komnatye ochyen' kholodno/zharko (f kohm-nuh-tee oh-cheen' khoh-luhd-nuh/zhahr-kuh; It is very cold/hot in my room).
- ✓ V komnatye nyet svyeta (f kohm-nuh-t'eh n'eht sv'eh-tuh; There is no light in my room).

Checking out and paying your bill

Your stay has come to an end, and now you have to pay. Or as Russians like to say: Nastupil chas rasplaty (nuh-stoo-peel chahs ruhs-plah-tih; It's time to pay [literally: The hour of reckoning has arrived]).

Here are some phrases you'll need:

- ✓ Ya khochu zaplatit'. (ya khah-choo zuh-pluh-teet'; I want to pay for my stay.)
- ✓ Ya vypisyvayus'. (ya vih-pee-sih-vuh-yoos'; I am checking out.)
- ✓ Vy prinimayetye kryeditnyye kartochki? (vih pree-nee-mah-ee-t'eh kree-deet-nih-ee kahr-tuhch-kee; Do you accept credit cards?)

- ✓ Kakiye kryeditnyye kartochnki vy prini-mayetye? (kuh-kee-ee kree-deet-nih-eh kahr-tuhch-kee vih pree-nee-mah-ee-tee; What credit cards do you take?)

As in most hotels throughout the world, the rasschyotnyj chas (ruhs-chyot-nihy chahs; check-out time) is poldyen' (pohl-deen'; noon) or dvyenadtsat' chasov dnya (dvee-naht-tsuht' chuh-sohf dn'ah; 12 p.m.). So where do you put your luggage if your plane doesn't leave until midnight? Most hotels have a kamyera khraryeniya (kah-mee-ruh khruh-nye-nee-yuh; storeroom).

Chapter 11

Dealing with Emergencies

In This Chapter

- ▶ Knowing how to ask for help
 - ▶ Getting medical attention
 - ▶ Dealing with the police

An emergency would be called something else if being fully prepared for it were possible. However, you can avoid some panic if you know how to explain yourself in various unpleasant situations.

Finding Help in Case of Accidents

Dealing with accidents and emergencies in your native language is enough of a headache; problems seem twice as bad when you have to speak a foreign language to resolve them. But if you know how to ask for help, chances are, you'll find somebody who makes resolving your problems much easier.

Asking for help

The first thing you need to know is how to ask for help.

- ✓ Izvinyte, mnye nuzhna pomosh'! (eez-vee-nee-teh mnye noozh-nah poh-muhsh'; Excuse me, I need help!)
- ✓ Pomogitye mn'e, pozhalujsta? (puh-mah-gee-teh mnye pah-zhah-luh-stuh; Will you please help me?)

Use one of the following phrases to explain what's wrong:

- ✓ Ya syebya plokho chuvstvuyu. (ya see-bya ploh-khuh choos-tvoo-yu; I am not feeling well. [Use if you have a headache or other mild symptoms.]
- ✓ Mnye plokho. (mnye ploh-khuh; I am not feeling well. [Use if you are very, very sick — for example, you have intense pain or nausea, or you feel as though you may faint.]
- ✓ Pozvonyte v skoruyu pomosh'! (puhz-vah-nee-teh v skoh-roo-yu poh-muhsh'; Call an ambulance!)
- ✓ Pomogitye! (puh-mah-gee-tee; Help!)
- ✓ Pozovitye na pomosh'! (puh-zah-vee-teh nuh poh-muhsh'; Call for help!)
- ✓ Pozvonyte v militsiyu! (puhz-vah-nee-teh v mee-lee-tsih-yu; Call the police!)
- ✓ Dyerzhitye vora! (deer-zhah-teh voh-ruh; Stop the thief!)
- ✓ Pozhar! (pah-zahr; Fire!)

To get help, you can also say Ya nye mogu . . . (ya nee mah-goo; I can't . . .) + the infinitive of the verb describing what it is you can't do. For instance, try the verb najti (nuhy-tee; to find) or otkryt' (aht-kriht'; to open), and then follow with the item you can't find or open.

Calling the right number

In the United States, calling 911 is the answer to almost any emergency question, but it's not this way in Russia. There, you have three different numbers to call in cases of pozhar (pah-zhahr; fire), crime, or health problems. The numbers are easy, and any Russian knows them by heart:

- ✓ 01 — pozharnaya sluzhba (pah-zhahr-nuh-yuh sloozh-buh; fire brigade)
- ✓ 02 — militsiya (mee-lee-tsih-yuh; police)
- ✓ 03 — skoraya pomosh' (skoh-ruh-yuh poh-muhsh'; ambulance [literally: urgent help])

Two other easy numbers to remember:

- ✓ 04 — avarijnaja gazovaja sluzhba (ah-vah-reey-nah-yuh gah-zuh-vuh-yuh sloozh-buh; the place where you call if you suspect gas leakage [literally: emergency gas service])
- ✓ 09 — spravochnaya (sprah-vuhch-nuh-yuh; directory assistance)

Reporting a problem

When reporting an accident or an emergency, a good verb to use is proiskhodit' (pruh-ees-khah-deet'; to happen). To talk about something that is happening or has happened, you need only the third-person-singular form in the present tense — proiskhodit (pruh-ees-khoh-deet; is happening) — and the past-tense forms:

- ✓ proizoshyol (pruh-ee-zah-shohl; has happened [masculine singular])
- ✓ proizoshla (pruh-ee-zah-shlah; has happened [feminine singular])
- ✓ proizoshlo (pruh-ee-zah-shloh; has happened [neuter singular])
- ✓ proizoshli (pruh-ee-zah-shlee; has happened [plural])

A common question you may be asked if you've witnessed an accident is Chto proizoshlo? (shtoh pruh-ee-zah-shloh; What happened?) You may also hear Chto sluchilos'? (shtoh sloo-chee-luhs'; What happened?) The two phrases are interchangeable.

Problems that you may have to report include

- ✓ avariya (uh-vah-ree-yuh; car accident)
- ✓ infarkt (een-fahrkt; heart attack)
- ✓ nyeschastnyj sluchaj (nee-shahs-nihy sloo-chuhy; accident)
- ✓ ograblyeniye (uhg-ruhb-lye-nee-eh; robbery)
- ✓ otravlyeniye (uht-ruh-v-lye-nee-eh; poisoning)
- ✓ pozhar (pah-zhahr; fire)
- ✓ ranyeniye (ruh-nye-nee-eh; injury)

Requesting English-speaking help

In case you don't feel like practicing your Russian in the midst of an emergency, you may want to ask for English-speaking help:

- ✓ Zdyes' yest' kto-nibud', kto govorit po-anglijski? (zdyes' yest' ktoh-nee-boot', ktoh guh-vah-reet puh uhng-leey-skee?; Is there anybody here who speaks English?)
- ✓ Mnye nuzhyen kto-nibud', kto govorit po-anglijski! (mnye noo-zihhn ktoh-nee-boot', ktoh guh-vah-reet puh uhng-leey-skee!; I need somebody who speaks English!)

Receiving Medical Care

To make an appointment with a specific doctor at a big poliklinika (puh-lee-klee-nee-kuh; clinic), you need to go to the ryegistratura (ree-gees-truh-too-ruh; check-in desk) and say Mnye nado zapisat'sya na priyom k . . . (mnye nah-duh zuh-pee-saht'-suh nuh pree-yom k . . . ; I need to make an appointment with . . .) + the type of doctor you want to see (in the dative case). (For more information on case endings, see Chapter 2.)

Knowing your own anatomy

When you go to a doctor, you want to know how to talk about your tyelo (tye-luh; body). The following list starts with the visible parts, going from the top down:

- ✓ golova (guh-lah-vah; head)
- ✓ gorlo (gohr-luh; throat)
- ✓ grud' (groot'; chest/breast)
- ✓ kolyeno (kah-l'eh-nuh; knee)
- ✓ kozha (koh-zhuh; skin)
- ✓ lodyzhka (lah-dihsh-kuh; ankle)
- ✓ lokot' (loh-kuht'; elbow)
- ✓ noga (nah-gah; leg/foot)
- ✓ nogti (nohk-tee; nails)
- ✓ palyets (pah-leets; finger)
- ✓ plyecho (plee-choh; shoulder)
- ✓ polovyye organy (puh-lah-vih-eh ohr-guh-nih; genitals)
- ✓ ruka (roo-kah; arm/hand)
- ✓ shyeya (sheh-yuh; neck)
- ✓ spina (spee-nah; back)
- ✓ zapyast'ye (zuh-pyast'-yeh; wrist)
- ✓ zhivot (zhih-voht; stomach)

Russians do not emphasize the distinction between the arm and the hand; for both body parts, it is common to use the word ruka. Similarly, for both leg and foot, you use the word noga. However, if you want to specify the exact part of your ruka or noga, you can use the word kist' (keest'; hand), ladon' (lah-dohn'; palm), and stupn'a (stoop-n'ah; foot).

Parts of your head that you may seek treatment for include the following:

- ✓ glaz (glahs; eye)
- ✓ litso (lee-tsoh; face)
- ✓ nos (nohs; nose)
- ✓ podborodok (puhd-bah-roh-duhk; chin)
- ✓ rot (roht; mouth)
- ✓ ukho (oo-khuh; ear)
- ✓ yazyk (yee-zihk; tongue)
- ✓ zub (zoop; tooth)

The internal organs you may need to talk about include these body parts:

- ✓ kost' (kohst'; bone)
- ✓ lyogkiye (lyokh-kee-eh; lungs)
- ✓ mozg (mohsk; brain)
- ✓ muskuly (moos-koo-lih; muscles)
- ✓ nyervy (n'er-vih; nerves)
- ✓ pochka (poch-kuh; kidney)
- ✓ pyechyen' (pye-chihn'; liver)
- ✓ syerdtsyey (syer-tseh; heart)
- ✓ zhyeludok (zhih-loo-duhk; stomach)

Describing your symptoms to a doctor

The first question you hear from a doctor is usually Chto u vas bolit? (shtoh u vahs bah-leet?; What is hurting you?) or Chto vas byespokoit? (shtoh vahs bees-pah-koh-eet?; What brought you here? [literally: What is bothering you?])

The best way to start describing your symptoms if you're in pain is with the verb bolyet (bah-l'eh't'; to hurt):

U myenya bolit . . . (oo mee-nya bah-leet . . . ; . . . is hurting) + the name of the organ that hurts (in the nominative case).

You can also point to the place where it hurts and say

U myenya bolit zdyes' (oo mee-n'ah bah-leet zdyes'; It hurts me here).

You may want to specify whether it hurts vnutri (vnoo-tree; inside) or snaruzhi (snah-roo-zhih; on the outside).

To describe specific, less-painful symptoms, you say U myenya . . . (oo mee-nya; I have . . .) + one of the phrases from the following list:

- ✓ bol' (bohl'; pain)
- ✓ bolit golova (bah-leet guh-lah-vah; headache)
- ✓ bolit gorlo (bah-leet gohr-luh; sore throat)
- ✓ bolit ukho (bah-leet oo-khuh; earache)
- ✓ bolit zhivot (bah-leet zhih-voht; stomach ache)
- ✓ kashyel' (kah-shihl'; cough)
- ✓ nasmork (nahs-muhrk; runny nose)
- ✓ ozhog (ah-zhohk; burn)
- ✓ ponos (pah-nohs; diarrhea)
- ✓ syp' (sihp'; rash)
- ✓ toshnota (tuhsh-nah-tah; nausea)
- ✓ tyempyeratura (teem-pee-ruh-too-ruh; fever)
- ✓ zapor (zuh-pohr; constipation)

In Russia, temperature is measured in Celsius. Normal body temperature is 36.6°C. Anything above is a vysokaya tyempyeratura (vih-soh-kuh-ye teem-pee-ruh-too-ruh; high fever).

Announcing allergies or special conditions

To tell your doctor about any allergies, you can say U myenya allyergiya na . . . (oo mee-nya uh-leer-gee-ye nuh . . . ; I am allergic to . . .) + the word naming the cause of the allergy (in the accusative case). Common causes of allergies include

- ✓ koshki (kohsh-kee; cats)
- ✓ mollyuski (mah-l'ooos-kee; shellfish)
- ✓ moloko (muh-lah-koh; milk)
- ✓ obyezbolivayush'yeye (uh-beez-boh-lee-vuh-yoo-sh'ee-ee; painkillers)
- ✓ oryekhi (ah-rye-khee; nuts)
- ✓ plyesyen' (plye-seen'; mold)
- ✓ pyenitsillin (pee-nee-tsih-leen; penicillin)
- ✓ pyl'tsa (pihl'-tsah; pollen)
- ✓ ryba (rih-buh; fish)
- ✓ sobaki (sah-bah-kee; dogs)
- ✓ ukus pchyely (oo-koos pchee-lih; bee stings)
- ✓ yajtsa (yahy-tsu; eggs)

If you're on some kind of medication, tell your doctor Ya prinimayu . . . (ya pree-nee-mah-yoo . . . ; I am on . . . [literally: I take . . .]) + the name of the medication. Some other special conditions that you may need to announce to the doctor include

- ✓ U myenya astma. (oo mee-n'ah ahst-muh; I have asthma.)
- ✓ Ya yepilyeptik. (ya ee-pee-l'ehp-teek; I have epilepsy.)
- ✓ Ya diabyetik. (ya dee-uh-beh-teek; I have diabetes.)
- ✓ Ya byeryemyenna. (ya bee-r'eh-mee-nuh; I am pregnant.)

Undergoing an examination and getting a diagnosis

During a medical exam, you may hear the following phrases:

- ✓ Razdyen'tyes' do poyasa. (ruh-dyen'-tees' duh poh-ee-suh; Undress from your waist up.)
- ✓ Razdyen'tyes' polnost'yu. (ruh-dyen'-tees' pohl-nuhst'-yoo; Take off all your clothes.)
- ✓ Zakataytye rukav. (zuh-kuh-tahy-teh roo-kahf; Please roll up your sleeve.)
- ✓ Gluboko vdokhnitye. (gloo-bah-koh v*dahkh*-nee-teh; Take a deep breath.)
- ✓ Lozhityes'. (lah-zhih-tees'; Please lie down.)
- ✓ Otkrojtye rot. (aht-krohy-teh roht; Open your mouth.)
- ✓ Pokazhitye yazyk. (puh-kuh-zhih-teh yee-zihk; Stick out your tongue.)

You also may have to undergo the following tests:

- ✓ analiz krovi (uh-nah-leez kroh-vee; blood test)
- ✓ analiz mochi (uh-nah-leez mah-chee; urine test)
- ✓ ryentgyen (reen-gyen; X-ray)
- ✓ sonogramma (suh-nah-grah-muh; sonogram)
- ✓ ul'trazvuk (ool'-truh-zvook; ultrasound)
- ✓ elyektrokardiogramma (ee-l'ehkt-ruh-kuhr-dee-ahg-rah-muh; electrocardiogram)

After all the turmoil of going through the osmotr (ahs-mohtr; medical examination), you're ready to hear your diagnoz (dee-ahg-nuhs; diagnosis). The doctor will probably phrase it this way: U vas . . . (oo vahs . . . ; you have . . .) + the diagnosis itself. For instance, you may hear that you have one of the following:

- ✓ angina (uhn-gee-nuh; sore throat)
- ✓ bronkhit (brahn-kheet; bronchitis)
- ✓ gripp (griep; flu)
- ✓ infyektsiya (een-fyek-tsih-yuh; infection)
- ✓ migryen' (mee-gr'ehn'; migraine)
- ✓ pnjevmoniya (pneev-mah-nee-yuh; pneumonia)
- ✓ prostuda (prahs-too-duh; cold)
- ✓ rastyazhyeniye svyazok (ruhs-tee-zheh-nee-eh sv'ah-zuhk; sprain)
- ✓ syennaya likhoradka (see-nuh-yuh lee-khah-raht-kuh; hay fever)

Visiting a pharmacy

In most cases, a doctor will propisat' lyekarstvo (pruh-pee-sah't' lee-kahrst-vuh; prescribe a medicine) for you. The Russian word for prescription is ryet-syept (ree-tsehpt).

The Russian word ryetsyept is an interpreter's false friend. To an English speaker, it sounds a lot like receipt. Watch out, though! The Russian for receipt is chyek (chehk). Ryetsyept, on the other hand, means "prescription" or "recipe."

To get your lyekarstvo, you need to go to the aptyeka (uhp-tye-kuh; pharmacy). To get your lyekarstvo, you hand your ryetsyept to the aptyekar' (uhp-tye-kuhr'; pharmacist). Alternately, you can say

- ✓ Mnye nuzhyen . . . (mn'eh noo-zhihn . . . ; I need . . .) + the masculine name of the medicine

- ✓ Mnye nuzhna . . . (mn'eh noozh-nah . . . ; I need . . .) + the feminine name of the medicine
- ✓ Mnye nuzhno . . . (mn'eh noozh-nuh . . . ; I need . . .) + the neuter name of the medicine
- ✓ Mnye nuzhny . . . (mn'eh noozh-nih; I need . . .) + the plural name of the medicines

Some common medicines include

- ✓ aspirin (uhs-pee-reen; aspirin)
- ✓ bolyeutolyayush'yeye (boh-lee-oo-tuh-l'ah-yush'ee-eh; pain reliever)
- ✓ kapli ot kashlya (kahrp-lee uht kahsh-l'eh; cough drops)
- ✓ nyejtralizuyush'yeye kislotu sryedstvo (neey-truh-lee-zoo-yoo-sh'ih-yeh kees-lah-too sryets-tvuh; antacid)
- ✓ sirop ot kashlya (see-rohp uht kahsh-lyuh; cough syrup)
- ✓ sryedstvo dlya snizhyeniya tyempyeratury (sryets-tvuh dlya snee-zheh-nee-uh teem-pee-ruh-too-rih; fever reducer)
- ✓ sryedstvo ot izzhyogi (sryets-tvuh uht eez-zhoh-gee; heartburn reliever)

Calling the Police When You're the Victim of a Crime

If you're the victim of crime, you need to know where to turn to for help and what to say to the people helping you.

To find the nearest police station, you can ask a passerby Gdye blizhajshyeye otdyeleniye militsii? (gdye blee-zhahy-shih-ee uht-dee-lye-nee-ye mee-lee-tsih-ee?; Where is the nearest police station?)

Here are some useful phrases you can use to describe different types of crime to the police:

- ✓ Myenya ograbili. (mee-n'ah ah-grah-bee-lee; I was robbed.)
- ✓ Myenya obokralli. (mee-n'ah uh-bah-krah-lee; I became a victim of a theft.)
- ✓ Na myenya bylo sovyershyno napadyeniye. (nuh mee-n'ah bih-luh suh-veer-shih-noh nuh-puh-d'eh-nee-eh; I was attacked.)
- ✓ Moyu kvartiru obvorovali. (mah-yoo kvahr-tee-roo uhb-vuh-rah-vah-lee; My apartment was broken into.)
- ✓ Ya stal zhyertvoj moshyennichyestva. (ya stahl zhehr-tvohy muh-sheh-nee-cheest-vuh; I became a victim of a fraud [masculine].)
- ✓ Ya stala zhyertvoj moschyennichyestva. (ya stah-lah zhehr-tvuhy muh-sheh-nee-chihst-vuh; I became a victim of a fraud [feminine].)
- ✓ Moyu mashinu obokralli. (mah-yu muh-shih-noo uh-bahk-rah-lee; My car was broken into. [literally: My car was robbed.])

Ten Favorite Russian Expressions

Every culture has a way of taking familiar words and turning them into something else. Recognizing these expressions in speech and using them with ease can make you sound really Russian!

Oj!

To express surprise, dismay, admiration, gratitude, or even pain — pretty much any strong feeling — Russians say Oj! (ohy). Use oj when in English you would say “oops,” “ouch,” or “wow,” or make a facial expression. You can confidently use oj in any of the following sentences:

- ✓ Oj, kak krasivo! (ohy kahk kruh-see-vuh; Wow, how beautiful!)
- ✓ Oj, spasibo! (ohy spuh-see-buh; Thank you so much!)
- ✓ Oj, kto eto? (ohy ktoh eh-tuh; Who in the world is this?)

Davaj

If you look up davaj (duh-vahy) in the dictionary, it means “give.” Russians, however, use the word in all kinds of situations. It’s a popular way to suggest doing something, as in Davaj pojdyom v kino (duh-vahy pahy-d'ohm v kee-noh; Let's go to the movies), and to answer "Sure, let's do it!" (Davaj!) Used by itself, davaj means "Bye, take care."

Pryedstav'tye Syebye

Although the verb pryedstav'tye can mean "imagine," "picture," or even "introduce," pryedstav'tye syebye (preed-stahf'-te'h see-b'eh) means "Can you believe it?" or "Imagine that!" It's a good way to begin telling a story, or to open a conversation on a subject you feel strongly about.

Poslushajtye!

The literal translation of Poslushajtye! (pahs-loo-shuhy-te'h) is "Listen!" Although this sounds pushy and aggressive in English, in Russian, poslushajtye is a nice way to attract attention to your arguments. Here are some examples:

- ✓ Poslushajtye, davajtye pojdyom na progulku!
(pahs-loo-shuhy-t'eh, duh-vahy-t'eh pahy-d'ohm nuh prah-gool-koo; You know what? Let's go for a walk! [literally: Listen, let's go for a walk!])
- ✓ Poslushajtye, no eto zhe pryekrasnyj fil'm!
(pahs-loo-shuhy-t'eh, noh eh-tuh zheh preek-rahs-nihy feel'm; But it's a wonderful movie! [literally: Listen, but it's a wonderful movie!])

A less formal variant of the same expression is Poslushaj! (pahs-loo-shuhy). You can use it with someone you're on familiar terms with.

Pir Goroj

You may be at a loss to describe the grand abundance of Russian dinner parties and holiday tables. This expression, then, is useful: pir goroj (peer gah-rohy; literally: feast with food piled up like a mountain).

Ya Tryebuyu Prodolzheniya Bankyeta

This phrase is a quote from one of the Russians' most beloved comedies, Ivan Vasil'yevich myenyayet profyessiyu (ee-vahn vah-seel'-ye-veech mee-n'ah-eh-t prah-f'eh-see-yoo; Ivan Vasil'yevich Changes His Occupation), and is sure to make any Russian smile. Say Ya tryebuyu prodolzheniya bankyeta! (ya tr'eh-boo-yu pruh-dahl-zheh-nee-uh buhn-k'eh-tuh; literally: I insist on the continuation of the banquet!) when a party or a trip is going well, when somebody is inviting you to come over again, or when you're suggesting to do some fun activity yet another time.

Slovo — Syeryebro, A Molchaniye — Zoloto

Russians love proverbs and use them a lot. Slovo — syeryebro, a molchaniye — zoloto (sloh-vuh see-reeb-roh uh mahl-chah-nee-eh zoh-luh-tuh; A word is silver, but silence is gold) can be loosely translated as “Speaking is nice, but silence is supreme.” This phrase is nice to say after you make a mistake speaking Russian or when you, or somebody else, says something that would be better off left unsaid.

Odna Golova Khorosho, A Dvye — Luchshye

Odna golova khorosho, a dvye — luchshye (ahd-nah guh-lah-vah khuh-rah-shoh ah dv'eh looch-sheh; One head is good, but two heads are better) doesn't refer to science-fiction mutants. Rather, it's a manifestation of the international belief that two heads are better than one. You can say this phrase when you invite somebody to do something together or when you ask for, or offer, help or advice.

Drug Poznayotsya V Byedye

Drug poznayotsya v byedye (dook puhz-nuh-yot-suh v bee-d'eh; A friend is tested by hardship) is the Russian equivalent of the saying, "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

Russians take friendship seriously. Their definition of a friend is not just a person you know (as in, "This is my new friend . . . what's your name again?"). Such a person would be called a znakomyj (znuh-koh-mihy; acquaintance). A drug (dook; friend), on the other hand, is someone who cares for you.

Sтарыj Drug Luchshye Novykh Dvukh

Sтарыj drug luchshye novykh dvukh (stah-rihy dook looch-sheh noh-vihkh dvoock; An old friend is better than two new ones) is another speculation on the theme of friendship. An old friend (and they aren't referring to age) is better because he or she has already been tested, possibly by hardships mentioned in the previous phrase. New friends, on the other hand, are dark horses; when a bad moment strikes, they may turn out to be just acquaintances.

Ten Phrases That Make You Sound Russian

Some phrases aren't really important in a conversation, but they make you sound Russian.

Tol'ko Poslye Vas!

Oh, dear Old World! Russians still believe in opening doors for each other and letting others go first. If you want to be especially polite, absolutely refuse to go through a door if somebody else is aiming for it. Instead of just walking through and getting it over with, stand by the door for 15 minutes repeating Tol'ko poslye vas! (tohl'-kuh pohs-lee vahs; Only after you!) while your counterpart stands by the other side of the door repeating the same phrase. It may be time consuming, but you'll be recognized as a well-bred individual.

Vy Syegodnya Pryekrasno Vyglyaditye!

Speaking of being old-fashioned: Russians, for some reason, don't believe that giving compliments is considered sexual harassment. So, if you start a conversation with a Russian woman by saying Vy syegodnya pryekrasno vyglyaditye! (vih see-vohd-n'uh pree-krahs-nuh vihg-lee-dee-t'eh; You look great today!), she may actually treat you nicer instead of reporting you to the authorities.

If someone says Vy syegodnya pryekrasno vyglyadi-tye! to you, remember that the appropriate response isn't spasibo (spuh-see-buh; thank you); you should say Nu, chto vy! (noo shtoh vih; Ah, what are you talking about!) You have to show your modesty and disagree.

Zakhoditye Na Chaj!

Making a Russian friend is very easy. When you meet someone (and if you like this person enough to want to be his or her friend), don't think too hard about finding a way to create a social connection. Just say Zakhoditye na chaj! (zuh-khah-dee-t'eh nuh chahy; Stop by for some tea!) The person won't think you're a freak or a serial killer; he or she will most likely take your offer at face value. Keep in mind, though, that unlike "Let's do lunch," Russians take Zakhoditye na chaj seriously and usually accept your offer. That being said, you should actually have some tea and cookies at home, because Zakhoditye na chaj! implies drinking tea and conversing, unlike the American version: "Would you like to stop by my place for a drink?"

Ugosh'ajtyes'!

When you invite a new friend over for tea and whip out your strategically prepared box of cookies, a nice thing to say is Ugosh'ajtyes! (oo-gah-sh'ahy-t'ehs'; Help yourself! [literally: Treat yourself!]) Besides being friendly and polite, this word is just long enough to scare off foreigners. Which is, of course, a good enough reason to learn it and stand out in the crowd.

Priyatnogo Appetita!

Unless you want to strike people as a gloomy, misanthropic sociopath, don't start eating without wishing others Priyatnogo appetita! (pree-yat-nuh-vuh uh-pee-tee-tuh; Bon appétit!) Don't hesitate to say this phrase to people you don't know and are seeing for the first time in your life after your waiter sits them down at your table in an over-crowded restaurant.

Syadyem Na Dorozhku!

Before departing on a trip, surprise everybody by looking around thoughtfully and saying Syadyem na dorozhku! (sya-deem nuh dah-rohsh-koo; Let's sit down before hitting the road!) Essentially a superstition, this tradition is actually useful; sitting down and staying silent for a minute before you head out the door gives you an opportunity to remember what's important. Maybe your packed lunch is still in the fridge, and your plane tickets with a sticker saying "Don't forget!" are still on your bedside table!

Sadis', V Nogakh Pravdy Nyet

Sitting down is a big deal for Russians. Which is, of course, understandable: With those vast lands, they must have had to walk a lot (especially before the invention of trains). That's why when you're sitting with somebody standing before you, or when somebody stops by and hangs out in the doorway, claiming to be leaving in a minute, you can say Sadis', v nogakh pravdy nyet (sah-dees', v nah-gakhk prahv-dih n'eht; take the weight off your feet/it is as cheap sitting as standing).

Ni Pukha, Ni Pyera!

Although English has its own cute little “Break a leg” phrase, nobody really uses it anymore. Russians, on the other hand, never let anyone depart on a mission — whether a lady leaves to interview for a job or guy goes to ask a girl out — without saying Ni pukha, ni pyera! (nee poo-khuh nee pee-rah; Good luck! [literally: Have neither fluff nor plume!])

The appropriate response isn't spasibo (spuh-see-buh; thank you); you should say K chyortu! (k chohr-too; To the devil!)

Tseluyu

Russians sign their letters, e-mails, and cell phone text messages with Tseluyu (tsih-loo-yu; kisses [literally: (I am) kissing (you)]). You can also say Tseluyu at the end of a phone conversation. We don't recommend saying it in person, though: If you're face to face with someone, you may as well kiss the person instead of talking about it!

S Lyogkim Parom!

Here's a weird one: When Russians see someone who just came out of a shower, a sauna, or any place where you can, supposedly, clean yourself, they say S lyogkim parom! (s lyokh-keem pah-ruhm; literally: Congratulations on a light steam!)

You can use S lyogkim parom! humorously: Say it to someone who got caught in the rain or someone who spilled a drink. Yes, it sounds mean, but Russians have a dark sense of humor.
